Voice From Past Haunts Axis Sally At Treason Trial

U. S. Recordings Of Broadcasts From Germany Played in Court

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

A ghost Voice came back to haunt Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars, 48, in District Court yesterday.

The Voice—soft, cultivated, insinuating—identified by Government witnesses as being that of Miss Gillars, came to her, to Federal Judge Edward M. Curran, to the jury and to the press through earphones connected to a recorder.

It had been intercepted by United States monitors in 1943 and 1944 as it whispered to weary American troops in the field: "I wonder if she isn't running around with "4-Fs" back home . . ." and "they'll (United States troops) just get kind of woozy and would like to throw down those little old guns and toddle off home. Well, it would be the right thing for them to do after all, because they're certainly not making any headway in the sector right now. . . ."

Beamed at Mother

And the Voice, as reproduced yesterday, told an anxious American mother that her son's leg had been amputated and "how little did she ever dream that she'd be asked to sacrifice him for Roosevelt and his Jewish cohorts . . ."

In all, 5 of the 29 records placed in evidence by Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., in an effort to prove Miss Gillars was a traitor to her native America, were played in the hushed, tense courtroom.

The silver-haired defendant listened, her still-piquant features tired and drawn, her chin cupped in her hands. For the most part she was impassive but once she dabbed at her eyes and nose with a handkerchief. At another point she engaged in agitated conversation with her attorney, James J. Laughlin. At other times she'd take the earphones off entirely or listen with just one phone held to her ear.

Objection Overruled

Laughlin had sought to prevent the playing of the records on the general ground sof irrelevancy and immateriality. He was overruled. He also made a futile objection to the introduction as evidence of seven original records seized by United States intelligence officers in Berlin on the grounds that the seizure was done without a warrant. None of these latter records, allegedly removed from a locker near Miss Gillars' former apartment on the Wilhelmstrasse, was played yesterday.

Probably the most dramatic of the programs reproduced yesterday was one entitled "Home, Sweet Home," intercepted and recorded by a Government monitoring station at Silver Hill, Md., July 27, 1944.

Beamed from station DZE, Berlin, to American Expeditionary Forces, it opened with the nostalgic sound of a train whistle and the strains of "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag."

Then came the voice—softly, intimately through the earphones: "Hello Gang," it said with a smile, "this is Midge (Miss Gillars had been identified as using the name "Midge" on her broadcasts) calling

FBI Arrests Alleged Spy Canada Sought

Carr Said to Have Been Co-Leader of Red Ring; 3-Year Search Ended

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—Sam Carr, alleged co-leader of a one-time Russian spy ring in Canada, was arrested today by the FBI. He is wanted on espionage charges in Canada.

Carr was named by a Royal espionage commission three years ago as one of two Canadian ringleaders of a Russian spy ring. He held the post of organizing secretary of the Canadian Communist Party.

A Canadian justice department official said the 42-year-old Carr probably would be tried in Toronto on accusations he violated the Official Secrets Act.

Carr was picked up at a basement apartment at 115 West 74th st., near Central Park, Manhattan. The FBI said he had occupied the apartment two weeks and had been the object of an intensive hunt since he disappeared from Canada in March, 1946. At one time he was reported living in Mexico.

Fred Rose, former Communist member of Parliament, was the other alleged ringleader in the spy network. He is serving a 6-year prison term for violation of the Official Secrets Act.

Igor Gouzenko, Russian embassy cipher clerk in Canada who disclosed the espionage ring, said Carr recruited Russian agents in Canada.

Nine persons were fined or imprisoned and nine acquitted in the Canadian spy trials.

Carr, whose real name was said by the FBI to be Schmil Kogan, was born in Russia. He entered Canada in 1925 and assisted in organizing the Young Communist League.

Edward Scheidt, chief FBI agent in New York, said Carr would be turned over to the Immigration and Naturalization Service and held at Ellis Island pending deportation proceedings.

Carr and his wife rented the apartment January 10 and had been living there as Mr. and Mrs. Jack J. Lewis, Scheidt said. The landlord said Carr had told him he was an engineer from Boston who had come here to get material for a book.

Mrs. Carr was not arrested but voluntarily agreed to be questioned by the FBI, Scheidt said.

Truman Still Distrusts Polls

President Truman said yesterday he had no more confidence in public opinion polls than he had before the election, even though a recent one showed 69 per cent of the voters approved of his actions.

At a news conference, a reporter called his attention to this result of a recent Gallup Poll and asked whether he would comment.

The President said he never did have any confidence in polls and he didn't have any now. He made his own decisions, he said, on whether an action is right or wrong after he got all the facts and polls had no effect on him whatsoever.

Tobin to Give Labor Law Plan Today

Senate Committee To Get Truman's 'Package' Formula For T-H Repeal

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The details of the Fair Deal labor legislation will be unfolded by Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin at a Senate hearing today.

Tobin will present the Administration's "one-package" formula before the Senate Labor Committee, which will hold a public hearing in the large caucus room of the Senate Office Building beginning at 10 a. m.

No major surprises are expected to be in the "package." It contains clauses repealing the Taft-Hartley Act, restoring the Wagner Act, and amending the latter in line with the President's campaign pledge.

Nonetheless, there may well be political dynamite within that "package."

In the first place, organized labor is strongly opposed to the idea of a single-package approach to revision of the Nation's labor code. Labor wants the Taft-Hartley Act repealed and the Wagner Act restored, period. After that, labor leaders say, is the time to amend the Wagner Act.

Secondly, the contents of the Administration "package" are likely to ignite new controversies.

The President, for example, has asked for legislation to deal with vital strikes affecting the Nation's health and safety. Some observers believe the "package" will meet this request by giving the Government power to halt such strikes through court injunction.

The labor unions are opposed to the injunction, and the CIO has already announced it will vigorously contest any such amendment.

Mr. Truman has said he wants to outlaw "unjustifiable" secondary boycott, but any definition of such is sure to provoke dispute. The President had called for a ban on jurisdictional strikes. But compulsory arbitration to settle such strikes—as has been suggested—will stir up another hornet's nest.

Angry reaction can be expected from another quarter if the "package" returns the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, given independent status by the Taft-Hartley Act, to the Labor Department. Cyrus Ching, Conciliation chief, is known to be opposed to such a move. Such a switch is considered a virtual certainty. Few labor observers would be surprised if Ching—highly respected by both management and labor—resigned as a result of the switch.

Another change expected in the Administration's "package" is the stripping of autonomous authority of the counsel to the National Labor Relations Board and returning it to the board. However, it is expected that the board, expanded from three to five members by the Taft-Hartley Act, will remain enlarged.

In the Senate yesterday, Republican leaders, headed by Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, let it be known in loud and unmistakable terms that the Administration "package" was far too small to suit the GOP and perhaps, too, some of the Southern Democrats.

Taft said he had 15 amendments to add to the "package"—amendments that in effect would restore most of the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act. Taft, given vocal support by Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.) and Senator Wayne Morse (R., Ore.), charged that the Democrats were trying to "choke off" debate on the legislation by arranging for an end to

Two Million Expected In D. C. Area by 1980

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

A preview of the comprehensive plan for the development of Greater Washington was presented last night to the Joint Committee on the National Capital.

The presentation, made by Gen. Ulysses S. Grant 3d (retired), chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, contained these major points.

1. The District of Columbia is expected to have a population of about one million persons in 1980. There will be two million persons living in Greater Washington.

2. Public transportation here may face radical changes. Planners now think streetcars should gradually be replaced by buses; streetcars cost too much and they are not adaptable to changing traffic demands.

3. Zoning regulations need changing to end "monopoly" in nonconforming uses. The public interest is not always being served in present zoning changes.

4. Future Federal buildings should be built in Northeast and Southeast Washington or suburban Washington. Northwest Washington is "supercharged" with Federal employment.

5. A Washington-Maryland-Virginia administrative and construction agency, similar to the New York-New Jersey Port Authority, should be established to finance such projects as Alexandria bridge, which touch more than one area, but are a part of the regional plan for developing Greater Washington.

General Grant spoke at the Federal City dinner of the Joint Committee, given at the Statler Hotel. He told committee members that if a report on the comprehensive plan had been made last autumn, as hoped, it "would inevitably have been a half-baked affair." The report was deferred because of lack of funds.

He emphasized that the report he was making actually was a summary of some of the "special problems" involved in the plan, on which the commission's "tentative attitude" stifl must be considered.

Those who heard his address included representatives of the American Federation of Arts, American Institute of Architects, American Institute of Planners, the American Society of Landscape Architects, the American Planning and Civic Association, the Garden Club of America, the National Association of Real Estate Boards, the National Sculpture Society and

New Storms Halt Efforts To Save Herds

(From Press Dispatches)

Blizzard-borne disaster, unprecedented in American history, threatened to wipe out half this Nation's sheep and more than a million cattle last night as new storms virtually canceled rescue efforts in the Far West.

Fresh snow drifted down on the storm-plagued areas of Idaho, Utah, Colorado, Nevada and Wyoming, grounding haylift planes and slowing land rescue operations. At the same time a new blizzard roared into Kansas, Nebraska and northwest Missouri with sub-zero cold and biting winds.

Congress and President Truman moved to start a flood of dollars for emergency relief while the Army, Air Force, Red Cross and State and local agencies exerted every effort to avert further losses.

The National Wool Grower's Association estimated that half the Nation's sheep population was in critical condition, snowbound and short of feed from the Dakotas and Kansas westward. J. M. Jones, association secretary, said storms threatened stockmen's investments estimated at $22,500,000.

In Nebraska, particularly hard hit, Gov. Val Peterson virtually despaired as he heard weather forecasts of more snow.

"If that weather report is correct," he said, "everything will be reblocked by morning. A disaster situation exists in Nebraska which is beyond the resources of the State to meet."

Peterson asked and was promised all possible aid by the Fifth Army.

U. S. Launches Drive on Rent Control Revolt

Woods Says He'll Ask Writ for Any Refusal To Halt on Evictions

By The Associated Press

The Truman Administration yesterday launched a drive against a revolt of landlords who threaten mass evictions of tenants as a protest against rent control legislation.

Soon after President Truman deplored the landlords' actions at his news conference, Housing Expediter Tighe Woods announced that he would seek court injunctions against any landlords who refuse to withdraw the eviction notices.

Woods wired Oklahoma CIO Council President A. W. Mitchell, who had protested the landlords' action, that "if landlords refuse to withdraw notices the office of the Housing Expediter will seek to enjoin such evictions by action in the courts."

Mr. Truman told reporters he doesn't believe the property owners will get away with their plans.

He termed such efforts a poor approach to the problem.

He made his comment at a news conference when a reporter said landlords in St. Louis are considering giving 60-day notices to renters, as have property owners in other cities.

Bills to extend the Federal rent control law and to tighten its enforcement provisions are pending in Congress. The House will take up the question first.

Mr. Truman showed he had been reading about the landlord uprising when he noted the eviction movement started in Tulsa, Okla., which he termed that great oil center.

Oxnam Talk Hits Stand Of Catholics

Bishop Says Group Opposes Church, State Separation; Protestants Alerted

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

The Roman Catholic Church does not believe in religious liberty or in separation of church and state, Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam charged last night.

At the same time the bishop denied that Protestants are attacking Roman Catholicism. "It is because Protestants believe in religious liberty itself that they are as eager to preserve religious freedom for the Roman Catholics as they are to secure it for themselves," he said.

In a speech at a mass meeting attended by more than 3000 persons in Constitution Hall, Bishop Oxnam asserted that the Roman Catholic Church has launched "a full-scale attack upon this principle, the separation of church and state." The meeting was sponsored by Protestants and other Americans United for the Separation of Church and State.

Termed Important Bastion

He termed the principle of separation of church and state "one of the important bastions of the fortress of religious liberty."

"The Roman Catholic Church does not believe in the separation of church and state. Nor does it believe in religious liberty," Bishop Oxnam said. "The attack, therefore, upon this bastion is but the beginning of an assault upon the fortress itself. We must not forget that the issue before us is not alone that of religious liberty but also that of American culture," he asserted.

Protestantism, he said, is "alerted" to a "fundamental threat" and "committed to the maintenance of religious liberty for all men of all faiths."

Protestants are "concerned with every attack upon religious liberty, whether it comes from the right of facism, the left of communism, or from Roman Catholicism," the bishop declared.

An attack on secularism by the Roman Catholic hierarchy last fall was termed a "smokescreen behind which the hierarchy forms its forces to secure public funds for the support of parochial schools."

"Protestants are as aware of the threat to religion that lies in secularism as are the Roman Catholic bishops, and stand ready to join with them in an attack upon secularism," the Methodist bishop said, adding that "Protestants refuse to be drawn into a movement whose real objective is clericalism."

Called Pursuit of Power

He defined clericalism as "the pursuit of power, especially political power by a religious hierarchy carried on by secular methods and for purposes of social domination."

"We serve notice that the present attempt to breach the wall that separates church and state will be resisted, and we believe will be beaten," he asserted.

Bishop Oxnam charged the Catholic press with "deliberate falsification" of the position of POAU. "It is religious liberty in which we are interested. It is religious liberty we intend to defend. We desire that liberty for all, we believe that religious faith cannot be imposed; that it is consent, not coercion, that is essential," he said.

"It is doubtful that Roman Catholic laymen who enjoy the privileges of religious liberty in this land are aware of the denials of religious liberty in other lands in which the hierarchy is strong enough to enforce its will," Bishop Oxnam declared.

It is "unfortunate" that men who fought political totalitarianism during the war "are not aware of a totalitarianism of another nature that constitutes a threat to religious freedom," he continued. "It is inconceivable that the hierarchy would have risked such an ill conceived attack upon the principles of the separation of church and state if the decision had been

GOP Keeps Scott As Chairman by Vote of 54 to 50

HUGH D. SCOTT, Jr.
"I've made this fight . . ."

Critics of Dewey Campaign Lose Hot Fight to Oust Pennsylvanian

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Omaha, Nebr., Jan. 27.—Repreentative Hugh D. Scott, jr., of Pennsylvania, clung to his post as chairman of the Republican National Committee today. He won out after a dramatic 4½-hour debate that scorched the records of the GOP.

The vote in the National Committee was 54 to 50.

This came on a motion to table a resolution declaring the office of national chairman "vacant." Had the resolution been adopted, the 48-year-old Scott would have been out and the committee would have proceeded to elect a successor.

Taft-Stassen Bloc Beaten

The outcome of the fight, one of the most bitter in Republican Party history, was interpreted here as a defeat for the supporters of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota.

They had worked together to oust Scott on the grounds that he was hand-picked by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and was a "symbol" of the "disastrous" campaign of 1948, that he "abdicated" his authority to the Dewey strategists and that he was suspected of trying to help Dewey win a third term.

Scott, in advance of this afternoon's voting, had said over and over again that he was convinced that Dewey could not and would not be the GOP nominee again.

Bearing that in mind, Representative Clarence J. Brown of Ohio, Taft's preconvention manager, said this evening of the 54-50 vote:

"It's a victory. In order to save himself, Scott had to repudiate Dewey."

In the exciting debate, which took place in the Black Mirror Room of Omaha's Fontenelle Hotel, most of the anti-Scott orators were members of what Representative Brown called the "Taft group."

Call For "Fair Play"

The pro-Scott people could hardly be called Dewey supporters in the sense that they expected to support the New Yorker in the future, or, for that matter, expected him to have a dominant voice in the party in the four years ahead.

They argued for Scott's retention on the ground of "fair play," on the ground that he was a veteran of World War II, and on the ground that his critics were trying to unload on him a responsibility for defeat which all Republican leaders ought to share.

Virtually every one who spoke against Scott preceded his remarks by saying that he liked the national chairman and that there was nothing personal in the fight.

George L. Hart of the District of Columbia, proxy for National Committeeman Clyde D. Garrett, thought this had gone far enough, and he exclaimed:

'What you are saying is that you are a fine fellow, we love you, but we're going to cut your throat.'"

Hart, a colonel in the Air Forces in the last war, said that all Republican politicians were responsible for the 1948 debacle, and he charged that an attempt was being made by Scott's opponents to ease their own guilt by trying to "squash" the chairman.

Hart voted for Scott in the showdown. Mrs. Thad H. Brown, national committeewoman for the District of Columbia, voted against Scott.

The debate reached a peak of bitterness after Harrison E. Spangler of Iowa, former national chairman, had taken the floor to oppose Scott.

NankingFlight Now Turning Into Panic

Li Sends Direct Plea For Communist Leader To Name Negotiators

Nanking, Jan. 27 (AP).—Well-informed sources said Acting President Li Tsung-jen today sent a direct appeal to Communist leader Mao-Tze-tung to name peace negotiators at once.

Li's appeal came when it began to appear a Chinese government effort to make a surrender deal had broken down.

The apparent stalemate, with the Reds drawing ever nearer to Nanking, turned the flight from this capital into a panic.

It was learned reliably, however, that United States Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart would stay in this Communist-menaced capital, on instructions from Washington.

Only a small party led by Minister Lewis Clark is due to join the government in its transfer to Canton. The government has reported it expects to be functioning in Canton by February 5.

All other diplomatic missions except the Soviet bloc are expected to follow the American example.

Reflecting the personal convictions of diplomats that the government no longer represents the Chinese people, their decision to stay in Nanking is a profound diplomatic reverse for the government.

In Shanghai the commander of the United States Western Pacific fleet said some Marines soon would be withdrawn from China, but emphasized that enough would remain to meet any emergency.

Vice Adm. Oscar C. Badger said the present numbers (about 3000 at Tsingtao and 600 at Shanghai) were more than needed. The admiral also confirmed previous reports that the Marines at Tsingtao "to some degree" were being withdrawn from shore billets to shipboard. He said Navy port facilities in Shanghai also would be drastically reduced.

Badger reiterated that Navy policy still was to maintain sufficient forces in China to protect Americans and—"insofar as able"—other foreigners.

Asked what he would do if a Communist government took control and demanded withdrawal of United States forces, Badger replied, "I'd probably withdraw them." He quickly amended this by saying such a decision would rest with the United States Government.

In Nanking, Gen. Chang Chih-chung, a leader of the government's peace delegation, announced he was flying to Lanchow in the far northwest to discharge

'No Hope for Return to Bench'

Judge Fay Bentley Voluntarily Enters St. Elizabeths Hospital

Judge Fay L. Bentley, who has presided over Juvenile Court here since 1934, is a voluntary patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital, it was confirmed yesterday.

A Juvenile Court officer said "there was no hope that she would return to her bench."

Family and court officials have indicated that the 51-year-old jurist has been suffering from a "nervous involvement," the aftermath of a traffic accident in 1946.

Judge Bentley underwent a spinal operation at George Washington Hospital last November and was later transferred to the Washington Sanitarium for convalescence, her family said.

Meanwhile, Chief District Court Judge Bolitha J. Laws has named Municipal Court Judge Nadine Gallagher temporarily to the Juvenile bench, effective February 7. She has relieved Municipal Judge Walter Casey who has been acting juvenile magistrate in Judge Bentley's place since last September.

When Judge Bentley left Washington Sanitarium at Takoma Park, Md., her sister, Mrs. Charlotte Jones, told reporters last month that she had been transferred to a private nursing home.

Mrs. Jones, who has been living at the jurist's Georgetown home, 3412 Q st. nw., then said that removal to more quiet surroundings was at the request of her physician, Dr. Vasilios S. Lambros, a neurosurgeon.

But yesterday Judge Bentley's immediate Municipal Court superior, Chief Judge George P. Barse, said he had been "officially informed by reliable sources" that Judge Bentley was a patient at St. Elizabeths. He did not know when she entered the mental hospital, he said.

As the juvenile judge is a voluntary patient, hospital officials would not confirm the report or discuss her condition.

How long Judge Bentley will continue to receive her $10,000 annual salary was in doubt. Court attaches explained that the chief judge of District Court has authority to make only temporary appointments to meet sickness or absence of a judge under his jurisdiction. All District and Municipal Court judgeships are White House appointments.

Judge Bentley's current six-year term, her third, expires in 1952.

In Contempt Citation Hearing

Radio Stations Argue in Court For Unrestricted Newscasts

Baltimore, Jan. 27 (AP).—Four radio stations argued in court today that freedom of news should not be restricted on the chance some of it might prejudice a man's right to a fair trial.

The State argued back that restrictions in force here for ten years have done more than anything else to promote the orderly administration of justice and eliminate "trials by newspaper."

The points were made in the second day of a hearing on contempt citations against the four radio stations—WFBR, WCBM, WSID, and WITH—and the news editor of WITH.

All are charged with prejudicing the rights of a handyman arrested last July and subsequently sentenced to death for the knife murder of an 11-year-old girl.

The specific complaint is that they broadcast before the trial information that the accused had confessed and that he had a prior criminal record. The State contends that, in the broadcast, they violated a special Baltimore court rule—rule 904—prohibiting both types of information.

Arguments by defense attorneys were completed today, along with those of four groups which intervened because they are interested in the basic issues.

The intervenors are the National Association of Broadcasters, the American Newspaper Publishers Association, the American Society of Newspaper Editors and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Poultry Prices Decline Here To Lowest Level Since OPA

The lowest poultry prices since the end of OPA were reported here yesterday as various local and national signposts showed small but steady declines in the cost of living.

The general decrease in inflation prompted President Truman to tell his press conference yesterday that his economic advisers are preparing a report on the situation.

The poultry price decline, and decreases in fresh vegetable prices, came as the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported a drop of .8 per cent in Washington retail food prices between November 15 and December 15. It was the sixth consecutive monthly decline here.

Wholesale poultry prices here are 8 and 10 cents a pound lower than a year ago, and the lowest since OPA ceilings were removed in October, 1946, according to Fred Kolker, chairman of the poultry division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

At retail, the average price of frying chickens in most chain stores was 45 to 49 cents a pound, with New York dressed birds selling as low as 39 cents. Dressed and drawn chickens were advertised for 59 cents a pound.

Food price ceilings were largely responsible for a decrease of .5 per cent in retail prices of goods and services bought by moderate-income families in other large cities during the November 15-December 15 period, as reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Chain stores here are advertising lower prices on several fresh vegetable items. New cabbages were available at 4 cents a pound, green beans at 19 cents and car-

New York Star To Fold Up Today

New York, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—The New York Star, which started publication 8½ years ago as the tabloid newspaper, PM, announced tonight that it would cease publication with Friday's issue because of financial troubles.

Publisher Bartley Crum and Editor Joseph Barnes, in a statement to Star readers, said the newspaper had grown in circulation and advertising in the seven months since they took it over from Marshall Field, but that it was not yet self-supporting and additional financial support was not available.

Carr's Open-Handed Way of Operating As Soviet Agent in Canada Amazed Russian

The open-handed manner in which Sam Carr operated in Canada while serving as an agent of the Soviet Union amazed one Russian at the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa.

"Don't you think Carr should operate more cautiously?" he asked Col. Nicolai Zabotin, Military Attache at the Embassy. "He makes little apparent effort to hide his work."

"Carr can take care of himself," Zabotin replied with a shrug. "Study him closely and you will notice he makes a lot of noise about something he can do under democratic custom, but the noise is a smoke screen for his undercover work."

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
SAM CARR
Wanted in Canada

This is the elusive Sam Carr sought by the Canadian government for nearly three years as a Russian spy and finally arrested yesterday in New York City by the FBI. The Sam Carr was named by a Royal Commission in Canada as one of the two ringleaders of a Russian spy ring that operated in Canada until its exposure late in 1945.

The other ringleader, Fred Rose, former member of the Canadian Parliament, is now serving six years in prison for breaches of the Official Secrets Act of Canada.

Igor Gouzenko, the Soviet Embassy code expert who exposed the spy ring, described Carr as the recruiting agent for the Canadian spy ring. Carr fled the country before the Royal Canadian Mounted Police could seize him.

The real name of Carr, who has also used the alias of Sam Cohen, is Schmil Kogan. He was born at Tomachpol, Russian Ukraine, on July 7, 1906, and landed in Canada on August 29, 1924.

He went first to Regina and worked as a harvester and laborer. In 1925, he moved from Winnipeg to Montreal where under the name of Sam Cohen, he joined the Young Communist League and became an organizer for it. In 1927, he moved to Toronto and became a member of the Communist Party of Canada. The following year he married a British subject.

Although he has denied it, it has been alleged that from 1929 to 1931, Carr was in Moscow attending the Lenin Institute.

On Carr's registration card at the Soviet Embassy in Ottowa was typewritten:

"'Detailed material on his biography is available in the Center in the Comitern. Has an excellent knowledge of the Russian language; he graduated from the Lenin School in Moscow."

On June 23, 1931, Carr was granted a Canadian naturalization certificate in the name of Samuel Kogan. In November of 1931 he was arrested on three charges. A charge of seditious conspiracy was quashed, but he was sentenced to a 10-year prison term for "being a member" and "being an officer" of an unlawful association.

Released from prison on July 3, 1934, Carr immediately resumed his Communist Party activities. In 1935 he was one of the main agitators in the On-to-Ottawa March of the Unemployed.

In January, 1937, he became organizing secretary of the Communist Party for all of Canada. During this year he is said to have visited Spain, then gripped by civil war, and the Soviet Union. But he has also denied these visits.

Beginning in 1939, Carr began to write many articles which appeared in various Communist publications on this continent and in England, all designed to impede the Allied war effort.

Carr disappeared early in 1940 and is believed to have continued his Communist anti-war writings at a hideout in Philadelphia.

An order for his arrest was issued in Canada in June, 1940, but he was "underground." He remained there until September 25, 1942, when with 16 other wanted leaders of the Communist Party he surrendered in Toronto, after Germany attacked Russia.

He appealed against internment as an enemy of Canada's war effort and an advisory committee which heard his appeal advised his release subject to certain security measures.

But the pledges he gave in 1942 meant little to Carr, according to the report of the Royal Commission which investigated the spy ring, for even then he was recruiting agents who could supply vital secrets to the Soviet Union.

Jury Calls Alleged U. S. Red Leader

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—J. Peters, once described by Whittaker Chambers as head of the Communist underground in America, has been subpenaed by a Federal grand jury here, it was learned today.

Chambers, former Communist courier, was on hand again today to testify before the jury, which is investigating alleged subversive activities and Communist espionage.

Peters, also known as Alexander Stevens, was called before a subcommittee of the House Un-American Activities Committee here last year, but refused to answer any questions about his alleged Communist affiliations.

Insurance Antitrust Probe Proposed

The chairmen of the Senate and House judiciary committees yesterday proposed a joint investigation to determine whether life insurance companies are violating Federal antitrust laws.

Chairmen Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) of the Senate committee, and Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.) of the House committee, said the investigation also would determine the effect of State antitrust laws.

Judge Charged With Prejudice

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—A charge of prejudice against Negroes was hurled today at the judge presiding over the conspiracy trial of 11 top United States Communists, 2 of whom are Negroes.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina, immediately denied the charge, made by Defense Attorney Harry Sacher, and then asked:

"Do you move for my disqualification on that ground?"

"I do, your honor," replied Sacher.

"The motion is denied," Medina said.

Since the trial of the 11—all members of the American Party's National Committee—began January 17, the defense has made numerous motions seeking Medina's disqualification from the case on the grounds of bias and prejudice. All have been denied by Medina.

But today's accusation was the first specifically accusing the jurist of racial antagonism.

The matter arose over the question of whether defense counsel should continue asking witnesss their race.

It followed shortly after Medina halted, at least temporarily, the parade to the witness stand of prospective trial jurors being staged by the defense lawyers in an effort to prove that the Federal jury-picking system here discriminates against the poor and members of minority groups and in favor of the rich.

The charge of prejudice came up when a defense lawyer, Louis McCabe, was about to ask a witness his race.

Medina interrupted:

"I'll put on the record whether this witness is white or Negro. Don't you think that would be a little more sensible?"

McCabe asserted that the question "goes to the very heart of our contention that Negroes were excluded" from the jury panels in this district.

"Well let us suppose," Medina said, "a witness may have a family in which Negro blood goes back four or five generations. Is it necessary to bring up such a sore spot?"

He referred to the first arrival of Spaniards in America and said he was not certain whether "I have Indian blood or not and I might feel a bit resentful if questioned about this."

Sacher then leaped to his feet and said:

"Negro blood is as good as any kind of white blood. The question put by your honor indicates prejudice on your honor's part."

"I fail to see how I have so indicated," said Medina.

The 11 Communists are charged with working for the forcible overthrow of the Government. A twelfth Communist, William Z. Foster, head of the American Party, also was indicted with them but his trial was severed from theirs last week because of his ill health.

Before the exchange over the alleged prejudice, Medina ruled the defense could call no more of the 525 members of the trial jury panel until it had presented other proof of its challenge to the jury system.

The defense had called almost a score of members of the grand jury which indicted the Communists and several members of the trial panel. It contends that the indictment against the Communists should be thrown out because of the alleged discrimination in the jury-picking method.

Medina said he made his ruling "because the system of operating the courts will be paralyzed by subpenaing and calling as witnesses all 525 members of the petit jury panel and because "it seems to be that the procedure is near futility."

McCabe remarked that several days ago Medina told the defense "to get down to business and saw wood." He added that perhaps sawdust had gotten into "somebody's eyes."

"But you didn't mean my eyes, did you?" Medina asked. "You can say yes or no."

House Spy Probers May Subpena Carr

The House Committee on un-American Activities revealed last night that it would like to subpena Sam Carr, key figure in the Russian espionage network in Canada, who was arrested in New York City yesterday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

District Police Department Keeps Track Of Communists Through File of 15,000 Cards

By Alfred Lewis and Lee Grove
Post Reporters

The District Police Department keeps track of Communists through an index file of 15,000 cards—keyed to a case history file of 5000 names of persons and organizations, it was disclosed yesterday.

The records are described as "a confidential administrative file" and kept in the Special Investigations and Missing Persons Squad room on the third floor of the Police Department's headquarters in the Municipal Center.

The file is the result of investigation over 17 years, and is consulted frequently by the Government's investigative agencies and the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

File Kept Current

Squad members keep the files current by covering meetings of groups that appear to have Communist sponsorship, clipping local and-out-of-town papers and collecting information in other ways.

Each time a person's name crops up it is entered on an index card, and police themselves do not know the number of individual persons in the 15,000 cards. Persons of many races, creeds and social position are listed.

When the cards are correlated in the index, if a person's name reappears frequently, a case history is started on him.

5000 Individual Dossiers

At present there are 5000 such dossiers. For individuals they list the time and place of each incident and the nature of his participation. Some of the 5000 dossiers, however, are concerned with organizations or groups of people in Washington or elsewhere in the United States, and are useful to the police in evaluating in advance their intentions or behavior when such groups descend on Washington to picket or hold protest meetings.

There are many ways that a name can be entered in the index files. Typical examples are:

For attending or speaking at a Communist meeting or rally, innocently or otherwise; indorsing a Communist-sponsored movement, contributing to a Communist cause, or signing a petition started under Communist leadership; having your car parked near a Communist rally and having its ownership traced through the license number, or having a known Communist call at your home.

Must Be Evident

Police say, however, no meeting or movement is considered Communist unless its Communist nature is clearly evident.

They say, further, that the appearance of a name on the index files does not necessarily indicate that the person is a Communist.

For example, the name of a Congressman who innocently passes a Communist rally and stops in to see what is going on, or the newspaper reporter covering the meeting has his name listed in the index. The number on the card should refer to a case history of the meeting, which would show the nature of his participation.

The Special Investigation and Missing Persons Squad comprises 18 detectives, headed by Lieut. Harry Blackman, and three clerks. Only one person, Detective Pvt. Joseph Chennault, is assigned full-time to investigation of Communist activity. When there is any particular activity, however, he receives more assistance.

The Police Department's Communist file was started during the veterans' bonus marches of 1932, when Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford was chief of police. Because it was started at a time when other Government agencies were not keeping any such files, it is considered one of the most complete in Washington.

Deportation Of Alien Reds Asked in House

A joint resolution providing for deportation of alien Communists and prohibiting all Communists from holding elective Federal office was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Secrest (D., Ohio).

The resolution was referred to the House Judiciary Committee, whose chairman, Representative Celler (D., N. Y.), said he would oppose it. Celler said it was up to the individual States to decide what parties should be recognized.

The House Un-American Affairs Committee, meanwhile, declared the aims of the Communist Party to be "espionage and treasonable activity" and urged early legislation "adequate to cope with the problem." The committee's report was made before its reorganization by the Democrats.

Prepared under the chairmanship of Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), the report said the end of 1948 marked "the close of the most active and productive period" in the committee's history. It brushed aside criticism of its activities as "a tribute to its achievements in the field of exposure of those who threatened our national security."

Former Congressman Back in Press Gallery

By the United Press

Former Representative Louis Ludlow (D., Ind.) completed a cycle yesterday.

He was accredited to the Capitol press gallery which he left some 20 years ago to become a Congressman. He will write a column for The Indianapolis Star.

He was the first member of the Capitol press gallery to become a Congressman. In returning, he became the first former Congressman ever accredited to the gallery.

Ludlow was elected to the Seventy-first Congress and served through the Eighth Congress. He did not run for reelection last year.

Rationing Urged As Newsprint Aid

Development of untapped resources in Alaska as a long-range solution to the world wide newsprint shortage is recommended in a study of the problem by the American Newspaper Guild (CIO), released yesterday.

A coporative system of pooling American newsprint supplies, together with rationing of the newsprint at an "equalized" price, is urged in the report as an immediate method of easing the shortage.

Both approaches, the report declares must come mainly from action of the country's newspaper publishers, but should also include participation by the AFL craft unions and the Guild membership of the newspaper plants.

Deep Concern Is Stressed

"Both labor and management have a deep concern in developing a means of assuring the industry a steady and fairly-distributed flow, at reasonable prices and in adequate supply, of its basic material," the report states.

The report on "The Newsprint Problem" was prepared for the American Newspaper Guild by Clara H. Friedman. The Guild includes newspaper employes engaged in collecting and editing the news, clerical workers, circulation men, and certain other employes. A preface to the report declares:

"The American Newspaper Guild is concerned with the economic aspect of the newsprint problem because it affects the present and future earnings and job security of newspaper workers. It is concerned with the political-social aspects of the problem because the source of supply, pricing policies and distribution of newsprint have a direct impact on the performance of a free press the world over."

Pressing Shortage Cited

The main conclusions emerging from the report states, are as follows:

1. There is a pressing shortage of newsprint at the present time, aggravated by the wartime destruction of plants and material and by the "unwillingness of existing newsprint producers to expand productive facilities."

2. Price and production behavior in the newsprint industry is characterized by concerted price-fixing and attempts to restrict output in apparently monopolistic fashion. The basis for these policies is rooted in United States dependence on Canadian newsprint. The Canadian government supports and encourages the monopolistic practices of its newsprint industry.

3. American publishers have failed to take unified action in fighting the Canadian newsprint monopoly. This inactivity is due to concentrated use of newsprint among a few large publishers, which benefit from the long-term contract system or by financial links with the newsprint mills.

4. The newsprint shortage is having grave effects, curtailing seriously the flow of information in many countries. Newsprint supplies abroad are insufficient to keep the people of democratic nations informed. In this country, the stringency of newsprint supplies is steadily reducing the small independent press and furthering the drift away from free competetive press.

Toll Is Burdensome

5. The toll the newsprint industry exacts from newspaper revenues is burdensome.

6. Development of news sources of supply in Alaska would relax American dependence on Canada's newsprint and contribute to easing the critical world shortage of newsprint. Concerted action by American publishers could effectively counter those newsprint pricing and production policies which have deletrious effects on the United States Press.

As a measure of immediate relief, the report points to the British system of dealing with newsprint and urges parallel action here.

When the invasion of Norway in the spring of 1940 cut off the main source of pulp supplies for the British newsprint mills, the big newspapers and the newspaper societies decided "to accept responsibility for the newspaper press as a whole, acting upon the principle that no paper, however small, should be permitted to perish through inability to secure its fair share of the limited supplies of newsprint."

Organized in May, 1940

The Newsprint Supply Co., a private nonprofit concern, was organized in May, 1940 and in cooperation with the Government handled all imports of newsprint, formed a common pool of imported and domestic newsprint, and supplies all newspapers, large and small, through a system of rationing.

The report charges that the American Newspaper Publishers Association, "which generally represented the large publishers in newsprnt problems," has been more concerned with the flow of supplies from Canada than with the prices of newsprint.

Contacted in New York, Cranston Williams, ANPA general manager, said yesterday he preferred to withhold comment until he had had a chance to see the full Guild report.

Can Leave Now

African Fon Ready to Free 110 Wives

Lake Success, Jan. 27 (AP).—The Fon of Bikom has assured the United Nations that his 110 wives can go home to mother—and stay there—for all he cares.

The 80-year-old African tribal headman says he's bored with marriage, anyway. He rules over about 10,000 subjects in the Barmenda division of the British Cameroons.

The Fon became the subject of U. N. debate more than a year ago when a London Catholic organization charged he had 600 wives. This organization, the St. Joan's Social and Political Alliance, claimed a 13-year-old girl had been taken to the Fon as "a piece of cargo."

Britain then told the U. N. Trusteeship Council the Fon did not have 600 wives—only 110.

Doyle A. F. Shute, a British colonial official, today told the 12-Nation Council that most of them are old women. "Many are over 40 whom he inherited from the previous Fon," Shute said.

In Bikom, the fertility of the tribe is bound up in the person of the Fon.

"When I saw the old boy last December," Shute said, "he told me 'all I'm waiting for is death.'"

Shue said the Fon told him: "There is no woman in my compound who is not here entirely of her own free will. I will take on no more wives unless they come here of their own free will. All of them are free to leave at any time to return to their own people."

In replying to the Catholic group's charges last year, Britain denied that the Fon had the right to take by force any girl in his tribe. Actually, the British report said, he has the right to claim only the first-born daughters and all female twins in certain families.

Mitchum Pal Faces Another Marijuana Rap

Hollywood, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Principals in the Robert Mitchum dope case had a busy day today.

Robin Ford, 31, awaiting sentencing along with Mitchum and Starlett Lila Leeds for conspiracy to possess narcotics, faced another marijuana rap. Detectives said they found a reefer in his hip pocket when they arrested him last night.

Dancer Vickie Evans, who failed to appear in court two weeks ago with the other three who were convicted in the Mitchum case, was returned from New York on a fugitive warrant and jailed to await trial. She couldn't get bond.

And Mitchum, who claimed his privacy was invaded by Landlady Nanette Bordeaux when she advertised a sofa for sale by saying "Robert Mitchum sat here," was told he had no privacy.

The same landlady told Miss Leeds she could have back two lamps she claims Miss Bordeaux wrongfully kept.

Ford told police he didn't know how the cellophane-wrapped cigarett got into his pocket.

All four principals in the Mitchum case were arrested September 1 in a cottage owned by Miss Bordeaux and sublet by Miss Leeds.

Used Car Dealer Gets $853 'Bonus' Offer on '49 Auto

Detroit, Jan. 27 (AP).—A Detroit used-car dealer who got delivery yesterday of a new 1949 model Chevrolet said today he had been offered as much as $853 above the list price for the vehicle.

The dealer said he had paid $1797.60, including a $100 allowance on a 1940 car, for the 1949 Chevrolet. He declined to name the new-car dealer and added: "I doubt he knew I was a used-car dealer, but he does now."

He bought the new car, he said, to advertise his lot.

The new 1949 Chevrolets went on display in dealer showrooms last Saturday. Deliveries began yesterday.

Tyrone Power Weds in Rome Amid Din of Bobby Soxers

Associated Press RADIOPHOTO
Linda Christian and Tyrone Power cut their wedding cake in Rome

Rome, Jan. 27 (AP).—Tyrone Power, 34, and Linda Christian, 23, said their marriage vows today while thousands of screaming Italian bobby-soxers surged riotously across police lines outside the Church of Santa Francesca Romana. It was Hollywood-on-the-Tiber's show of the year.

So great was the din that the words of the marriage ceremony scarcely could be heard in the fifth row. Even the guests were none too orderly.

In the crush outside the church, several women fainted and a man's finger was broken. A number of other persons were bruised. There were reports that Vatican prelates were incensed at the atmosphere.

There were more than 10,000 in the unruly throng.

Wife Giving Up Career

Power has announced his bride is giving up her screen career. She has said they want to start raising a family right away.

After the ceremony the couple was received in a special audience by Pope Pius XII. The Pope gave the bride a rosary and a booklet of "instructions about the good Christian family." He gave Power a pontifical medallion. United States Ambassador and Mrs. James C. Dunn entertained the newlyweds at a luncheon.

Tomorrow they will leave Rome for a wedding trip through northern Italy and Switzerland to Kitzbuehl, Austria.

Power and Miss Christian were married eight hours before a superior court judge in Los Angeles signed a decree making his divorce from French Actress Annabella final.

The bride was resplendent in white satin with an 8-yard train. Power wore severely cut morning clothes. Power arrived at the church 15 minutes early and then had a wait of half an hour for his bride.

Vatican Approves Wedding

The Vatican, after months of investigation, decided the marriage could be celebrated in the Catholic Church because Power's first wedding was a civil one.

Ambassador Dunn, a late-arriving guest, entered the church with his overcoat almost pulled off. Mrs. Dunn said she got through the crowd "only by getting behind a broad-shouldered usher and hanging onto his coat buttons."

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William Hemmick, Pittsburg-born prelate. He had served in Baltimore and Washington and briefly at Georgetown University. Last year, after almost 20 years in Rome, he was named a canon of St. Peter's.

Msgr. Hemmick consented last night to officiate after Federico Cardinal Tedeschini, arch-priest of St. Peter's, withdrew, reportedly because he disliked the fanfare.

Southern Baptist Ministers Urged to Reject Klan 'Bribes'

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 27 (AP).—Southern Baptist pastors today were asked to refuse "bribe money" offered by the Ku Klux Klan.

The plea was made by Dr. Hugh A. Brimm, executive secretary of the Social Service Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Taking note of a KKK visit and contribution to a Chattanooga church last Sunday night, Dr. Brimm said "the incident . . . will probably be repeated many times now that the Klan has sunk to such a low level in the thinking of decent and respectable people.

"These 'contributions,'" Dr. Brimm wrote editors of Southern Baptist publications in a 21-State area, "should be recognized for what they are, 'bribe money.' Bringing such bribes into the church ought to be openly resented and refused by Christian people."

Dr. Brimm suggested to pastors "that when and if the Klan comes to your church . . . remember the following:

"1. Keep cool—no one should be afraid of cowards who won't show their faces.

"2. That superficial piety is hypocrisy before God and man. These men cannot wash the bloodstains of lynched victims from their skirts by merely walking into a church with 'blood money.'

"3. Refuse any gifts and invite them to stay only if they remove their masks. If they refuse to unhood themselves, then dismiss the service with a prayer for them that they might see the light of God's love for all men and themselves come to love of all men."

Top U. S. Weathermen Caught in a Puddle

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—While some 200 of the Nation's top weathermen were attending a session of the 101st national meeting of the American Meteorological Society yesterday, a downfall of snow and sleet turned sidewalks into sticky puddles.

An enterprising newsman checked up and found that only about one-fourth of the weathermen had brought galoshes, raincoats or umbrellas.

South's Rights Reply Is Race Relocation Bill

A Georgia Senator fighting the Truman civil rights program yesterday proposed a gigantic voluntary swap of populations between North and South.

Under his plan, the Federal Government would finance (1) an exodus of up to 1,500,000 Negro families from South to North; (2) a shift of Northern white people to Dixie to take their places.

Senator Russell (D., Ga.) made the proposal, coupling it with an attack on the Truman civil rights plan, which calls for Federal laws against lynching and the poll tax, and against discrimination in employment and on interstate transportation facilities.

Serious Action Doubted

The immediate reaction on Capitol Hill was that Russell had little hope of serious action on his plan, though he told reporters he expected most Southern Senators to support it. His aim was believed to be to throw down the gauntlet against what he called "Northern interference" with the South.

In New York, Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, described Russell's measure as "purely a gesture." He said the rights of Negroes should be protected in Georgia as in the North.

The Georgian called for an initial appropriation of 500 million dollars to finance the program through the rest of fiscal 1949, ending next June 30. Thereafter, he said, it would cost one billion dollars for each of the next four fiscal years.

In a speech on the Senate floor, Russell told his colleagues:

"The majority of the people in the South believe in their present social order based on segregation.

"They abhor the idea of solving the racial problem by amalgamation. They consider this to be mongrelization of both races and they are unalterably opposed to such a solution."

World 'Equalize' Problem

Russell contended that if Northerners are determined to force their views on the South, then "common fairness would demand that they assist in equalizing our racial problem with that of the rest of the Nation."

Russell's bill would set up a voluntary racial "relocation" commission as an independent Federal agency. The program would not apply to any State that did not agree to it.

Russell proposed that the commission would have authority:

1. To make or insure loans to help pay transportation and living costs, and to help getting relocated persons jobs.

2. To provide suitable transportation, subsistence and housing for persons assisted. Outright grants of money would be provided if necessary.

3. To make loans not exceeding $10,000 to employers for each assisted person given a job.

Sterilization To Be Decided By Woman

Los Angeles, Jan. 27 (AP).—Mrs. Georgette Brucks, confessed slayer of her 7-month-old baby, will decide whether she submits to a sterilization operation.

The judge who sentenced her made that plain today.

As one of the conditions of six years' probation, the 21-year-old common law wife of a truck driver agreed to submit to the operation that would deprive her of motherhood. She will be transferred to a hospital for the birth of her fourth child soon.

Her lawyer told Superior Judge Thomas L. Ambrose she was willing to place her child, Donald, 20 months, and the unborn baby, for adoption.

Judge Ambrose explained sterilization was not his idea, but Mrs. Brucks' and her lawyer's.

Dr. Marcus Crahan, county jail physician, said he and Judge Ambrose had agreed there were no provisions in the California statutes for the operation to be performed in a State hospital, by State surgeons, at State expense.

Radar Spotted Tanker Nine Miles Away

New York, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—The radarman on the ill-fated Coast Guard icebreaker Eastwind spotted a large oil tanker approaching on the radar screen and warned the officer of the watch, he testified today.

The collision between the Eastwind and the Gulfstream could have been averted, it was brought out, but instead the icebreaker held its course and the ship collided, fatally injuring 13 coast guardsmen.

A board of inquiry heard Radarman William F. Gessinger, 23, Pitcairn, Pa., testify his equipment picked up the tanker when it was 9 miles away. His radar was working perfectly, he said.

"There never was a question in my mind that the target was anything but a ship."

He testified that he reported to Lieut. Roland H. Estey, jr., officer on watch, that "the range is closing fast." He said Estey replied, "Aye, aye."

A few seconds later, Gessinger said, he heard the Gulfstream's foghorn and saw white lights but no colored running lights.

Estey testified yesterday he changed course when the radar object was some 5 miles away. But later he decided the radar apparatus was "deranged" and decided to trust to his eyesight.

Luncheon Speaker

George W. Cunningham, acting commissioner of the Bureau of Narcotics, Treasury Department, will speak at today's luncheon at 12:30 p. m. at the Almas Temple Club, 1315 K st. nw.

Posture Expert Deplores False Modesty of Women With Busts

Chicago, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—A girl who can wear sweaters should be proud she is built that way, an orthopaedic surgeon said today.

Dr. Charles M. Goff of Hartford, Conn., said he'll have none of this false modesty from women with bosoms.

"It's their God-given right," he said, "and they should be proud of it."

Dr. Goff is a member of the posture committee of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons which is in session here. One of his chief worries, he said, is the esteem American women are giving to the flat-chested figure.

"It's awful," he said. "There's a growing impression that the thin flat-chested women are what men want—and that's not true."

Actually, he warned, girls who try to look flat-chested can grow up with all sort of inhibitions They'll have trouble with their husbands, too, he added.

Dr. Goff said that the women who model clothes are setting the bad example.

"These fashion models go around with their stomachs pushed out and their chest caved in," he said.

"The models are an especially bad influence on teenagers," he said.

"At their ages, those poses are having a life-long detrimental effect on their figures."

Frigidaire Automatic WASHER COMES TO LACY'S

FRIGIDAIRE Live-Water Action

Washes clothes snowy white. Keeps clothes moving gently in a continuous flood of bubbly, soapy water that floats out dirt. Moves clothes constantly over and under and down deep in the tub where washing action is greatest, thoroughly washing each and every article of clothing.

FRIGIDAIRE Deep-Power Rinsing

Flushes clothes sunny bright. No yellowish, or gray clothes for you. The same gentle, effective Live-Water Action used in washing also rinses your clothes. Keeps clothes moving in sparkling, fresh water each time. Floods out stubborn soap and soil; keeps clothes sunny bright.

FRIGIDAIRE Rapid-Dry Spinning

Leaves clothes damp-dry; really light in weight. No heavy wet load to lift. In just one year's time this reduces the weight of clothes carried by more than a half a ton. Some things can be ironed right from the washer. Think of the saving in drying time.

All Porcelain Inside and Out

Only automatic washer on the market with this dazzling white finish inside and out. It is cigarette-proof (drop a lighted cigarette on it), stain-proof, grease-proof, scrape-proof, alcohol-proof, scratch and bump-proof. It will not rust or discolor. Just a damp cloth restores natural lustre.

Note these many other features:

- Vibration-free—no bolting down.
- Fully flexible operation. You may skip, shorten or lengthen any operation.
- Select-O-Dial is the brain center which you control and tells the washer what to do.
- Underwater Soap Distributor allows only pure, rich lively suds to touch clothes.
- Save time and effort. After you set the dial, your time is your own.
- Economical . . . current bill, laundry and dry-cleaning . . . all cut.
- So safe. There just are no hazards washing with the Frigidaire Automatic Washer.
- Measures: 36¾" high 25" wide and 25" installed depth.

Nothing to do now but SET THE DIAL ONCE!

1. It fills with wash-water of correct temperature—automatically.
2. It washes clothes clean in ten minutes—automatically.
3. It spins out soapy water—automatically.
4. It fills with rinse water of correct temperature—automatically.
5. It rinses clothes sunny bright—automatically.
6. It spins out rinse water—automatically.
7. It fills and rinses a second time—automatically.
8. It spins clothes dry—automatically.
9. It shuts itself off—automatically.

You're twice as sure with two great names . . .

West Union Weighs 29-Division Army

By Blockade

Production Curbed in Soviet Zone

Berlin, Jan. 27 (AP).—A German Communist leader acknowledged today the western counter blockade is slowing production in Russian-held Germany.

In a pep-talk to a Socialist Unity (Communist) Party conference, Deputy Chairman Walter Ulbricht said 1948 production, though making some gains, fell short of targets from 15 to 25 per cent in heavy industries.

Moscow-trained Ulbricht blamed the western allies for shutting off Ruhr coal, iron and steel.

The East German picture was in contrast to western Germany, which, aided by the European Recovery Program, increased its industrial production to 78 per cent of the 1936 level.

Ulbricht said that in many cases private enterprises made better showings than the socialized industries. Ulbricht charged management was guilty of "disinterest, sabotage and red tape."

London, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—The five countries in the Western European Alliance against communism are studying a plan to organize a first-line striking force of 29 divisions plus an armored brigade, airborne troops and fighter planes, well informed sources said tonight.

Foreign Ministers of the five countries — Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—opened a two-day meeting today on military and political plans.

It was reported that France would contribute 15 divisions to the initial striking force, Britain 5 and the three Benelux countries 3 each.

60 Divisions For War

Under the plan outlined, the initial force would be quickly expanded to 60 divisions in event of war.

Each country would be asked to make specific military or economic contributions and help man a defense line running from the Belgian coast to Switzerland.

While the ministers were meeting, Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvard M. Lange told his parliament that Norway, Denmark and Sweden would reach a showdown in Oslo Saturday on their part in European defense.

Review Ruhr Plans

The program of the meeting here includes:

1. An attempt to reach agreement on the extent of political unity in the western alliance or union.
2. A review of plans for the political and industrial revival of Germany, especially the Ruhr.
3. A discussion of simultaneous recognition of the government of Israel, probably this weekend.

Cripps Offers 6-Point Plan To Aid Trade

London, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said today European recovery depended on peace and high level economic activity, especially in the United States.

He laid down a six-point program for exporting more to dollar-countries and cutting imports from countries on the gold standard.

He said Britain must:

1. Build up its merchant marine.
2. Sell more oil in dollar markets.
3. Encourage the tourist trade.
4. Boost production in all lines one third above the prewar level.
5. Maintain exports at 50 per cent above 1938.
6. Increase agricultural production by 400 million dollars a year over that for 1947, so that it will be the highest in history.

Cripps made his statement in the Commons in discussing a bill on American aid and European payments.

In the entire year, he said, British exports were $1,800,000,000 (B) or 40 per cent above 1947. He said Britain had an adverse dollar gap of four billions.

Klansmen Stage 43-Car Parade In Tallahassee

Tallahassee, Fla., Jan. 27 (U.P.).—A 43-car procession of Ku Klux Klansmen whisked through Florida's capital city tonight, reportedly to mark the organization of a "klavern" here.

The lead automobile was a shiny, new station-wagon which bore an electrically-lighted cross on its front bumper. Two robed and hooded Klansmen sat on the front fenders and carried red and white Klan flags.

Two city policemen escorted the procession on motorcycles. Police Chief L. F. Prater said before the parade he had ordered the escort so "there would be no trouble."

However, John M. Taper, publisher of the Tallahassee Daily Democrat, the city's only newspaper, reported one unrobed Klansman had taken a camera slide away from him as he attempted to photograph the parade, but failed to get the actual photographic plate.

Red-Romania Pact Ends Expansion Plan

Moscow, Jan. 27 (NYHT).—With the announcement today of an agreement to boost Soviet trade with Romania by 150 per cent, the Soviet Union has now concluded expanded trade pacts with all five eastern European countries which joined its Council of Mutual Economic Assistance—the eastern counterpart of the Western Marshall Plan.

The Soviet agreement with Romania provides that each country will supply the other with goods valued at 465 million rubles (93 million dollars), said to be two and one half times the 1948 volume.

Soviet trade with Hungary in 1949 is scheduled to increase 200 per cent; Czechoslovakia, 45 per cent; Bulgaria, 20 per cent, and Poland, 35 per cent.

Bradley Asks Boost In Land Force Limit

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Gen. Omar Bradley asked Congress yesterday to adopt a "comprehensive military policy" for the Nation—to permit "sound long-range security planning" and a quick expansion of the Army in an emergency.

Gen. Bradley

The Army Chief of Staff appeared with Secretary Kenneth Royall and other Army chiefs before the House Armed Services Committee in support of a new basic defense law.

It would authorize maximum peacetime land forces totaling 2,567,000 officers and men—837,000 in the Regular Army, 750,000 in the National Guard and 980,000 in the Reserves.

Both officials, however, firmly supported President Truman's cutback military budget for next year, which calls for an active Army of 677,000 men and "balanced" sea and air forces.

"We think an 837,000-man Army is the size needed under the present situation," said Royall. "But we also understand that consideration must be given to other factors, such as the soundness of our national economy and our solvency."

Their testimony set the stage for the appearance of Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF chief of staff, before the same group, probably this morning.

Congressmen plan to ask them—as they did Royall and Bradley—whether they consider the 1950 defense budget adequate. President Truman recommended funds to support only 48 Air Force groups, instead of the 70 favored by many members of Congress.

The answers of Symington and Vandenberg may determine whether Capitol Hill will witness an air power fight similar to that of last year.

The bill actually before the committee is merely an "authorization" measure, setting the maximum strength of the Army at 837,000 men and the Air Force at 502,000 men and 70 groups. (A comparable bill was passed for the Navy three years ago.) It is backed by the Administration.

But Congressmen are expected to press Symington and Vandenberg for recommendations "on whether or not they should boost Air Force appropriations to expand to 70 groups now.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.), who favors such an expansion, and other members quizzed Bradley yesterday on the need for a larger Army and Air Force.

Is an Army of 677,000 men adequate to support a 70-group Air Force?

"We'd have to change our present strategic concept as to the way we should carry on a war," replied Bradley.

Elaborating, he said that a 70-group Air Force would not be "fully effective" without an Army of 837,000 men. The Army would not be able to seize, protect and supply the overseas bases such an air arm would need, Bradley explained. Providing the additional Army service troops required to support the additional USAF groups would cut further into the Army's available combat troops, he added.

"Then, I take it, with only 677,000 men you would be able to provide the logistics for a 70-group Air Force, but would be unable to provide an offensive force," returned Vinson.

Bradley agreed, and added that the Army also would be unable to adequately protect some overseas air bases.

Royall also told the committee that he believed it would not be necessary to draft anyone in the immediate future, but that the Army considered that the draft law should be kept on the books. He said he favored extending it indefinitely.

"Our best estimate of the world situation does not indicate that war is imminent," he declared. "However, war is at least a possibility. And there appears little likelihood that for a number of years to come we will be free of an international situation fraught with danger and subject to marked fluctuations."

Humphrey Sees War Danger in Far East Crisis

New York, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), advised Americans tonight to keep a wary eye on the Far East crisis lest it become the powder keg of another world war.

Humphrey, acting chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, addressed the first annual Roosevelt Day dinner sponsored by ADA. Similar diners are being held in 16 cities to provide a "rallying point" for continuation of the principles of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt and development of President Truman's "Fair Deal."

Humphrey called on "liberals in this country to look to developments in the Asiatic area as pivots for world chaos. He asked them to "underwrite" the Indonesian republic and said they could take heart from the recent conference of Asiatic and African countries at New Delhi.

As for the United States, he would assure "to all persons the basic security that had its foundation in the New Deal and that must be continued in the "Fair Deal," he said.

Soviet Assails U. S. Action To Restore Japan's Economy

By The Associated Press

Russia yesterday assailed new measures ordered by the United States to restore Japan's economy, and demanded that the steps be reviewed by all the wartime Pacific allies.

Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin charged the United States with by-passing the 11-nation Far Eastern Commission when the measures were ordered into effect last month.

After Panyushkin presented his demand at a closed door session of the commission, the State Department countered quickly with a defense of the order and the way it was put into effect. Officials noted the order had been on file with the commission for six weeks and that it was subject to review at any time.

There was no immediate action by the commission, although the matter could be considered at a later meeting.

The Soviet complaint was directed at an order by the State and Army Departments to Gen. Douglas MacArthur to require the Japanese government to tighten its price, wage and other controls. The stated object was to halt inflation and increase exports.

The order went out as an "interim directive," which the United States is empowered to issue, before the commission was formally notified on December 11.

Panyushkin criticized this as an "evasion" and charged that the directive itself was in "direct contradiction" to existing policies of the commission about demilitarizing the Japanese.

Renewing a frequent charge by Moscow, Panyushkin asserted that "large concerns" that assisted in Japanese wartime aggression "still continue to exist and occupy a dominant position in the economy of Japan." He also complained that the order to MacArthur contained no mention of the commission's stated policy t "strengthen the democratic forces in Japan."

Panyushkin read the complaint to the commission, then immediately made it public.

Panyushkin asserted that the American authority to issue tentative directives to MacArthur does not permit actions independent of the other allies, and "which touch upon the vital interests of the Japanese people" and the other allies.

Ban on Front Seat Television Being Drafted for District

Front seat television will be prohibited under terms of a traffic regulation now being drafted for consideration by the District Commissioners, it was learned last night.

Traffic Director Gorge E. Kenepp ha sasked the city heads to amend the regulations so as to ban installation of television screens where drivers may see them. They turned the matter over to Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, who is preparing the regulation.

Yesterday, too, the Maryland House of Delegates passed a bill to the same effect without debate and forwarded it to the Senate. The bill was proposed by Delegate Julian P. King (R., Mont.), Leroy W. Preston (D., Balt. Fifth) and Horace Whitworth (R., Alleg.).

Under the Free State bill, it would be permissible to place the television screen anywhere in the car out of the driver's sight.

The National Highway Users Conference disclosed yesterday that six other States are considering similar legislation. They are California, Connecticut, Indian, Massachusetts, New York and Ohio.

Arctic Bomb Tests Planned By Air Force in February

The Air Force will begin Arctic tests of radio-controlled bombs and V-1 flying buzz bombs in Alaska next month.

It announced yesterday that tests at Ladd Air Base will involve use of the 12,000-pound "Tarzon," the 1000-pound "Razon," and the American model of the buzz bomb used by the Germans against London in World War II.

The "Tarzon" and the "Razon" are dropped from planes in the conventional manner and are classed as "free falling." However, through radio devices operating the fins, their fall can be affected and the bomb steered toward a target.

The buzz bomb is powered, has rudimentary wings and can be launched from ground installations, or from a plane, and flies to its target.

The Air Force said that in the Alaska tests the radio-controlled bombs will be dropped from B-29 bombers and the buzz will be launched from the superfortresses.

The announcement said:

"Information gained in the tests will be used to develop techniques for cold-weather operation of the radio-controlled bombs and the JB-2 (the buzz bomb) and may indicate modifications that would increase their effectiveness in the Arctic."

The Air Force also is known to have conducted Alaskan winter exepriments in the past with "homing" guided missles. One of these was a bomb designed to seek out a heat-emitting target, such as a steel factory.

Greek Reds' Peace Terms Reported

China's Defense Against Reds

Associated Press WIREPHO

FIGHTING LINE — Chinese sources report that the weakening of the present Nationalist defense line (A) will result in troops being moved into another line (B) from Hangchow to Wuchang—a naturally strong mountainous position. It would protect Formosa (C), Chiang Kai-shek's "private fortress," and Canton (D), which will become the capital of China, February 3. Shaded area is in Chinese Communists' hands his official duties as commander there "during the lull in peace negotiations."

NankingFlight Now a Panic

This deepened the pessimism in Nanking over the chances of settling with the Communists.

[The United Press said acting President Li Tsung-Jen dispatched a second special envoy to Peiping today with a desperate plea to the Communists to begin peace talks. But Red demands had hardened and peace prospects plunged to a new low.

[Li sent Hui Chi-han to Peiping to see Communist Gen. Yen Chien-ying and ask for talks with Red leaders Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai.

[Li sent one personal emissary to Peiping on Tuesday, Liu Chung-hua, who has been holding secret conferences with Communist leaders in the Communist-held city.]

Steadily advancing on Nanking were 200,000 Communist troops whose forward patrols at dawn today engaged the handful of Nationalist defenders in the Red Clay hills outside Pucheng, last government outpost two miles from the Yangtze River opposite Nanking.

Roscoe Pound Urges U. S. Aid for China

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—Dr. Roscoe Pound, dean emeritus of Harvard University law school, appealed tonight for stronger American support for China's "constitutional government."

The United States, he said, can't afford to abandon Chiang Kai-shek's government — or even its remnants—because of subsequent demoralizing affects upon other Communist-threatened areas of the world.

Dr. Pound, a former adviser to China's Ministry of Justice for two years, was sharply critical of United States Far Eastern policy in an address at the Women's National Republican Club.

U. S. Silent On Attaches' Trip to Spain

London, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—United States Embassy officials declined today to discuss yesterday's trip to Madrid, Spain, by American military, naval and air attaches from London and Moscow.

Maj. Gen. John W. Leonard, American military attache in London, Commodore Tully Shelley, naval attache, and Col. John B. Ackerman, of the Air Force, arrived in Madrid yesterday by military plane from Britain. They were accompanied by their wives.

Simultaneously, Brig. Gen. Russell Randall, air attache at the American Embassy in Moscow, and Capt. Harold C. Medvedeff, assistant military attache in Moscow, arrived by military plane from Rome.

It was reported earlier the Americans were expected to contact Spanish military authorities and possibly visit Generalissimo Franco.

London, Jan. 27 (AP).—The radio of Greece's Communist guerillas broadcast peace proposals today. It said the self-styled government of Communist Leader Markos Vafiades was ready to send representatives to Athens immediately if the national Greek government accepts the proposals.

Vafiades' regime, the rebel radio said, wants "speedy reestablishment of peace." The broadcast listed these conditions:

1. "That all foreign military forces and foreign missions leave Greece. That all foreign intervention cease. That all treaties violating Greece's independence be annulled."

2. "That an armistice be declared immediately (with) opposing armies to remain in their present positions."

3. "That an unrestricted general amnesty for political prisoners be declared immediately."

4. "That all political and trade union freedoms be reestablished and that real equality be guaranteed to national minorities."

5. "That negotiations be opened immediately with the aim of forming a government acceptable to both sides. And that the new government carry out the above proposals and hold general elections within two months for the people to decide whatever government and order they desire."

Rhodes Peace Talks Seen Near Collapse

Rhodes, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—An atmosphere of deepest pessimism settled over the Israel-Egypt armistice negotiations tonight and sources close to Palestine Mediator Ralph J. Bunche intimated they might be on the brink of collapse.

"We are planning to leave for Israel soon," an Israeli source said. "We cannot lose more time here."

Reliable informants reported Israel's attitude had stiffened.

The sticking point was the demarkation line to be established in southern Palestine between the two armies. It was said the Israelis demanded complete Egyptian withdrawal from Palestine.

Election May Bring Peace Settlement

Tel Aviv, Jan. 27 (NYHT).—An early settlement of the Palestinian war appeared likely today in the opinion of responsible Israeli government sources as a result of Tuesday's general election.

Victory of Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's Mapai Labor Party which campaigned upon a peace platform was expected by government sources to speed agreement between Israel and Egypt possibly within 48 hours.

As the counting of soldier ballots began Mapai leaders estimated they would get from 45 to 50 seats in the 120-member constituent assembly.

Mapai's 34.4 per cent tally with two thirds of the ballots tabulated exceeds the combined total of its two principal rivals—the pro-Russian Mapam Labor Party and the right-wing Heruth or Freedom Movement.

London Hears

Labor Rebels To Continue Bevin Fight

London, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Labor Party rebels who abstained from a confidence vote in the government's Palestine policy have written Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee a defiant letter implying they intend to intensify their opposition to Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, reliable sources reported tonight.

Political quarters said that as the result of its unpleasantly close vote of confidence the government would speed up recognition of Israel and its attempt to get in line with United States policy on the entire Middle East.

It is understood the government now has set this weekend as the deadline for a recognition announcement and expects that Australia, New Zealand, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg will announce recognition simultaneously.

Conservative newspapers seized with glee on the fact the government, with an overwhelming Commons majority, was able to get only a 283-193 confidence vote.

U. N. Council Defers Vote On Indonesia

Lake Success, Jan. 27 (NYHT).—A United Nations Security Council vote on the American-sponsored four-power resolution on Indonesia was again deferred today as delegates of Indonesia, Austria, Burma, Belgium, Canada, China and the United States made final statements about the controversial proposal.

Four minor amendments were submitted by the sponsors. But Indonesian and Burmese speakers indicated that the resolution will not be acceptable to Asiatic nations so long as the question of the withdrawal of Dutch troops is left undefined. The council will reconvene at 3 p. m. Friday to hear a Dutch statement and to vote on the amended resolution.

Chile Orders Release of 700 Communists

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—More than 700 Communists were ordered released today from prison camps throughout Chile.

A few hours earlier, the government voluntarily gave up all special powers to control subversive activities by the outlawed Communist party. These included elimination of Communists from public office.

An official announcement said the government "has full confidence that Chilean democratic forces, through their constructive action, have erected an unbreachable dike against any disruptive attempt by international communism in our country."

An anti-red campaign was launched nearly a year ago, after Chile broke diplomatic ties with Russia, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia and charged that Russia had fostered a series of revolutionary strikes designed to disrupt vital supplies of copper and nitrate for the United States.

President Gonzales said the action would permit the holding of congressional elections March 6 in full freedom.

Air Force Gets Suspects In Farnsworth Murder

Guam, Jan. 27 (AP).—The secretary of the Governor of Guam said today the Secretary of Navy had directed the Governor to hand over the Ruth Farnsworth murder suspects to the Air Force for prosecution. He said no action had yet been taken.

Use of a lie detector led to charges against Sergt. Robert W. Burns, 32, of Spokane, Wash.; and Pvts. Calvin, 26, and Herman T. Denis, 20, half-brothers from Frederick, Md., and Indianapolis, Ind., respectively.

Rebel Warfare On Increase, Burma Reports

Rangoon, Burma, Jan. 27 (AP).—Rebel warfare increased on widening fronts today. Rangoon was isolated by cutting of the railway to Mandalay.

A strong rebel force attacked the rail center of Toungoo, 180 miles from Rangoon at dawn.

Parliament will meet Monday in its final preelection session.

The press is campaigning for a coalition government to meet the civil war crisis which has troubled Burma since she became independent from Britain a year ago.

The government announced preparations are under way for a full-scale attack on Karen rebels on the Siam border.

3 Fliers Say 'Right' to Sally's Report on Them

In at least three of her "Midge at the Mike" wartime broadcasts from Germany, Axis Sally was deadly accurate in her description of three wounded American fliers.

Called last night by The Washington Post, Tech. Sergt. Louis C. Koch of Milwaukee, Wisc., Lieut. Walter Robert O'Sullivan of Narberth, Pa., and Lieut. William H. Lupole of Johnsonburg, Pa., corroborated in detail the wounds the broadcaster said they had received.

Furthermore, all three men reported that their families had been sent hundreds of postcards from Americans who had heard the broadcasts from Germany.

All three men were returned on the SS Gripsholm from Germany in February, 1945.

September, 1944, Broadcast

In a broadcast recorded on September 19, 1944, Axis Sally had this to say about Lieutenant Lupole:

"How little did she (his mother) ever dream that she'd be asked to sacrifice him for Roosevelt and his Jewish cohorts. Well . . . he's going to remember the American Government for the rest of his life for his right leg had to be amputated below the knee and the ankle bone in his left leg was broken . . . Well, Mrs. Lupole, you've seen nothing of this war. You only read Jewish propaganda in your newspaper."

Last night, Lieut. Lupole said he had lost his right leg below the knee and that his left ankle had been broken when he was shot down over Germany.

But he was more interested in talking about his new wife, newer son, and his job with the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

His wife and mother said they had received many letters from Americans who had heard the broadcast about him.

Right Arm Fractured

Koch likewise said Axis Sally described his wounds exactly.

She said he had suffered a "crushing fracture of the right arm which was so bad the doctors had to amputate part of the arm."

He said "it was a lot of propaganda, but she was right at least once."

Describing the wounds received by Lieut. Sullivan, Axis Sally said a bullet had fractured his right leg above the knee and that he would have to be in the hospital five or six months.

Last night he said a bullet had fractured his right hip bone, and that he had spent at least six months in German hospitals. He has married since the war and has two children.

An interested spectator at Miss Mildred Gillars' trial yesterday was Hayward H. Cook, former technician fifth grade in a field artillery unit attached to the Thirty-fourth Division, now a truckman at 1014 N. Irving st., Arlington.

"We used to hear those broadcasts often at the Anzio beachhead," Cook reminisced. "She had a nice, young voice. I always figured she was younger than Miss Gillars."

How did the broadcasts affect morale?

"Well, some of the fellows got a little discouraged but it didn't last long. Her program had some pretty good music and she often predicted attacks in advance."

Voice From Past Haunts Axis Sally

the American Expeditionary Forces . . . with their "Home, Sweet Home" program.

"Well, kids, you know I'd like to say to you "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag," but I know that that little old kit bag is much too small to hold all the trouble you kids have got. But maybe for the next half hour we've got some music that will help you forget them a little bit . . ."

(There followed a short interval of dance music.)

The Voice continued: ". . . I think now it's Jack's turn. He's got the moments for you, blue moments that would only disappear if you could have honey around. Well, maybe you'll be lucky enough one day. You never can tell."

(There followed a song "Blue Moments" with a crooner emphasizing the theme "If you're loving someone else . . ."

Then the Voice again: "Well I'm afraid she'll never surrender 'till you kids surrender. Well, how about it? It's not a bad idea really. After all you're fighting—it's a tough fight, but there's no getting the Germans down. You've been trying for a long, long time now and you remember what was told to you before you went to Africa; that it would be a walkaway for you boys. Well, was it. Doesn't look that way . . . forces . . . better hold tight . . .

(playing of song "Hold Tight.")

The Voice: ". . . Well, I'm pretty sure that the forces did all they could to hold tight, but with all the opposition you can't blame them if they did slide a lot and still are doing plenty of slipping, huh?. . ."

(dance music)

The Voice: "Gee, I'm afraid, Dick (Dick had been introduced as the band leader) you'll be giving them . . . some very bad ideas. They'll just get all kind of woozy and would like to throw down those little old guns and toddle off home. Well, that would be the right thing for them to do after all because they're certainly not making any headway in the sector right now . . . Gee, I'd never have a war if I could do anything to prevent it and I think most women are like that.

"Well maybe not Dorothy Thompson (newspaper columnist), I seem to remember she once said: 'I'd willingly sacrifice a million American boys on foreign battlefields.'" Well, Miss Thompson, if you should be listening in tonight, well, I think you, or your ilk at least, have accomplished that little feat, haven't you? And the good work is still going on. Well, a sweet little blonde girl like Jill here, our little glamour girl and the darling of the studio, well she knows just what life's all about, and she wouldn't have guns and all of these sorts of (pause) a (pause) bad, naughty things, no, sir—not Jill. She says 'I don't need a million dollars to make my dreams come true.' Well, kids, if you'd only stick to the good, old primitive things, they're the best in life. . . ."

(There followed more music of the torch variety and more monologue.)

Voice: "Hi fellows, I'm afraid you're yearning pretty (pause) a great deal (pause) for someone else but I just wonder if she isn't sort of running around with one of the 4-Fs way back home and you know just as well as I do that if the cases were reversed you wouldn't go on waiting year after year either, would you? . . ."

In another broadcast intercepted on May 18, 1943, and directed to 'American mothers, wives and sweethearts," the Voice, silky as it spoke of "sitting out in the old back porch in a sweet old rocking chair listening to the birds at twighlight . . ." grew hard and bitter as it referred to "Roosevelt and all of his 'kike' friends . . ."

The Voice, after saying "This is Berlin calling . . ." continued "And I'd like to say, girls, that when Berlin calls it pays to listen in because there's an American girl sitting at the microphone every Tuesday evening at the same time with a few words of truth to her countrywomen back home . . ."

Asserting that America was fighting the war for the Jews and the British, the Voice stated: "I love America but I do not love Roosevelt and all of his 'kike' boy friends who have thrown us into this awful turmoil . . ."

(The recording included the plaintive strains of the German war song Lily Marlene).

The other three recordings also with the Voice identified as "Midge," contained alleged reports on the condition of American soldiers in German hospitals.

The Voice oozed ostensible sympathy as it delivered messages to kinfolk. At times it seemed to put undue emphasis on phrases like "got his left leg crushed . . ." Interspersed were comments such as "What do you suppose they'll think in later years when there are no jobs for crippies?"

Earlier, Hans Winzen, a special agent during the war for the Army Counter Intelligence Corps, described how he removed seven records from a locker near Miss Gillar's Berlin apartment. He said he had been let in by the apartment superintendent.

The defendant followed him to the stand and declared there was "no superintendent in any house on the entire street" but admitting she had left Berlin sometime before Winzen paid his visit.

Her short testimony was heard as part of the argument over admission of the records and with the jury excused.

Adalbert Houben, former German radio official, returned to the stand after testifying Wednesday.

He told of Miss Gillars refusing to appear on a program with an American flyer, Lieut. Martin Monti, recently convicted of treason, because he "was a deserter or a spy."

The trial was recessed until Monday at 10 a. m. on agreement of counsel for both sides who wished time to prepare additional data. Associated with Kelley are Justice Department Attorneys Noel Story and Frank Cunningham.

Chicken Casserole
RECIPE: Place thin slices of cooked chicken in greased casseroles. Add cooked or canned asparagus tips. Cover with cheese sauce, place 4" from broiler heat until sauce browns and bubbles. For sauce: Melt 4 tbs. butter or margarine, stir in 4 tbs. flour, 1 tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper and 1 tsp. dry mustard. Add 2 cups hot milk, stirring over low heat until sauce thickens and boils. Add 2 cups grated cheese, stir until melted. Add 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce.

Brazil Utility Gets Loan of 75 Million

The World Bank yesterday granted a 75-million-dollar loan to the Brazilian Traction, Light & Power Co., Ltd., for hydroelectric power and telephone installations in the Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro areas.

This is the biggest development loan the bank has ever made. Previous loans of this type have been of 34 million dollars for electric power in Mexico and of 16 million of hydroelectric and agricultural development in Chile.

A novel feature of the Brazilian loan is that eight million dollars of the total can be paid in Canadian dollars and the equivalent of two million dollars in British pounds sterling if the Brazilian company wants to buy supplies in Canada or Great Britain.

This follows a plea made by President John J. McCloy to the bank's governors when they met here last September. At that time, McCloy reminded them that the bank held an assortment of local currencies, representing a part of each member nation's subscription, and that it would be useful if these currencies as well as dollars could be lent.

Belgium had already made two million dollars' worth of francs available for this purpose. Now that Canada and the United Kingdom have followed suit, the bank said yesterday that it hoped still other countries would permit use of their currencies, "thereby broadening the international character of the bank's operations."

The present loan will be used in the two most populous and highly industrialized parts of Brazil. Although it goes to a private company, incorporated in Canada, it is guaranteed by the Brazilian government. It runs for 25 years, and bears 3½ per cent interest.

Of Greek Church

Athenagoras Is Enthroned As Patriarch

Istanbul, Turkey, Jan. 27 (AP).—An American citizen, by adoption, was enthroned today as Patriarch of the Greek Orthodox Church's 130 million members.

Athenagoras I, tall and bearded former Archbishop of the Western Hemisphere, became the 268th spiritual leader of the church.

Born in Turkey 62 years ago, he became a naturalized United States citizen in 1938. Now he becomes a citizen of Turkey.

His position corresponds approximately to that of the Pope of the Roman Catholic Church.

Athenagoras said he was ascending the throne at "the most critical period in the history of the church," which goes back 1000 years.

He arrived here only last night from New York in a special plane, which he said was provided by "my great friend, President Truman."

He succeeds Maximos V, who resigned last month because of illness.

Russia and most other east European nations, where the majority of orthodox church members live, failed to send diplomatic representatives. The lone exception was Czechoslovakia. The Russian church claims a 500-year old administrative independence.

Radio Parley Collapse Looms

Mexico City, Jan. 27 (AP).—Soviet Russia's sharp criticisms threatened to break up the World Radio Conference today.

The conference president and vice president, both Mexicans, resigned after a stormy session lasting into the early hours of the morning. The Soviet bloc of 11 nations had refused to join in a vote of confidence in their management.

A committee, including the U. S. S. R. and Romania, was named to ask the Mexicans to forgive and come back, but the group failed to find them.

Belgium has taken over the conference presidency temporarily.

The World High Frequency Broadcasting Conference began here last October to try to work out a plan for sharing the eight crowded short-wave broadcast bands between 6 and 26 megacycles. It is considering two plans, one offered by Russia and the other by the United States. Earlier the delegates of the Soviet bloc walked out.

Coop Gets REA Loan

The Rural Electrification Administration yesterday granted a $1,260,000 loan to the Shenandoah Valley Electric Cooperative, Dayton, Va. The money will be used to build 202 miles of distribution lines to serve 1074 rural consumers and to purchase generating facilities.

Report on Vishinsky

Prague, Jan. 27 (AP).—Rumors circulated today that Andrei Vishinsky, Russian deputy foreign minister, is trouble shooting in Czechoslovakia. The report could not be confirmed.

French to Censor Comic Books

Paris, Jan. 27 (AP).—The French National Assembly today hammered out a law to bring children's comic books and comic strips under official scrutiny.

The law, covering all publications for children or adolescents, prohibits all pictures, texts or sketches which portray crime, misconduct, gangsterism or immorality in a favorable or attractive light.

It sets up a morals censorship commission to notify officials of any supposed violation. Material imported into France must first obtain commission approval.

The legislation was prompted by the recent flood of so-called comic books, French and foreign, on the newsstands.

Some of these depict bandits and crime gang adventures. Others feature thinly clad females.

Communist deputies attacked imported American comics which they said were corrupting French youth.

Deputies from other parties retorted that French comic strips carried in Communist publications were as bad or worse than the imported ones.

British Ship to Return Soon to Rosyth

London, Jan. 27 (AP).—The Admiralty said tonight the battleship Royal Sovereign, loaned to Russia in 1944, would arrive at Rosyth, Scotland, February 3 from Murmansk.

Sailing of the Royal Sovereign from Russia is a signal for the sailing of the Italian battleship Guilio Cesare from Augusta, Sicily, to Odessaa, Russia. The Guilio Cesare is one of the units of the Italian fleet turned over to Russia by peace treaty.

Price Issue Stalls Wheat Conference

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The 53-nation International Wheat Conference reached the main point of disagreement in such meetings—the question of prices—on the morning of its second day yesterday.

The nations with wheat for export lined up for a $2 maximum—the same amount the agreement reached last year provided.

In fact the American spokesman, Albert J. Loveland, Undersecretary of Agriculture, told the conference that retention of the $2 maximum and a sliding minimum ($1.50 to $1.10 a bushel over five years) would cost this country "a great amount of money."

"I call your attention to the fact," he said, "that the President's budget for the next fiscal year, as presented to Congress, provides, as a rough estimate, for 58 million dollars to cover the anticipated loss to our Treasury under a wheat agreement providing for a $2 maximum price."

Canada and Australia, other exporters, sounded the same note. Lined up against them was a solid group of importing nations, demanding that due to greater supplies than last year, the prices should be less.

Speaking for the importers were United Kingdom, the Netherlands, Italy, Lebanon, Brazil, India and Denmark.

Most of the importing nations also urged that the agreement be limited to four years instead of five—the length of the previous contract.

Russia will make known in the next few days, what part it will play in any world wheat agreement, its chairman told the wheat conference in closed session yesterday. This was the Soviet's first indication of a willingness to participate in an international wheat agreement.

France sprang a surprise by indicating that instead of being an importer of wheat in 1949, it may have wheat to sell. Some observers saw in this statement an effort by France to smoke out plans of other countries, particularly Russia and other eastern European countries on their attitudes towards a multilateral wheat agreement.

The conference voted to set up a working party to determine the quantities to be covered by a new agreement. With three exporting countries, Australia, Canada and the United States taking part last year, the agreement covered 500 million bushels of wheat in world trade. This year the other two great exporting countries, Argentina and Russia, are also participating. The number of importing countries that signed last year's agreement—which didn't become effective because the United States refused to ratify it—was 33. Late arrivals yesterday increased the number of importing nations this year to 48—virtually all important buyers in the world market.

This year from 1200 to 1400 million bushels of wheat will move in world trade.

The working party to consider quantities included all the exporters except Argentina — Russia, United States, Australia and Canada—and the following importers: India, Netherlands, United Kingdom, Belgium, Italy, Egypt, Brazil and France. The group will meet today.

The exclusion of Argentina from the list occasioned much discussion. One report was that changes in the Food Ministry in Buenos Aires might affect the plans of that country. Another report was that a new delegation from Argentina may arrive soon.

The conference also voted to refer the question of the duration of the agreement and prices to the steering committee chosen Wednesday. The United States has two representatives on that group—Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, ex officio member because of his position as conference chairman, and one other.

Red-Head Beauty Beaten to Death

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MRS. ANNE STEWART CATHER, 23-year-old red-haired beauty contest winner, was found hammered to death in her boarding house room in Sacramento, Calif., and police yesterday were questioning her husband, Fred Cather, 28-year-old draftsman. She was nude except for a shower cap, which hid massive wounds. A claw hammer was left in a clothes closet inches of snow intermittently during the winter and no provision was made for the record snows.

Humans, too, were in trouble because of the storms. The Red Cross allocated a preliminary $250,000 in the stricken area and mobilized its relief forces to bring food, fuel and medical care to snowbound farmers, ranchers and communities. Planes and "weasels" are being used to get food to hundreds of families. An emergency air evacuation service for the ill and injured is being operated. A unique system of ground signals described in leaflets dropped by Red Cross planes is being used to communicate needs of snowbound residents.

New snow reached a depth of 7 inches at Omaha by early evening and may be 10 inches by morning. New drifts were blocking highways in areas where old drifts already reached rooftops.

An estimated two million sheep were endangered in the area. Governor Peterson estimated that 1,684,000 cattle, valued at 370 million dollars were menaced in the 29-county disaster area in Nebraska alone.

The new storms grounded all haylift planes at Lowry Field Denver, and slowed operations in the main distress area of Nevada.

In Washington, President Truman directed Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming to draft a 10 million dollar general disaster relief act. The money would enable him to provide for disasters without going to Congress for funds.

N. Y. Star, PM Successor, To Fold Today

New York, Jan. 27 (NYHT).—"The New York Star" will cease publication with Friday's issue. In a notice on the front page tonight the management said its attempt to "publish a liberal newspaper" for "men and women who believe in the future of America" had failed because it was unable to secure financial backing.

The notice was signed by Bartley C. Crum, publisher, and Joseph Barnes, editor, who took over the old PM on June 23, 1948, from Marshall Field 3d. Like PM, which first appeared on June 18, 1940, the new paper found it impossible to become self-supporting.

Crum and Barnes said that though the paper had grown in circulation and advertising in the past seven months no one was willing to put up the money to keep it alive.

When Field turned the deficit-ridden PM over to the present management, PM's circulation had sunk to 105,000 daily. Today it was said "the Star's circulation was up to 140,000 daily and the week" following the election of President Truman it had spurted to 158,000. The Star was the only New York daily to support Mr. Truman.

Crum is a San Francisco lawyer, and Barnes was foreign editor of the New York Herald Tribune.

The staff of 408, with 100 editorial employes was stunned. The guild contract provides severance pay.

Crum and Barnes bought the paper after Clinton O. McKinnon of San Diego, withdrew an offer because of a dispute with the American Newspaper Guild (CIO). McKinnon is now a Congressman.

Thomas J. Murphy, executive vice president of the New York local of the guild, said it was hoped the announcement would bring forth prospective buyers.

Murphy said he understood the physical assets would revert to Field.

Washington Staff Of N. Y. Star Named

Members of the New York Star's Washington Bureau are Willard Shelton, bureau chief; Alexander H. Uhl, Eleanor Morehead, Mrs. Beatrice Sharpe, secretary, and I. F. Stone, Washington columnist. Another newsman, Guy Richards, divided his time between Washington and New York.

Washington staff members did not know definitely until 5 p. m. yesterday that the Star was closing its doors, although they were aware the newspaper was having financial difficulty.

Group Votes Further Scarce Goods Control

The House Banking Committee voted unanimously yesterday to extend until September 30 President Truman's power to negotiate voluntary agreements with industry for the allocation of scarce materials.

The anti-inflation measure was approved Wednesday by the Senate Banking Committee. The present law, passed by the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress, is scheduled to expire February 28.

The House committee approved the extension after Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer indorsed it pending submission of President Truman's broader stabilization program. The Administration has used the authority chiefly to allocate steel to hard-pressed industries.

Representative Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.), former committee chairman, suggested that success of the voluntary program might make standby compulsory controls unnecessary. But Sawyer said standby price and wage controls and the allocation authority also are needed.

After-Hours Club Licensing Wanted

By John London
Post Reporter

Edward P. Meserole is planning to put a new wrinkle in the problem of after-hours drinking clubs.

Meserole, who operates one of the swankiest bottle parties, will shortly request the Commissioners to license all such clubs.

This he revealed to a reporter last night, as District official circles buzzed with talk of measures to close or control early morn oases.

Licensed liquor purveyors, wholesalers, and retailers have been prodding District officials. Licensees claim the after-hours clubs are funneling business from licensed establishments and should not be free of supervision imposed on licensees.

Meserole, who runs the plush, 15-room Stagecrafters' Club at 3d and E sts. nw., hopes his plan may forestall moves to padlock after-hours clubs. Currently they pay only a $2 occupancy fee, operate as private clubs, immune to Alcoholic Beverage Control laws, Health Department and police surveillance.

A veteran of 30 years in the cafe, dance hall and theatrical booking business, in New York and here, Meserole plans to suggest:

That the ABC Board license after-hours clubs for $1500 a year, plus a $400 dancing permit. This, he thinks, should entitle clubs to sell drinks all night. At present, private clubs can only sell setups, with members drinking from their own bottles.

He proposes that the license prevent members from entering such a club after 3:30 a. m., but permit those already there to continue tippling.

Closing up all after-hours clubs would only mean the birth of "blind pigs"—speakeasies, according to Meserole.

Licensing would make possible police and Health Department supervision, weed out curbstone bottle bootleggers, make all after-hours clubs operate "according to Hoyle," and increase District revenue from licenses, Meserole claims.

"I've got a $150,000 investment in the Stagecrafters," says Meserole, "and I want to protect it."

His establishment ranges over four floors of the old Scottish Rite building. It has red damask walls, three bars, one 120 feet long with a stage in the middle; a 700-seat theater equipped with an organ.

Appointments of the powder room include a $4000-$5000 rug, he says.

"There probably are about 10 major clubs, grossing about $30,000 to $40,000 a week—more than one million dollars a year," he figures.

It costs $2.50 a month for "non-resident" membership at the Stagecrafters; $10 a year for "social" membership and $20 a year for membership which includes hospitalization insurance, of all things.

A "fraternal organization," according to Meserole, the club charges 35 cents for a water set-up and 50 cents for coke or other mixers. Members must bring their own bottles. Members include 22 Congressmen and some 10 Senators, Meserole says.

Bowlegs Can Be Straightened

Chicago, Jan. 27 (AP).—How bow-legged or knock-kneed children can be made straight-legged was described today.

A Milwaukee surgeon said the technique involved slowing down the growth of bones by driving stainless steel staples into them.

"The method has proved its value in equalizing the length of legs and correcting deformities such as knock-knee, bow-leg and back-knee deformity of infantile paralysis," Dr. Walter P. Blount said in a paper prepared for the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons.

"Through a small incision," he said, "stainless steel staples are driven into the bone, bridging the growth zones. This mechanically stops the leg from lengthening at one of several levels of growth. The child may return to school after a few days. When the desired correction is obtained, the staples are withdrawn and growth is resumed.

"If the child is knock-kneed, the staples are placed on the inner side of the knee. If he is bow-legged, they are placed on the outer side. The back knee of infantile paralysis and the bent knee following arthritis or injury are corrected in a corresponding manner."

Dr. Blount said the procedure, which was devised at Milwaukee Children's Hospital, must be used while the child still has two years or more to grow.

Tape Records 48 Hours Of Music In One Hour

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 27 (AP).—A machine which can record 48 hours of music on tape from a master strip in one hour was unveiled here today.

The device, called the first designed for mass production of music on tape, was shown by the Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co., makers of "scotch" sound recording tape.

President W. L. Knight said the prerecorded reels of tape would be offered in competition with long-playing phonograph discs for use in homes, radio stations, schools and theaters.

Blue Plate Mayonnaise

Made with WESSON OIL SO IT'S NATURALLY MORE DELICIOUS

HEARTY WINTERTIME SALAD

Give healthful vegetables more appeal with fresh, FRESH Blue Plate Mayonnaise

4 tablespoons Blue Plate Mayonnaise
2 tablespoons chili sauce
2 cups canned green peas
1 green onion, chopped (optional)
1 large or 2 small carrots, grated
Lettuce or other salad greens

Stir chili sauce into Blue Plate Mayonnaise. (Blue Plate is made of salad oil as fine as you'd use if you made your own mayonnaise. And it's whipped to creamy, creamy smoothness). Drain peas well, add chopped onion if desired, and stir in mayonnaise and chili sauce. Arrange crisp greens on salad plates, place peas in center of greens, ring with grated carrots. Top with additional Blue Plate Mayonnaise just as it comes from the jar. You'll have a grand salad for 4 hungry people.

Blue Plate Peanut Butter

GOLDEN CHEESE SOUFFLE

New glamour—with tempting flavor of Blue Plate Peanut Butter

2 tablespoons flour ½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons Blue Plate Margarine
½ cup milk ½ cup grated cheese
¼ teaspoon prepared mustard
2 eggs, separated
¼ cup fine bread or cracker crumbs
1 tablespoon Blue Plate Peanut Butter

Melt Blue Plate Margarine, blend in flour and salt, then milk; cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Remove from fire, stir in grated cheese and mustard. Beat egg whites stiff. Add beaten yolks to cheese mixture, fold in whites, pour into greased casserole. Blend Blue Plate Peanut Butter into crumbs, using a fork. (It's easy—with smooth Blue Plate). Sprinkle crumbs around edge of souffle. Place in pan of water; bake in mod. oven (375° F.) 25-30 min. until firm. Serves 4.

STRAWBERRY ROLL

Sparkling Blue Plate Strawberry Preserves give the flavor of sun-ripened berries

1½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
⅔ cup Blue Plate Margarine
3 to 4 tablespoons ice water
Blue Plate Strawberry Preserves

Sift dry ingredients. Cut in Blue Plate Margarine until size of small peas. Add just enough water to hold mixture together. Roll into 10-inch square, spread very thinly with Blue Plate Strawberry Preserves. (The Blue Plate People select the finest strawberries grown—and make preserves as carefully as you would at home). Roll, make crosswise cuts 1¼ inches apart, about half-way through roll. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 30 min. 4 generous servings.

Work Started On Point Four, Truman Says

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman said yesterday he already has put the State Department to work on plans to carry out his Inauguration Day proposal for helping other nations improve world living standards.

The proposal, as outlined in Point 4 of his inaugural address, will be Administration policy for the next four years, he said, though it would have to be implemented gradually. He could not say what would be done or when or how, Mr. Truman said, but Secretary of State Acheson had been asked to call together heads of Departments and work out preliminary plans.

The President added emphatically that he knew what he wanted to do and remarked that he spent most of his time looking over his office globe trying to find out how to make peace in the world. Point 4, he said, originated with the propositions of aid to Greece and Turkey and he had been studying it ever since.

Asked by a reporter if he could clarify Point 4 by giving it a title, Mr. Truman said he thought it spoke for itself if the speech were read. He said it didn't seem to confuse any foreign governments, only the newspapers over here.

In his inaugural speech Mr. Truman said:

"Fourth, we must embark on a bold new program for making the benefits of our scientific advances and industrial progress available for the improvement and growth of undeveloped areas . . ."

He then spoke of the misery of more than half the people of the world and remarked that now for the first time in history humanity possesses the means to relieve this suffering. Then he continued:

"I believe that we should make available to peace-loving people the benefits of our store of technical knowledge in order to help them realize their aspirations for a better life. And in cooperation with other nations we should foster capital investment in areas needing development.

"We invite other countries to pool their technological resources in this undertaking . . ."

Other Departments to be Called

Asked yesterday what departments of the Government would be asked to confer with the Secretary of State on plans to carry out the proposal, he said the Secretary of Commrece, the Secretary of Agriculture, all departments of Government interested would be called in. The Economic Coperation Administration, he added, already was carrying out the proposal in Point 4; that was its job.

St. Laurent Coming Feb. 11

The Chief Executive opened his news conference with an announcement that Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent of Canada, would arrive here February 11 for a two-day conference. Mr. Trumen said St. Laurent was coming at his own invitation just to renew an acquaintance made last year, and emphasized that the visit had nothing to do with the North Atlantic Security Pact or any other formal matter of business.

Asked what effect he thought United States Steel Corp.'s recent announcement of an extra dividend would have on a request for an excess-profits tax, the President declined to comment. He added that he always had thought the price of steel was too high.

He was not ready, he said, to answer questions on early recognition of Israel beyond the temporary recognition extended the day the Jewish State was formed. He would not comment on London reports that the United States would recognize the government of Trans-Jordan.

The President, in effect, set at rest published reports that he had snubbed at least two Governors during the inaugural parade. Asked to comment on these reports, he said without mentioning any names that the Governors passed through the receiving line at the inaugural reception and were very cordially received.

Flood Stage Threatens Ohio Near Parkersburg

Cincinnati, Jan. 27 (AP).—The Ohio River rolled toward flood stages—or even higher—tonight on a long course from Parkersburg, W. Va., to Louisville, Ky.

The river already was at flood stage downstream at Cairo, Ill., and an estimated 1000 persons were homeless as tributaries of the Ohio overflowed.

Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, mobilized all State departments to aid the stricken areas. Illinois State police also reported there was a threat of a levee break on the Wabash River, 10 miles southeast of Carmi, Ill.

Red Cross and similar relief agencies already were mobilized throughout most of the Ohio Valley.

South Dakota Couple Married 77 Years

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., (AP).—Sam and Emma Mercer quietly observed their seventy-seventh wedding anniversary today.

They hope it's a record.

"Do you know of anyone in the United States who has been married longer than we have?" was one of Mercer's first questions to a reporter.

Mercer, at 95 the oldest man in Sioux Falls, has been in poor health since November. His wife, 94, and the fifth oldest resident of the city, gets around the house with difficulty, crippled by an old

Congress Now Has 6 Housing Bills

With the introduction of a second Administration-sponsored housing bill, Congress yesterday had before it six separate measures designed to remedy the housing shortage.

Latest bill, introduced in the Senate by Senator Burnet Maybank (D., S. C.) and in the House by Representative Brent Spence (D., Ky.), is an amendment to the National Housing Act to provide more liberal Government insurance aid to spur private construction of low-cost dwellings.

The Administration measure also improves and extends the FHA insurance available for long-term loans to housing cooperatives, particularly those whose membership consists primarily of World War II veterans.

A Senate Banking Subcommittee plans to start hearings on housing legislation February 2.

Two GOP-sponsored bills also were dropped in the hopper yesterday. One, introduced by 14 Republican Senators, would provide additional low-cost public housing and the other, introduced by 10 House members, would aid private construction of low-cost homes as well as provide public housing.

Earlier the Administration introduced its own public housing measure. Housing bills also have been introduced by Senator Francis Myers (D., Pa.) and Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.).

Uneager Beaver . . .

The Washington Post

"UNVEILED"—Received at the Zoo more than a month ago, but allowed to remain in the darkness and privacy of a small tree trunk until yesterday, this mountain beaver met the press yesterday. One of the most unique members of the rodent family (species, aplodontia), the beaver is the first of its kind to make a public appearance in Washington. Prof. Lloyd G. Ingles of California State College captured it in the Cascade Mountains, Washington, and sent it here to Dr. William Mann, Zoo director rots from 10 cents a pound down to 2 for 17.

Egg prices, which dropped 13.8 per cent here in the November 15-December 15 period, more than double the usual seasonal drop, are holding their own now, according to Henry Males, chairman of the butter and eggs division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

Large grade A eggs were advertised generally at 61 to 63 cents a dozen at retail yesterday, while grade B eggs were selling at about 57 cents.

Lower prices for meats, including beef, reported by the BLS for Washington in December, continued to be reflected in retail selling prices yesterday. Steaks ranged from 59 to 75 cents a pound yesterday in the chain stores, while round steak was generally at 75, in the "good" grade. Similar grades of chuck roast were selling at 43 and 45 cents a pound.

The BLS consumers' price index for goods and services on December 15, althoug down .5 per cent from the previous month, was still 2.6 per cent higher than a year ago, 29 per cent over June, 1946, and nearly 74 per cent above the August, 1939, level.

The index stood at 171.4 per cent of the 1935-39 average, down 1.8 per cent from the August peak of 174.5 largely because of lower food prices.

In December, food prices declined to 1.2 per cent below November and 5.4 per cent below the July peak. They were still 41 per cent higher than in June, 1946.

Here in Washington, the reductions ranged from about 1 per cent for canned pink salmon to 9 per cent for chuck roast and fresh fish, while the increases were between slightly more than 1 per cent for leg of lamb to 14 per cent for salt pork.

Average prices for meats, poultry and fish here were still nearly 7½ per cent above February, the low point for 1948.

Prices of fruits and vegetables advanced 4.6 per cent here during the November 15-December 15 period, after a five-month decline, according to the BLS index. This was more than a seasonal rise, and included sharp cost rises for potatoes (more than 22 per cent) and apples (16 per cent).

Boy, 13, Saves Woman, 75, in Gas-Filled Home

Newspaper Carrier Jimmy Zabawa, jr., 13, of 341 N. Edison st., Arlington, was credited last night with saving an Arlington woman, about 75, from her gas-filled home.

The carrier saw Mrs. Marie Renkes, 103 N. Edison st., lying unconscious on the floor of her home when he went about 7:30 to collect for the Evening Star.

Summoning a neighbor, Avery S. Hoyt, 100 N. Edison st., the boy broke a window, crawled into the house, turned off the gas, opened a door and with Hoyt carried Mrs. Renkes to safety. Mrs. Renkes was revived with a resuscitator by a Clarendon ambulance crew.

Arlington police said a pot boiled over on a gas range, extinguishing the burner flames, allowing the gas to escape.

15.42% Rent Boost For Apartments

A 15.42 per cent rent increase was recommended yesterday on 70 units of the Twenty-Seven Hundred Connecticut Avenue Apartments. It was one of the largest percentage increases approved by a District rent examiner.

The proposed boost will yield $8034 a year for the Washington Properties, Inc., owners of the apartments. The firm had asked for a 21.8 per cent rent boost totaling $11,358.

Present rates are $28 a month for 1½ rooms and bath to $97.50 for four roms and bath. Proposed rents are from $32.25 to $112.50.

movements planned or under consideration include Chicago, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Milwaukee, Kansas City and Dallas.

In Tulsa, Representative Patman (D., Tex.) was reported to have told Tulsa and Dallas property owners by telephone that the landlord revolt "will be stopped by the courts."

Some property owners insist they have the right under the law to withdraw properties from the market on 60-day notice.

At Tulsa, the Rev. Wallace J. Murphy, a leader of the property owners' revolt, said he was puzzled by President Truman's remarks.

"We are American businessmen," he said. "We simply want to go out of business. It is unprofitable."

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 27 (AP).—Eviction of tenants in protest of legislation to extend rent controls beyond March 31 will be considered by property owners and landlords Saturday night at Ocean View.

The meeting was arranged by the committee on decontrol, which has twice launched movements to lift rent ceilings in the Ocean View area, but it was announced all landlords and property owners throughout the city are invited.

Collapses in Office

Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 27 (U.P.).—The Rev. Wallace J. Murphy, the minister who is spearheading the "Tulsa plan" of mass evictions, collapsed in his office late today.

Murphy was taken to his home, and his wife said a doctor had been called. She said the fight against rent controls will be carried on "even if it's from a sickbed."

Murphy was conscious as he was taken to a car, but fainted a second time on the way home.

Roman Catholics Do Not Believe in Religious Liberty, Or in Separation of Church and State, Oxnam Asserts made by men trained in the American tradition of freedom. Unfortunately decisions of strategy are made in a foreign capital, acclimated to the traditions of authoritarianism."

"When will the hierarchy learn that there is no return to the darkness of the Middle Ages, during which a totalitarian church ruled the minds of men?" he asked.

The Methodist bishop declared that the Roman Catholic Church is "opposed to our system of public education," and stated that "to drain off vast sums for the support of competing sectarian systems of education is, in the long run, to destroy our public system."

"The attempt to win public support for parochial education is ill conceived, will divide us, and must be defeated," he declared.

POAU, the bishop said, plans to organize in every State and every community and take to the courts "in dignified fashion" any attempts to violate the principle of separation of church and state.

"We are convinced that there are literally millions of American Roman Catholics who are gravely concerned by policies of the hierarchy to establish here a culture alien to the traditions of a free people," he said.

The Roman Catholic Church has changed its position from time to time, Bishop Oxnam said. "Is there any reason why it should not enunciate a new doctrine of religious liberty congenial to an age of free men who believe in the democratic way?" he asked.

If the hierarchy would say that in all matters involving religious liberty "we will do unto others as we would be done by," Catholics and Protestants could live side by side in the United States enjoying the freedom that is ours, he said.

400 Hear Leaders

At an afternoon meeting of the organization, about 400 persons heard leaders in the organization speak on the aims of POAU.

Charles Clayton Morrison, former editor of Christian Century, told the meeting that POAU is opposed to the Catholic Church only when it is in violation of the laws which provide for separation of church and state, but is not in any way concerned with the interior life of the church.

The organization is also opposed to Protestant groups which are in violation of the law, he said. Mr. Morrison deplored the action Wednesday by the Virginia Council of Churches in voting to continue "released time" weekday classes in the public schools.

Protestant citizens of the Virginia and other Southern States ought to challenge the practice and assume the responsibility for protecting religious liberty no matter who violates it, he said. Catholics, he continued, will not challenge the ruling because it is a practice of which they would like to take advantage.

On Wednesday, the executive board of POAU announced it would launch a three-year campaign for a million dollars to "cope with the aggressive program of the Roman Catholic Church, backed by its vast campaign fund."

At a morning meeting the POAO advisory board asked a resolution urging Congress to "defeat the attempt of the Roman Catholic hierarchy or any other church group to secure public funds for parochial schools as permitted by S. 246, Section 6." The bill, introduced by Senators Thomas (D., Utah) and Taft (R., Ohio) leaves it up to the States to decide whether to give aid money to private as well as public schools.

Catholic Group Urges Changes In DP Law

A broad liberalization of the present Displaced Persons Act to make it "fair to all groups" was urged yesterday by the National Catholic Resettlement Council.

While American sponsors are "clamoring" for displaced persons who can be profitably employed here, only a relative handful have arrived because of the present restrictive act, declared the Rev. Aloysius J. Wycislo, chairman of the executive committee, the council, which is the official organization of the Catholic Church in the United States for resettling DPs under the 1948 law, proposed:

1. Up to 400,000 visas be made available to the DP's, without regard to immigration quotas, for the council's executive committee.

At a luncheon meeting yesterday at the National Press Club for the four years following July 1, 1948, with particular emphasis on family groups.

(The existing authorization for entry of 205,000 of Europe's homeless persons within a period ending June, 1950, would be included in the 400,000 figure.)

2. "To avoid discrimination in favor of or against the race, religion or national origin of any DP, visas issued should be made available . . . in the proportion each (DP) bears to the over-all total of displaced persons."

(The existing law provides quotas for many specific countries and for certain occupational groups.)

3. The time limit under which persons can be eligible for entry (presently limited to those who entered DP camps prior to December 22, 1945) should be advanced to the effective date of the DP Act as amended, or at least no earlier than December 31, 1948.

4. Federal funds should be provided to pay cost of transporting DPs from ports of entry to their inland destination. (At present, the sponsor must pay for this.)

5. The separate provision in the act providing for admission of persons of German ethnic origin, through application to the State Department, should provide double the existing number, with extension to June 30, 1952, and particular emphasis on orphan children.

When President Truman reluctantly signed the existing bill, he declared it little better than no bill at all and said it discriminated against Catholics and Jews who fled from Poland and other countries in 1946 and 1947, and many other groups.

The Right Rev. Msgr. John O'Grady, executive secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Charities, declared he found a "revolution in public opinion" in regard to DPs within the past year, with much of the objection to DPs disintegrating with a realization of their need here.

Benefit Party To Aid Family

A fund-raising party to aid the family of John A. Hamer, 36, who died Friday of burns suffered in a fire that gutted his house, will be held at the Star Hall in Mount Rainier at 8 p. m. Monday.

Hamer was able to rescue his two young sons, Allen, 7, and David, 4, before collapsing from burns sustained in fighting the fire at his residence, 4120 Fairfax ave., Landover Hills, early that day.

The party will be sponsored by the Brentwood Volunteer Fire Department, Ladies' Auxiliary.

Try it with NEW Emulsorized SNOWDRIFT and win the praise of the party!

Only an emulsorized shortening gives you top success with "quick-method" cakes. Know why? Regular shortenings lack Snowdrift's special blending aid. Emulsorized Snowdrift combines all sugar and liquid into completely blended batters. So use Emulsorized Snowdrift and count on wonder-cakes that win you praise every time! Lighter! Richer! Moister!

PINK AND WHITE PARTY CAKE

Sift together in mixing bowl:
2¼ cups sifted cake flour
3½ teaspoons double-action baking powder (4½ teaspoons single-action)
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups sugar

Add: ½ cup Snowdrift (Emulsorized ... quick-blending)
⅔ cup milk

Mix till flour is dampened. Beat 2 minutes. If you beat by hand, count beating time only. (With electric mixer, use "low speed"; scrape bowl and beaters frequently.)

Add: 4 egg whites (unbeaten)
few drops red coloring
⅓ cup milk
1 teaspoon almond flavoring

Beat 1 minute for Snowdrift-smooth batter! Turn into 2 greased 8-inch layer pans lined with plain paper. Bake in mod. oven (375° F.) about 25 min. Cool and frost with—

COMBINATION ICING AND FILLING
½ cup water
1 tablespoon light corn syrup
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 egg white (beaten)
1 teaspoon almond flavoring
½ cup chopped figs
½ cup chopped nuts
¼ cup raisins

Combine first five ingredients; cook and stir until sugar dissolves. Pour syrup gradually over beaten egg white, beating until icing "peaks." Add almond flavor. Remove ½ of icing; fold in fruit, nuts; use as filling. Frost cake with plain icing; decorate with chopped nuts.

Council Members In 'Private' Meeting

Selection of a county attorney, possible creation of a tax appeals board and other important business were discussed last night at a private meeting of Montgomery County council members.

No actions could be taken at the meeting, and the council members made no announcement afterward. Formal action must be taken at the council's public meetings on Tuesdays.

County Manager Irving G. McNayr, it was learned, meanwhile is planning to study public works and finance departments in New York and Baltimore before making recommendations to the council for setting up a county department of public works and a department of finance as required by the new Montgomery charter.

New Drug Used for Leukemia

Philadelphia, an. 27 (AP).—A new drug for treatment of Leukemia now is in use at the Children's Hospital here.

Hospital officials revealed today three medical scientists are administering the new drug, aminopterin, to a group of children suffering from the usually fatal "cancer of the blood stream" disease.

Dr. I. J. Wolman and his assistants at Children's Hospital describe the drug as one "that for the first time will really arrest cancer of the blood stream."

Dr. Wolman, chief pathologist, said aminopterin was first introduced by Dr. Sidney Farber and associates in Boston, and must be used only by experts. It has not yet been released by its manufacturers for general use of the medical profession, Dr. Wolman added.

The new drug is an antivitamin and works in Leukemia through starving the white cells in the bloodstream, Dr. Wolman said.

Aminopterin is given by injection, and while the dodtors emphasize that it is not a cure for leukemia or helpful in all cases, they report they now know it causes remissions of the disease—setbacks—which permit some victims to live normal lives and come to the hospital as out-patients for periodic treatment.

Of the 23 children under treatment at the hospital, some have shown marked improvement.

New Patuxent Bridge Plan Given Green Light by Lane

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Jan. 27.—Construction of a $2,500,000 bridge across the Patuxent River between Charles and Calvert Counties was approved today by Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr.

Lane promised to support legislation authorizing the bridge and to make it a part of his road program.

Five senators from Southern Maryland, sponsoring the proposal, said the green light from Lane assures passage of the appropriate legislation which, they said, they will introduce early next week.

Planned at Benedict

Senator Louis L. Goldstein (D., Calvert), acting as spokesman for the quintet of legislators, said the way was now paved for "immediate construction" by the State Roads Commission.

The span, to be three fourths of a mile long, including the approaches, will connect Halloway Point, in Calvert County, and Benedict, in Charles County, Goldstein said.

The estimated $2,500,000 cost of the bridge would be amortized over a 15-year period, Goldstein said, by charging a $1 toll fare. At present the two points are connected by a privately operated four-car ferry, rates charged are $1.25 during the day and $2 after 7 p. m., he said.

Elated at the bridge's prospects, Goldstein predicted the new span would "open up" southern Maryland.

"I have seen as many as 150 cabs waiting for the ferry, some of them sitting there for as long as two or three hours," he said.

Test Borings Made

Test borings have already been made for the structure which will have a swing draw in the middle of the river enabling ships to pass through, Goldstein declared.

Joint sponsors of the legislation with Goldstein are Senators L. Harold Sothoron (D., Prince Georges), James B. Monroe (R., Charles), Paul J. Bailey (D., St. Mary's) and Wilbur R. Dulin (D., Anne Arundel).

In another development today, the Senate voted to recommit to the finance committee a House-approved bill which would cut from 2½ to 2 per cent the amount of tax to be paid on earned income.

As a result, Marylanders still do not know what tax percentage to use in filling out 1948 income tax returns to be filed by April 15.

Senator Sothoron, the Senate majority leader, said the move was to allow further discussion on an amendment proposed by Senator Edward D. Storm (D., Frederick).

The Storm amendment would reduce from 5 to 2 per cent the amount of tax to be paid on the first $1000 of investment income.

The House Ways and Means Committee also reported out favorably a bill which would reduce from 5 per cent to 2 per cent the rate on the first $3000 of investment income.

Increases Exemptions

The same committee, in addition, voted favorably on a proposal that exemptions on dependents be increased from $400 to $600 for the first dependent, $550 for each of two dependents and $500 each for three or more dependents.

Postponement of public hearing until February 10 on two bills aimed at curbing subversive activities in Maryland was announced by the House and Senate Judiciary Committees.

The two measures providing stiff penalties for members of subversive organizations may be the most controversial to come before the 1949 session of the Legislature.

Bills introduced today in the House included:

HB 175—By Montgomery delegation, to provide for a public hearing before the adoption of the annual Takoma Park budget (Montgomery and Prince Georges delegation).

HB 176—By Prince Georges delegation, to raise the salary of the stenographer assigned to the State's attorney of Prince Georges County from $2000 to $2500 annually (delegation).

HB 179—By Prince Georges delegation, to allow the Prince Georges County supervisors of elections to set extra registration places and dates as they deem necessary (delegation).

HB 180—By Prince Georges delegation, to raise the salaries of the Prince Georges County supervisors of elections from $400 a year to $1000 each (delegation).

PSC Bill Would Aid 5 Sections in State

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 27 (AP).—The five geographical divisions of the State would each have a representative on an enlarged Public Srevice Commission, if a bill introduced in the Legislature today by Senator Goldstein (D., Calvert) became law.

The bill was one of 11 dumped into the Senate hopper. The House also received 11 new proposals, including one which would make it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of up to $100, for a person to hunt on posted land without the permission of the owner.

Goldstein's PSC bill would specify that the commission would have one member each from the Eastern Shore, western Maryland, Baltimore City, central Maryland and southern Maryland. At present, the PSC has three commissioners.

Veterans' Bonus Asked In Md. Bill

Annapolis, Jan. 27 (Spl.).—Maryland veterans of World War II would be given a bonus of from $100 to $500 under terms of a bill to be introduced in the Maryland Senate next Monday.

Sponsor of the measure, Senator Robert B. Kimble (R., Allegany), told reporters the proposal, if approved, would cost in the vicinity of 120 million dollars.

He said petitions bearing the signatures of more than 2500 persons requesting the bonus had been received and put into the Senate records.

Backed by Most Veterans

Included among the signers, he said, is the only living Marylander who won the Congressional Medal of Honor, Paul J. Wiedorfer, of Baltimore.

All State veterans organizations, except the American Veterans Committee, are behind the legislation, Senator Kimble declared.

Cost of financing the bonus would have to be borne by a bond issue, Kimble explained.

Asked whether the 120 million dollars might be more than the State could afford, Kimble replied: "The State of Maryland can afford anything that is in the best interests of its citizens."

Stiff Opposition Seen

The proposal seemed certain to meet with stiff opposition of administration forces led by Governor Lane.

The bill, as it will be presented, would make ineligible any veteran who served less than 90 days, Kimble explained. All others would be paid a minimum of $100 and a maximum of $500 based on length of service.

The rate would be $10 a day for service in the United States and $15 a day for overseas service. The bill is being prepared by the American Legion in Baltimore, it was learned.

Overby Switches Jobs With Monetary Fund

A. N. Overby resigned yesterday as United States executive director of the International Monetary Fund in order to accept appointment as deputy managing director of the fund.

Overby, the White House announced, will be succeeded as United States director by Frank A. Southard, jr., a professor of economics a Cornell University.

Overby has been United States executive director since July 1, 1947. Prior to that served as special assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury in charge of international finance.

Sen. Kilgore Opposes 'Compulsory Sickness'

"Dear Sir—This is to advise we are opposed to compulsory sickness as proposed by our government."

Radio Stations Argue on News

continued the case late today until tomorrow by asking the State to outline its position on a point of constitutional law.

Calls Rule "Unclear"

William L. Marbury, counsel for WFBR and the American Society of Newspaper Editors, said the special rule is manifestly "so broad and unclear that it exceeds the authority of the court to punish for contempt."

He added:

"No one can tell whether he will be punished unless he goes to the judge who is administering the law at the moment. No counsel can tell him whether he will be in violation. No news editor can tolerate this condition. It is censorship, prior censorship—the exact form of censorship which the Bill of Rights was designed to protect against."

In most cases, the statements by the radio stations that the defendants had confessed and was a former convict was attributed to Baltimore's police commissioner, it was said.

Marbury said when the court rule prevents publication of such statements it denies the people their freedom of information, particularly to statements of their public officials.

Paul D. P. Spearman, council for WCBM, advanced the theory that Congress and the Federal Communications Commission have exclusive power to regulate and control radio communications and the programs broadcast.

He argued that the Federal Communications Act of 1934 specifies that there shall be no censorship.

Presents Rebuttal

George Cochran Doub, representing the Bar Association of Baltimore, presented the rebuttal for the State and the intervenors who are upholding the court's right to punish the stations.

He introduced further sources upholding the argument that there are limitations on freedom of the press and freedom of information.

Rule 904, he declared, is simply a restatement of the courts' power to punish for contempt and the defendants still are punishable under this power even if 904 is found invalid. But Rule 904 is valid, he argued, because Baltimore newspapers have acquiesced to it for 10 years.

"Through this tradition of a decade," he said, "we here in Baltimore have kept trials where they belong: in the courts, not in the newspapers."

"You," he told Judge Gray, "have an opportunity to continue, maintain, develop, preserve and strengthen this fine tradition."

Although Baltimore newspapers followed 904 in the murder case, the court has before it clippings from Washington and Philadelphia newspapers which used the restricted matter.

Doub expressed the belief that they, too, are in contempt but beyond the reach of the court.

In view of this, he said, no substantial penalties should be imposed upon the defendants. Their violation, he said, was neither deliberate nor malicious.

New District Child Home's Value Stressed

The District's new $335,000 Receiving Home for Children is the first step in direction of providing "proper service" for underprivileged children, Commissioner Guy Mason declared yesterday.

Speaking before about 200 persons attending the opening ceremony of the institution, Mason, who supervises welfare activities in the District government, said the occasion was "one of the happiest days of my whole life."

He said the community had a duty to properly care for such youngsters and that the building housing 43 children at 1000 Mount Olivet rd. ne. was the "first visible evidence" of material progress in that direction.

Commissioner Mason turned the keys to the building over to Edgar Morris, chairman of the Board of Public Welfare. Morris, in turn, presented the keys to Director of Public Welfare John W. Tramburg and William J. Stone, recently named director of the home.

Today will be moving day from the old home and by nightfall, Tramburg expects the new home will be completely ready for use.

Tobin Asks Changes In Fair Labor Act

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin yesterday urged Congress to rush through an amendment to the wage-hour law by February 15 in order to avert management-labor trouble on the Nation's waterfronts.

The tall, handsome Labor Department chief, in his initial appearance before a congressional committee, called for four major changes in the 10-year-old Fair Labor Standards Act.

These changes would raise the floor on minimum wages to 75 cents an hour as against the present 40 cents; extend jurisdiction of the act and child labor; strengthen the authority of the wage-hour administrator; and resolve the so-called "overtime-on-overtime" issue.

Wants Overtime Cleared Up

It is the "overtime-on-overtime" question which the Labor Secretary wants to get cleared up by Congress before the middle of next month, even if it's necessary to let the other amendments go for the time being, Tobin told the House Labor Committee.

The issue, a complex problem involving the payment of overtime rates, came to a head last June when the United States Supreme Court ruled that longshoremen were entitled to premium overtime rates under certain working conditions instead of the customary regular overtime pay at time-and-a-half.

In the wake of the Supreme Court ruling, a strike broke out on the Eastern docks, with the "overtime-on-overtime" issue a major element in the walkout. The stevedoring companies and longshoremen reached a temporary agreement, after several sessions with top United States Conciliation Service experts, pending congressional action to clear up the whole matter through amendment to the Fair Labor Standards Act (also known as the Wage-Hour Act).

Truce Expected to End

This truce, however, is expected to be ended about February 15 or thereafter. That is why Secretary Tobin pleaded for speed in resolving this issue.

Representative Graham Barden (D., N. C.), a member of the committee, indicated he would ask Congress to ban suits for "overtime-on-overtime," just as the Eighteith Congress prohibited court awards on "portal-to-portal" pay after a similar ruling by the Supreme Court.

Secretary Tobin's debut before a congressional committee yesterday was a rather rigorous experience. He started off his prepared speech in a husky voice, but soon warmed up to a clear, resonant delivery. At first his replies to questions were enthusiastic and eager; later they became spirited and grim.

For an hour and a half in the morning session the former Governor of Massachusetts was forced to run through a gantlet of questions dealing with his recommended bill, the Taft-Hartley Act, inflation, the capitalistic system and the price of lumber.

In Verbal Skirmish

Repreesntative Barden, second ranking Democrat on the committee, and Representative Ralph Gwinn of New York, second ranking Republican, in succession engaged Tobin in a verbal skirmish involving the philosophy of a national minimum wage law.

The Secretary declared repeatedly that no law since 1933 has played a greater part in stabilizing the American economy than the Fair Labor Standards Act which, beginning with 25 cents an hour, raised the minimum wage to 40 cents.

Tobin's bill, indorsed by the President, would lift the pay floor to 75 cents, and permit a further rise to $1 an hour through industry committees made up of management, labor, and the public.

When Reperesentative Barden—and later Representative Wingate Lucas (D., Tex.)—stated that the Labor Secretary represented the labor view in the Government, Tobin interrupted to deny it, and to declare that he regarded his office as representing all the people of the country.

Wording Called Hazy

Representative Samuel K. McConnell (R., Pa.), who conducted hearings on similar legislation in the Eightieth Congress, charged that the wording of the amendments recommended by Tobin gave the wage-hour administrator virtually unlimited authority. He insisted that the phrasing of the legislation was deliberately hazy so as to give the wage-hour administrator power to do as he liked.

A committee freshman, Representative Roy W. Weir (D., Minn.), managed to get in a lick for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act. He asserted minimum wage laws wouldn't be necessary if the unions weren't hampered in organizing the unorganized workers. Later, when Representative Gwinn was making an attack on any and all Government controls over the economy of the Nation, Weir was heard to mutter aloud: "That's what makes Communists."

Hearings will be resumed this morning at 10.

For Construction

Md. County Schools Seek State Aid

Annapolis, Jan. 27 (Spl.).—Maryland counties face "drastic curtailments" of new school construction unless more State aid is provided, Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., was told today.

County commissioners from throughout the State issued the warning in a closed conference with the Governor.

Among the things put up to Governor Lane, according to spokesmen, were quadrupling of the present incentive fund and a four-point program under which the State's good credit standing could be used in issuing bonds.

Some counties have already reached the limit of their borrowing capacity and others are rapidly approaching it, Christian H. Kahl, president of the Baltimore County Commissioners and head of the Western Shore County Commissioners Association, said.

The following proposals were submitted to the Governor, Kahl said:

1. Indorsement of county school bonds by the State with credit of both the counties and the State pledged.

2. Bonds isued by he State and proceeds turned over to the counties. They could be amortized jointly by both on the principles of the incentive fund.

3. Matching of bonds by the State and counties on a percentage basis, possibly 50-50.

4. State aid only for counties already up to their bonded debt limit. Kahl said the "safe" limit is usually considered 7 per cent.

County officials reportedly emphasized that the incentive fund allowed by the State is inadequate. The maximum now provided from the fund is the difference between $10 a pupil in a county and the yield from 5 cents on the tax rate imposed by the county.

Fiscal officials say the incentive fund now amounts to $1,300,000.

Police Admit Guilt in Market Case

Two suspended Arlington police privates yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking into a supermarket while on duty on November 16.

The men, Louie L. Liptrap, 24, and Charles H. James, 28, made the pleading in Arlington Circuit Court.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy referred their cases to Chief Probation Officer Charles Booth, and directed him to report his findings on February 21.

Both men earlier had pleaded innocent to the charge of breaking into the Acme Supermarket at 4717 Lee hwy., Arlington.

James, who lives at 2300 Lee hwy., made $3200 annually. He had been on the force six years before his suspension. Liptrap lives at 1927 South 12th st., made $2772, and had been on the force two years.

Tobin to Offer 'Package' Plan

Senate committee hearings by February 10.

Majority Leader Scott Lucas (D., Ill.), backed by Labor Committee Chairman Elbert Thomas (D., Utah) and Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.), retorted that the Democratic Party was not going to stand for "dilatory tactics" on the part of the GOP.

Senator Thomas plans to toss the Administration amendments to the Wagner Act into the legislative hopper today, immediately after the testimony of Secretary Tobin.

Battle Favors Teacher Pay Raise

Richmond, Va., Jan. 27 (AP).—State Senator John S. Battle, candidate for Virginia Governor in the 1949 Democratic primary, said here tonight he believed that teachers' salaries should be further increased.

Battle also took his stand for some State aid for school construction and assumption by the localities of their "fair share" of the school cost load.

He sketched the outlines of his school plank for the first time in an address to members of the Clay Ward Democratic Club.

The school problem, he said, is so big that it requires "much study" before any action is taken.

"I will say, here and now," he added, "that I believe teachers' salaries should be further increased and that the State must assist in the construction and improvement of schools in those areas which cannot provide sufficient funds from their own sources of tax revenue."

36 Finns, Estonians Denied Entry to U. S.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 27 (AP).—Thirty-six of the 37 Finns and Estonians who arrived Friday after sailing from Sweden, have been denied entry into the United States.

A ruling on one member of the party who said she was born in Chicago was deferred until birth records can be checked.

Their appeal will be sent to Washington and they will go to Ellis Island.

C. & P. Plans Big Outlay on Toll Dialing

By S. Oliver Goodman

Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. will spend $3,777,000 for installation of long-distance dial equipment in its new annex building now being erected in the 700 block of 13th st. nw.

The new switching equipment will enable Washington toll operators to dial subscriber numbers directly through to many distant cities. That means you'll be able to dial your local operator, tell her the city wanted which she'll dial, and then another dial of the person's number and there you are.

The additional building here is scheduled to be completed in August, but installation of the complex toll dialing equipment won't be completed until sometime in 1951, a spokesman said yesterday.

In the meantime, some dialing of long distance points has already been inaugurated in Washington and is expected to expand steadily as other cities complete their installations.

The project, part of a Nation-wide program to extend gradually the toll dialing system to principal cities, has the ultimate objective of giving customers better and faster long distance service.

C. & P. directors also approved yesterday an outlay of $91,000 for additional underground and aerial cable facilities in the north section of the Anacosta area.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Newly elected president of the Washington Passenger Association is Robert W. Bashor of the New York Central System . . . Raymond E. Dorr, Washington branch sales manager of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co., yesterday was presented a silver cup and cash bonus for his office's sales record last year . . . Thomas Drever was elevated to board chairman of American Steel Foundries and C. C. Jarchow succeeded him as president . . . Roland S. Withers has been named director of customer relations for General Motors.

Bashor

NEW DIRECTORS: Stockholders of Federal Services Finance Corp. elected Gen. Robert W. Hasbrouck and Col. Desloge Brown to the board of directors. Other directors and all officers were reelected. President W. A. Holbrook, jr., reported that estimated net operating earnings (before taxes) amounted to $307,464 in 1948, compared with $216,924 for 1947. The company recently paid an extra dividend consisting of one tenth of a share of common stock for each share.

OPTIMISTIC NOTE: Most economists have been so intent on watching for the first signals of an impending trade break that they have overlooked the basic changes that have taken place since 1940 in national productivity and real purchasing power. So stated Arno H. Johnson, vice president and research director of the advertising firm of J. Walter Thompson Co., in a luncheon talk yesterday before a group of trade association executives in the Mayflower. He estimated that the American public will have about 200 billion dollars to spend after taxes this year, a net increase of more than 50 per cent in real purchasing power over the highest prewar levels. Inflation in prices has dissipated 86.4 billion of this new income, he added, but this leaves a net gain of 37.9 billion in real buying power. Increased market potentials exist and can be developed by aggressive marketing, he concluded.

PLANS OFFERING: Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc. (Trans World Airline) plans to offer present stockholders an additional issue of 404,112 shares of TWA common stock. Board Chairman Warren Lee Pierson said a registration statement will be filed soon with the SEC. The price will be fixed later.

ODD LOTS: Auto output this week is estimated at 112,606 units, compared with 110,001 last week. Crosley Motors has stepped up its 1949 production schedule to 50,000 cars, almost double last year's . . . Cadillac Motor announced it will not increase 1949 car output more than 10 per cent . . . Ford Motor Co. reported formation of a new company to coordinate and assist all its international affiliates. It will be known as Ford International Co. . . . Rail freight loadings in week ended January 22 totaled 609,585 cars, down 3.2 per cent from preceding week and off 13.7 per cent from same 1948 week . . . The personal aircraft industry shipped 6969 planes valued at $27,706,000 last year, a slump of about 30 per cent from the previous year. RFC officials said yesterday the RFC has joined with an undisclosed bank in a loan of $5,700,000 to the Preco Motor Co.

EARNINGS: Hercules Powder Co. reported net income of $10,147,062 for 1948, equal to $3.99 a common share, compared with $12,134,430 or $4.75 a share in 1947. Other earnings statements:

Business Outlook

Did Law or Sellers' Market Cause Shift in Steel Prices?

By J. A. Livingston

HARDLY a week goes by that some chamber of commerce or manufacturers association somewhere doesn't hold a meeting on prices. These are not like the famous Judge Gary dinners at which steel men dined and talked about various things but left with a pretty set notion about what a consumer would pay for a ton of steel immediately thereafter. On the contrary . . .

Livingston

These are seminars in confusion and they've been going on since last April, when the Supreme Court decided that cement manufacturers illegally fixed prices, ganged up on recalcitrants who didn't, and throttled competition. The seminars gained in size, frequently and fervor when United States Steel Corp. decided in July to price steel at its plantdoor (f. o. b.) instead of delivered to the customer.

The confusion has made professional barnstormers of, among others, Robert E. Freer, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission; Corwin D. Edwards, chief economist of the FTC, and E. A. Zimmerman of Zimmerman & Norman, counsel for the Marquette Cement Manufacturing Co., one of the defendants in the cement case. They've appeared singly and jointly in various cities, including Washington, St. Petersburg, Philadelphia, Denver, Boston, Dixville Notch, N. H., and Chicago.

ZIMMERMAN argues that the FTC and the Supreme Court have forced on businessmen an f. o. b. pricing system. Result: Businessmen are not permitted to absorb freight to compete with one another. In this, he is supported by Norman Foy, sales manager of Republic Steel, who declared at a meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington: "We are now told that the consumer must of necessity pay all transportation charges from the point of steel production to his point of consumption." Foy feels the FTC fosters monopoly.

Freer, Edwards, and most other representatives of the FTC deny that. They declare that any method of pricing is legal if (a) it's competitive and (b) noncollusive. At a Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce meeting, Corwin quoted an FTC memorandum: "Businessmen are not required to sell f. o. b. mill or to adopt any particular form of pricing practice." They can charge delivered prices and identical prices so long as they're competitive prices.

To most businessmen, United States Steel's switch to an f. o. b. price system is like the final word. If United States Steel's legal talent couldn't find a loophole in the FTC case or in the Supreme Court decision, well, obviously, the jig is up. Yet the record is not complete. United States Steel's lawyers are still fighting the FTC. Moreover, they could change their opinions. The legal mind may turn one way in a sellers' market, another way in a buyers' market.

WHEN UNITED STATES STEEL shifted to f. o. b. prices, the basing-point delivered-price system—freight absorption—was an economic liablity. Hot rolled sheets were being quoted in the gray market at $200 and $250 a ton. Yet United States Steel was delivering sheets to distant places for less than a third of that price and absorbing freight in the bargain. So along with other steel companies, the corporation gradually cut down on faraway shipments, concentrated on close-by customers. That reduced freight absorption, boosted profits. But customers who got stinted protested. They wanted steel. They begged for the privilege of paying the freight.

Ultimately, U. S. Steel yielded. It wanted to meet its customer obligations, yet didn't want to be penalized for it. F. o. b. pricing strategically fitted the occasion. And happily the lawyers went for it.

The latest bogey among steel men is triple damage under the Robinson-Patman Act. They feel that if they use a delivered price system and absorb freight, one group of customers can sue because another group of customers is favored. Yet, under the basing-point system of selling steel, such price differentials—due to freight absorption—always existed. Besides, as Edwards points out, if the low price is already available to a buyer because of his location, then when a distant manufacturer meets a competitive price he's not offering the purchaser anything he didn't have before. There is no favoritism, no discrimination. Competitors are not injured.

Times will change. The sellers' market won't endure forever. Buyers won't always pay any price. The day will come when the steel companies will be on customers' doorsteps instead of vice versa. To keep plants going, the corporation will have to seek customers in more distant markets. It will have to meet the prices of close-by producers. It will have to absorb freight. Is it not possible that, under that strategic necessity, lawyers may begin to see delivered pricing in a different light?

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Jan. 27 (AP).—After setting new lows for the current decline, grains bounced back sharply in fairly active dealings on the Board of Trade today. The market had a bitter appearance early but ended on a show of strength.

For the most part the advance was considered a technical rebound caused by the fact the market had been oversold. In the early trade May wheat sank to a new low since October, while May corn sold at its lowest price since last November. All oats hit bottom prices since trading in the contracts now on the boards started.

These prices apparently attracted some speculative buying, dealers said. There also was a good deal of short covering. All wheat and corn deliveries were either well under the present Government loan on these crops or what traders estimate the 1949 crop loans will be.

Wheat closed ¾ to 1⅝ higher, corn was ⅝ to 1¼ higher, oats were ⅛ to 1¼ higher, rye was unchanged, soybeans were 1½ to 2 cents higher and lard was 15 to 28 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Textile Men See Menace In Tariff Cut

By The Associated Press

The cotton textile industry told Congress yesterday that important segments of the American economy stand in danger of disaster if the Administration continues reduction of tariffs on competing foreign-made goods.

C. T. Murchison, institute president, urged the House Ways and Means Committee to reject President Truman's proposal for repeal of the existing, Republican-sponsored tariff law. The President wants the reciprocal trade law put back in its old form.

Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange, told the committee "it would be better to let the president law stand until a sound and more effective tariff measure can be passed."

On the other hand, the United States Chamber of Commerce and Americans for Democratic action filed statements supporting Mr. Truman's call for return to the old law.

The present law, passed in 1948, puts restrictions on the president's power to cut tariffs. For example, it calls for detailed studies by the Federal Tariff Comision and if the President cuts a tariff against the commission's advice, he must explain to Congress.

Under the old, New Deal law, the President had unrestricted power to cut tariffs as much as 50 per cent in drawing up pacts with nations which agreed to give reciprocal concessions to American goods. Such pacts are not subject to congressional approval.

Grange Master Goss said "we believe that trade agreements are treaties and are unconstitutional unless confirmed by the Senate."

He said the grange favors reciprocal trade but insists that Congress not surrender its rights to the executive branch of the Government.

Physicists Get Views of New Atomic Oven

By Howard W. Blakeslee

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—A very secret place in atomic energy, the inner face of the great, new reactor at Brookhaven, Long Island, was unveiled in photos today for the American Physical Society.

This is the first big atomic oven since the war. A 20 million dollar project of the United States Atomic Energy Commission, it will start work next fall.

This reactor will study atomic power, but probably not produce any. It will study transmutation and the effects of radioactivity on life.

The pictures and diagrams and dimensions, were given by Dr. Clarke Williams of the Brookhaven National Laboratories. The meeting is being attended by more than 1500 of the world's top-flight physicists, some the men who made the atomic bomb.

The picture reveals a solid concrete wall, pockmarked with square, flat plugs. The wall is part of one face of the great reactor. It is about three stories high, with two mezzanine balconies where men can work.

This wall is part of a huge concrete box, about the size of a three-story house, but broader, being 38 fete from outside to outside. The box is entirely closed, sides, top and bottom.

The concrete is at least 3 feet thick, to keep radioactivity from seeping through. Inside this box is the reactor itself, a honeycomb of graphite, its holes now filled with uranium metal rods, which will spontaneously get hot and start the "fire" when enough are inserted. The description indicated it is a great cube about 30 feet on a side.

Veteran Loses Suit to Force VA to Give Him Air Training

District Court Judge David A. Pine yesterday dismissed a suit in which a World War II veteran sought to have the Veterans Administration enjoined from refusing him flight training.

Judge Pine ruled it was not within the jurisdiction of the court to review denial of the application.

The suit was brought by Amvets in behalf of Willie G. Slocumb, jr., of Norfolk, Va., and stated that Slocumb, who is a licensed commercial photographer, applied for flight training because he wanted to make a career of aerial photography.

The VA turned down the application, stating that Slocumb had failed to establish that his training was in connection with his present or contemplated business or occupation, Slocumb declared.

He charged the VA's action was without warrant of law and asked for a declaratory judgment as well as an injunction.

In granting a VA motion for dismissal of the suit, Judge Pine pointed out that under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act, the decisions of the Administrator of Vetreans Affairs shall be final and no other official or court shall have jurisdiction to review.

In addition, Judge Pine stated that Slocumb had not exhausted all administrative remedies, but even if he had, the court still would not have the jurisdiction to review the case.

Education Aid Bill Debated

Proposed Federal aid to education would stifle the responsibility of individual States in improving their own educational facilities, the Organized Women Voters of Arlington were told yesterday.

Paul Good, manager of the education department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, told the group at a luncheon that his organization is definitely opposed to the proposed program. He attacked the program as spending Federal money to help those unwilling to help themselves.

Speaking in favor of the program, Ernest Giddings, assistant director of the Federal Legislative Relations Division of the National Education Association, said the proposal would provide funds to solve many of the problems facing the Nation's schools, adding that a basic purpose of the bill is to equalize educational programs in the 48 States.

Teachers' Sick Leave

Despite the stringency of District finances, one additional expense which deserves the earnest support of Congress is the extension of sick leave benefits to public-school teachers. Although the lot of teachers was somewhat improved by the pay increase two years ago, the Washington educational system still operates under the medieval and inhuman rule of no sick leave at all. When a teacher is ill, he must pay a substitute at his own expense. In effect this amounts to a docking of his pay at the time he needs it most. Teachers are the only group of municipal employes discriminated against in this fashion. This discrimination, of course, makes it difficult to hold present teachers and attract new ones. Moreover, it is detrimental to instruction standards in that it encourages teachers to remain at work, possibly to scatter germs, when they should be home in bed.

New proposals prepared by the Board of Education and approved by the District Commissioners as well as a large majority of the teachers would end the disparity by providing 10 days sick leave a year. In addition, teachers would receive one day of retroactive leave for each year of service up to 20. The leave would be cumulative up to 60 days, and teachers with extended illness could borrow an additional 20 days. These liberalized provisions would take care of most contingencies and would give District teachers benefits which have long been the rule in other major cities. Contributions to the basic security of teachers are not a gift; they are investments in the education of Washington's children.

Axis Sally

It is becoming a bit trite to observe that the great ideological conflicts of our age have assumed the character of a world-wide civil war; but the fact itself has become manifest in the difficulty of finding juries sufficiently unprejudiced to try such cases as that of the 11 Communist leaders in New York or that of Miss Mildred E. Gillars here in Washington.

Miss Gillars is being tried for treason. The basis of the charge is the radio program that she broadcast regularly to American troops in which she sought to persuade them they were fighting on the wrong side. Her programs, prepared under the direction of the Goebbels Ministry of Information, were in fact highly popular among large numbers of American soldiers, who knew Miss Gillars as "Axis Sally." This popularity, however, seems to have been due more to the musical than the political content of the programs. But if the jury is persuaded that the enemy derived aid and comfort from them, and returns a verdict accordingly, it will lie within the discretion of the court whether or not to impose the penalty of death.

For this reason five prospective jurors who said under examination that they were opposed to the death penalty in such cases had to be excluded from the final panel. Candidates for the jury were examined on various other points: about their racial and religious origins, whether they listened to particular radio news commentators, whether they had seen a particular movie, whether they had ever been members of any of a long list of social and political organizations, including the B'nai B'rith, the Dante Alighieri Society and the German-American Bund, whether they could read German and whether they liked or disliked Englishmen.

As the questioning proceeded, it appeared for a time that hardly any jury not exclusively comprised of hermits, cloistered monks or explorers recently returned from a 10-year excursion into an uncharted wilderness could be considered competent to try such a case. At one point Judge Curran asked the prospective jurors to indicate whether they had ever had any opinions "either for or against" the policies of the Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill. However, all members of the panel indicated that they had been entirely passive and neutral about such matters as the Munich pact, the attack on Poland, the lend-lease agreements, the convoying of ships and so on. But, eventually, and somewhat to the surprise of those who remembered the five weeks of buffoonery involved in the selection of a jury for the mass sedition trial some years ago in the same courtroom, a jury was found that both prosecution and defense accepted as sufficiently open-minded to decide whether Miss Gillars had or had not committed treason against the United States.

In contrast to the meticulous care given to the selection of a jury in the Gillars complaint is the behavior of the attorneys for the 11 indicted Communist leaders. The burden of their complaint is that the panels for the grand and petit juries of the Federal Courts in New York, instead of being left to operations of chance, have been selected with too much care. A brief, challenging the constitutionality of the proceedings by which the Communist leaders were indicted, asserts that the jury lists were compiled from such sources as Who's Who in New York, the Directory of Directors, the Social Register, the Cross Reference Telephone Book, the membership rosters of university alumni associations and other such publications.

It is clear that we must reexamine the question of precisely what is meant by "a jury of one's peers." Since Mr. Alger Hiss was also indicted by one of these so called silkstocking juries, it will be interesting to see whether his attorneys raise a similar point. Yet one cannot help but reflect how eminently qualified Mr. Hiss himself would have seemed a few years ago for such a jury.

"Butterlegging"

Three leading national dairy organizations have devised a new plan for arresting the encroachments of the oleomargarine industry on their preserves. They are now prepared to indorse repeal of all Federal taxes on oleomargarine, and to eliminate Federal license fees imposed on the industry, provided the manufacture and sale of colored margarine is banned. A bill embodying these proposals was introduced this week by Representative Andresen of Minnesota, an outstanding champion in Congress of the dairy industry.

This so-called compromise proposal is in reality a move to impose much more hampering restrictions upon the margarine industry than those resulting from the present Federal taxes. For it is the 10-cent Federal tax on the colored product that the margarine producers consider especially obstructive and aim to abolish as the first step in a campaign to remove Federal and State legislative restrictions on the sale of their products. To forbid the sale of the colored product would be equivalent to imposing a prohibitive tax on colored margarine that would increase the competitive handicaps to which the industry is subjected.

The dairy industry claims that this new policy of banning sales of colored margarine is essential in order to protect the housewife against fraud and deception and to make sure that diners in restaurants are not cheated by being served margarine instead of butter. Since margarine has to be wrapped and labeled as such, fraudulent sales of the product as butter are not likely to be widespread. And so far as public eating places are concerned, restaurateurs who are willing to risk fraudulent substitution of margarine for butter could carry on their nefarious activities by introducing coloring matter into the uncolored product, even if the sale of colored margarine were banned. Certainly housewives would continue to introduce coloring matter into the uncolored product, as at present, with no intention of deceiving either their families or their friends.

There is, of course, always a certain amount of fraud connected with the sale of any substitute article closely resembling the product it replaces. But there is no convincing evidence that "butterlegging"—to use a word coined by representatives of the dairy industry—constitutes a serious menace to producers of butter. The rapid increase in margarine consumption is chiefly attributable to the much lower prices now charged for this nutritious butter substitute. The dairy industry is simply trying to confuse the issue by pretending that the threat to its supremacy stems from fraudulent substitution of margarine for butter.

Undersecretary Wiggins of the Treasury Department said when testifying for repeal of the Federal taxes on margarine that in view of the experience of the Bureau of Internal Revenue with regulatory taxes, "it is believed that there is little need for the continued use of the taxing power to prevent misrepresentation of oleomargarine." If that is the case there is no justification whatever for imposing a legislative ban on sales of colored margarine as a police measure. On the other hand, there are excellent reasons for urging unconditional repeal of existing Federal taxes on margarine since, to quote the Treasury once more, they "distort the competitive position of two domestic industries, interfere with the optimum utilization of national resources, and unnecessarily burden consumers, far in excess of the amount paid in taxes."

Pan Asia

The Pan Asiatic nations that met in New Delhi are by and large the nascent states of what used to be the greatest colonial area of the world. They have much to look forward to, and the rest of the world has much to look for from them. The emphasis of their initial venture has been very strongly on keeping within the permissible limits of the United Nations Charter in organization and action. As a regional grouping for consideration of regional problems the Asian conference, if it becomes permanent, would differ from the Organization of American States only in being less cohesive and less concerned with strategic issues.

As a matter of fact, the unity demonstrated on the question of Indonesia may not always prevail—probably would not have prevailed at New Delhi if the Arab nations had brought up the Palestine issue. Asian dissimilarities are as yet more evident than Asian similarities. But, if there are many things on which the Asian nations may not see eye to eye, there are still many regional problems on which they are the best authorities. It will be a great gain for the world if they can help each other in the trials of emerging from the colonial era to full independence. Their orientation is predominantly toward democracy and toward friendship with the United States. Our interest lies in affording sympathy and help, and in particular we should get to know Prime Minister Nehru better. As a disciple of Gandhi, Nehru cannot forget Gandhi's statesmanlike words: "I do not subscribe to the doctrine of Asia for the Asiatics, if it is meant as an anti-European combination."

Bevin's Apologia

The mixture of fact and fiction which marked Foreign Secretary Bevin's House of Commons exposition of British policy in the Middle East is a sorry commentary on the decline in political morality. The Arabs, to be sure, have "a cause that has got to be considered," but not for the reasons that Mr. Bevin advanced. He insulted his listeners by talking of the "gratitude" that Britain owed the Arabs for their help during the war. Gratitude! The narrowest squeak in the war occurred in the spring of 1941 when the Iraquis rose against Britain. The revolt was an integral part of the "great design" of Nazi strategy. Had the Iraquis succeeded in attaching Iraq to the Axis orbit, the British, then fighting alone, would have lost their chief sources of oil—Iraq and Iran. Moreover, the British Empire would have been split in twain. This would have meant that Hitler would have been enabled to deal with the two parts separately, moving then to India to join the Japanese and outflanking the Soviet Union through the Caucasus. General Smuts thinks of these weeks as the turning point. Defeat, he said, was saved by Greece, when it fought the invading Nazis, and so gave Britain six precious weeks of time "to get hold of Syria and save Iraq."

Who was the evil genius that played the role of Hitler's stooge in this Iraq revolt? The notorious Haj Amin el-Husseini, former Mufti of Jerusalem, who fled after Iraq was recognized, and spent the rest of the war in Berlin, broadcasting Hitler's cause to the Middle East. Mr. Churchill called him Britain's worst enemy. But he was not alone, nor was Iraq the only Arab problem state. The entire Arab world was disaffected. After declaring war on Britain in May, 1941, Iraq was routed, and turned around and declared war on Germany in January, 1943. The others waited almost till VE-Day, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Syria, and the Lebanon taking the step in February, 1945. "Every Arab," writes the English commander of the Trans-Jordan Arab Legion, Glubb Pasha, "was convinced that we were done for. Every Arab force previously organized by us mutinied and refused to fight for us, or faded away in desertions. The men of the Arab Legion alone . . . stood firmly by us." Perhaps Mr. Bevin was not being consciously fictional. Prejudice, of which Mr. Churchill roundly accused him in the Commons debate, can play tricks with the memory. This is bad for policy-making, for, if Mr. Bevin had remembered aright, he would have realized that the Arabs lost battles against the Jews because of their lack of wartime experience and the Jews won them because, thanks mainly to Mr. Churchill, they had had wartime experience—fighting on the side of Britain. As Mr. Churchill said, the apologia was "the quintessence of maladdress," and it is no wonder the Foreign Secretary got a sharply reduced vote of confidence.

Advice In Bigotry

The Metropolitan Police Department had better do some careful checking, it seems to us, on the kind of "advice" given out by its members in uniform on other than police matters. Take, for example, the case of Lieut. George E. Cooper of the Twelfth Precinct, who represented the department officially at a meeting of the North Capitol Citizens Association Monday night. He has been in the habit, apparently, of answering questions far beyond police jurisdiction, and at this meeting he was asked how to prevent the feared devaluation of residential property caused by the sale of adjacent property—in other words, sale to Negroes. Lieutenant Cooper replied that in his judgment this could be avoided by requiring property owners to post surety bonds of $2000 against the sale of their property to "undesirables", and, moreover, that he felt this device would be upheld by the courts. Clearly this is a maneuver to get around the recent Supreme Court decision denying the enforceability of racial covenants. Irrespective of Lieutenant Cooper's private opinions, he has no business voicing them in his official capacity when they are in direct conflict with public policy. The Police Department is supposed to represent all the people—including the "undesirables" who help pay Lieutenant Cooper's salary.

Bad Apple

House Republicans muffed a perfect opportunity to get off a hook in the case of Representative J. Parnell Thomas. They have put him right back in his old spot as senior Republican member of the Un-American Activities Committee. Without a doubt this shortsighted action will hinder Republican revival. Despite the improved quality of other appointments, the continued deference to Representative Thomas will make it appear to many persons that reform of the committee's methods and personnel is sheer hokum as far as the Republicans are concerned. The selection was the more stupid in view of the forward step taken by the Democrats in dumping John Rankin and enforcing a rule that members of the committee must be lawyers—a rule which, if the Republicans had observed it, would have afforded a convenient excuse for eliminating Mr. Thomas. In addition to a penchant for headlines which has made a mockery of any serious work by the committee, Mr. Thomas has the ugly blemish of an indictment for payroll padding in his own office. It is scandalous that the Republicans should put him in a position to investigate other Americans while he himself is under investigation.

TVA Steam Plant

Life Magazine's January 24 criticism of the Nation's editorial writers states the reason the editorial plea for economy won't be heeded "is lack of specific advice on what, where, why budgets can only be cut in detail." Timeliness suggests one of the first places spending can well be cut is the Tennessee Valley Authority request for funds to build a steam generating plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn.

The Federal Government plans initially the spending of 54 million dollars for the steam plant, with the ultimate cost probably 200 million. This would be the first steam plant constructed by the Federal Government any time, any place for commercial purposes. If built, the Federal Government would assume a new function and would be in the electric business outright.

The Federal Government now produces hydroelectric power only as by-product to its proper functions of flood control, navigation and reclamation. If the TVA steam plant is authorized, a new pattern will be set and the Government could build others any place. And these, along with transmission lines, would open the door to enormous Federal spending. As a matter of fact, plans for other steam plants already are announced.

We contend that the area can get necessary steam capacity without Federal appropriations. Alternatives are: (1) industries in the Federally favored TVA area can build their own capacity as they do elsewhere; (2) TVA can purchase power from neighboring private companies which are continuously increasing capacity; (3) large cities in Tennessee have good credit and can build their own plants separately or jointly.

"Brownstone Ghost"

One would expect better things from you, who work in that Greystone Ghost, The Washington Post Building, than your editorial, January 19, "Brownstone Ghost." To those of us to whom the Henderson Castle stood as the materialization of an enchanting creation of the most beautiful architecture, the word of a master builder, embodied in stone and set in the frame of a most wonderfully suitable site, and to whom it was a vision straight from fairy-land, as well as a monument to the spirit of that most peculiarly American individualism which made it possible for us to build up our great country from a refuge in the wilderness to its present proud position, your diatribe against it is a nauseating shock.

I would suggest to you, in furtherance of your love of modernistic architecture, that you make immediate arrangements to have the lovely Washington Post Building, which was so carefully enlarged, in recent years, in the traditional architectural design which its original builder selected, torn down and replaced by one of those slab-sided architectural monstrosities which are so characteristic of soulless modernity. Better yet, go dig yourself a hole in the ground to live in, and become a neo-troglodyte in anticipation of the day when modern warfare shall have made your "sun-drenched, earth hugging" architectural nightmares as obsolete as the Henderson Castle which you so unfeelingly castigate.

I am very sorry that Mrs. Henderson's plan to present the Castle to the Nation as a vice presidential residence was not successful. I am sorry that Congress did not purchase it from her estate after her death, and make it either a vice presidential residence or a museum and park, like Maymont in Richmond, Va. Deuteronomy, 19-14, should have taught us that the Henderson Castle was an ancient landmark which should not have been removed.

Transit Radios

If any store I now patronize begins to use transit radio, I'm going in and tell them why they have just lost our family of 10 as customers. When a product is advertised on transit radio, I'll buy some other brand—and I'll tell the dealer why the transit-advertised brand is off my shopping list.

If the advertisers are allowed to know that transit advertising is regarded as an annoyance by the riders, I believe the whole nuisance could be stopped.

"The Initiative Is Ours"

Allow me to congratulate you on your editorial of January 21 in which you asserted that: "The inevitable, if our faith means anything, is a world resting on law . . . a community made visible out of nation states."

If you were to sponsor in your editorial section a drive against cancer, you would probably take the following attack: (1) Emphasize the terrible toll in lives, productivity and happiness that has been occasioned by cancer; (2) elaborate the methods which are now available to cure cancer; (3) appeal to the people that our resources and knowledge should be applied to extend these cures.

Without steps 2 and 3, a cancer drive would not be a cancer drive. Likewise it is not enough to reiterate daily in the editorial section the direct and indirect results of group sovereignty and war which have plagued us for thousands of years, e. g.: education vs. armament and trade vs. tariffs. The front page tells us of these disturbing problems. In order to justify its existence the editorial section must primarily devote itself to crying aloud the cure and firing the will of the people to effect this cure.

"The same law for all people" should be the words on the lips of the people of this Nation whose greatness has been possible only because these States were united under this principle.

Snowbound In Utah

Following are excerpts from a letter from my mother in Cedar City, Utah, which I thought would be of interest because of the descriptions of the blizzard conditions there. My parents operate a ranch with 1000 head of cattle.

"I live in a world of white. . . . We have never seen or known of so much snow, blizzarding, drifting, not a break in the white cover except the cattle and fences. The blanket makes the mountains and lower hills look like exaggerated mounds. Alex and Dad say that they have wallowed through 2 feet in feeding, and tonight it is drifting and blowing. We came out on Sunday after shipping a car of the steers.

"The boys held a council of war and decided to ship the other two cars and try to save the young stock. Alex already had the caterpillar, so while I kept the fire going, they've scraped snow and got feed places, and most of the nearby cattle in. Here in the corrals, three calves, one cow and the Brama bull are dead. They all stand hunched and cold. We may lose a great many more. We don't know what exists in the outlying areas.

"Reports say 28 inches at home, so the boys there are not having an easy time either. We don't know when we can get out of here now, but if Alex needs to, he can get us out with the cat. It is 2 miles to the county road. I guess they will have it scraped.

"The trains have been having trouble all day and night. . . . They have to keep men at each switch and fires to keep switches thawed out. The horses have never been in to drink. . . .

"For exercise I don overshoes and by following Alex's path, climb onto the truck and sweep snow from the load of pellets, and from which height I survey a world of white, the extent of which I had not imagined possible. The hump is straightening out on the backs of the stock. They keep up a constant bawling. We hear a new sound, too—a steam engine on the snaky line of black freight cars feeling their way along.

"A great icicle, 4 feet or more, hangs from the roof. Alex tosses Tom (the cat) as high as he can. He falls into a deep bank and has a hard time to come up.

"Later. Wayne just flew over with a note from Marty. The heavy snow has caved the roof of the hangars in (at Cedar City) and all small planes are crushed. The roads out this way are all closed. The wind roars and drifts and stings on with the icy snow. The road that Alex so tortuously made yesterday up into the hills, yielded them 115 head of cattle stranded, unable to move and so weak some could hardly get here. Instead of turning back with Dad, Alex went on to a smaller bunch—hoping they would get in the trail and come. They didn't and now the trail is filled in again.

"The hands have the cattle in four bunches, good, better, worse and worst and they bawl 'til past believing. There are still 500 head or so out that they can't get to yet.

"Marty sent out food stuff in a sack and when Wayne dropped it (by air) in the bunch of cattle, they all ran. The question I keep asking—how long can stock live without lying down? How much can humans endure of cold, exposure and worry?

"Dad is riding to the Church cattle again today. He will try and get the foreman to get these notes over to the railroad and in the mail. Lehi brought papers and a map showing stranded cattle and dropped them in a bundle. Alex is trying to reach another bunch today. They have to get hay and fuel very soon. There is no wind today but cold, and we nearly froze in bed two nights in spite of plentiful bedding and heat all night.

"We all feel sometimes as if we could just quit and leave it to the elements, but like those from centuries past, into our minds jumps the determination to fight and to do and be something more. So I go on trying to keep calm, hold on to my hat, my tongue, my sanity, and my job." ESTHER PORTER.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Republican Split

OMAHA, NEBR.—In the mood of quiet despair that has possessed him since November 2, one of my Republican friends has gone so far as to say that he believes the Republican Party is dead. He has gone even further to say that the two-party system is dead and that perhaps it would be just as well and a great economy to have only one party.

This can be put down to the state of shock from which he is slowly recovering. But here in Omaha, where the Republican National Committee is meeting, you can understand what my friend means.

Of course, we who are gathered here do not accept any such counsel of despair. We feel that the very fact of getting here, in spite of canceled planes, trains hours late, snow, ice and bitter cold, is in itself an achievement—a token that the spark is still burning.

Yet, we must confess that we are a lonely band. We huddle in the corridors of the Fontenelle Hotel and we think of the cattle and sheep in the West, snowbound, threatened.

An air-lift from Washington for us, and for the embattled Republicans? We reject such a cowardly thought. We are made of sterner stuff than that.

At the same time, what troubles us most deeply is not necessarily the sense of the bitter defeat of last November, which was the fourth in a row. We are troubled because even now in this extremity we seem unable to find any common focus for our energies, our brains and our emotions.

THE STRONGEST current to emerge is one that would restore power, temporarily at least, to the Middle West. The party can find a more realistic base in the Midwest, for in spite of what happened in November there are still grass roots.

A Midwesterner—Roy E. Dunn of Minnesota or Ralph Gates of Indiana—would, as chairman of the committee, more nearly represent what the party is today. Representative Hugh D. Scott, jr., of Philadelphia, is no more than a rather thin front for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and the forces on the Eastern seaboard that failed to elect him.

The split in the GOP today is as much a matter of geography as anything else. It is the Eastern seaboard and the high-power technicians and specialists who put over Governor Dewey at the Philadelphia convention versus the Middle West and a rock-ribbed Republicanism that goes down to the solid stratum of Herbert Hoover.

This is inevitably an oversimplification. There are men and women from out in the country who are loyal to Governor Dewey. But as a generalization it is true.

One of the useful purposes this meeting serves is to air embittered feelings long suppressed. My, harsh indeed are the things being said here both in public and in private about Governor Dewey and his team. Harsher things by far than the Democrats ever said.

TO THOSE who think like Senator Homer Capehart of Indiana, for example, Governor Dewey was always anathema. One member of the committee, sputtering with indignation, described the fallen standard-bearer as way to the left of President Truman, adding that if Republicans wanted to go in the direction of Senate Republican liberals, then he would apply to Gov. J. Strom Thurmond for membership in the Dixiecrats.

One thing about this meeting is its dismaying familiarity. It has a dreamlike, repetitious quality. We all have been here before, again and again and again.

Thus, here is Harrison E. Spangler, national committeeman from Iowa, which, unlike loyal Nebraska, went over to the enemy last fall. Good old Spang. In a day's driving, and when the roads aren't icy, you couldn't find a pleasanter or more agreeable companion. But his political thinking goes back at least to the Han dynasty.

Or take Mrs. Worthing Scranton (sometimes irreverently referred to as Mrs. Wilkes-Barre) of Scranton, national committeewoman from Pennsylvania. Illness has unfortunately prevented Mrs. Scranton from making the long trek to Omaha or we should have seen her, as so often in the past, complete with orchids—and how many orchids!

Time changes many things and particularly in the fantastic age in which we live. But it lays its hand lightly on the Republican National Committee. And therein is a dilemma that sorely troubles those who have come here with the conviction that this should be more—a great deal more—than a postmortem.

Axis Sally

In your columns I noticed that Axis Sally has gone on trial in Washington on charges of treason, before a jury of citizens. The last time we GIs heard her in Italy and Corsica was when she was broadcasting from Rome, back in 1944.

While Axis Sally may have given "aid and comfort" to the enemies of the United States, she also provided a great deal of fun and amusement to the soldiers of the United States who, far from being depressed in morale, got many a good laugh out of her broadcasts.

It is hoped the Washington jury of her "peers" will turn her loose. ELLIOT BRUCE.

Matter of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Let's Remember November 2

ROME.—In this old honey-colored city, with its immemorial beauty and air of easy luxury, unpleasant facts are easy to forget. But it is a vital fact nonetheless that all the improvement that can be accomplished in Italy by the European Recovery Program cannot make the life of the Italian masses anything but cruelly hard. All authorities indeed agree that the only solution of Italy's economic problem is mass emigration—the inclusion of human beings among articles for export.

In these circumstances, it is downright shocking that American policy is rapidly acquiring the reputation of being reactionary. Specifically, here in Italy land reform must take first place in any program of social betterment. Significantly, it is among the dispossessed workers of the great southern Italian latifundia that communism is now making its only progress in Italy. Yet passive American opposition to land reform has just been indicated by no less a personality than the chief of the ERP mission here, J. D. Zellerbach.

This sort of thing was perhaps understandable before the November election. With a reactionary Congress breathing down their necks and a Republican President looming up ahead, the executant of American policy in Europe had a natural tendency to walk very carefully. Furthermore, although this did not come out during the campaign, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey apparently gave them good reasons for doing so.

IT IS understood, for instance, that at a dinner in New York shortly before the election, Dewey asked Gen. Lucius D. Clay to tell the Germans he meant to have no truck with the powerful Social Democratic Party. Simultaneously in France men close to him were deeply alarming the French Center parties by their close association with leading Gaullists. Meanwhile, here in Italy, certain minor figures of this ERP mission were making no bones about their sympathy with the Italian Rightist parties and their assurance of future support in Washington.

The real source of the general Italian belief in American opposition to land reform was, however, a private warning given the government by Zellerbach in September. For practical reasons which held good at that time, he warned that reforms must not hamper the harvest in the present crucial crop year. On the other hand, although Zellerbach may not have noticed it, the American election has now shown our people on the side of social progress. The crisis year is over in Italy. And there can be no possible excuse for the statement issued by Zellerbach, just before leaving Italy, that he could not countenance any land reforms which would result even in a temporary drop in the land's productivity.

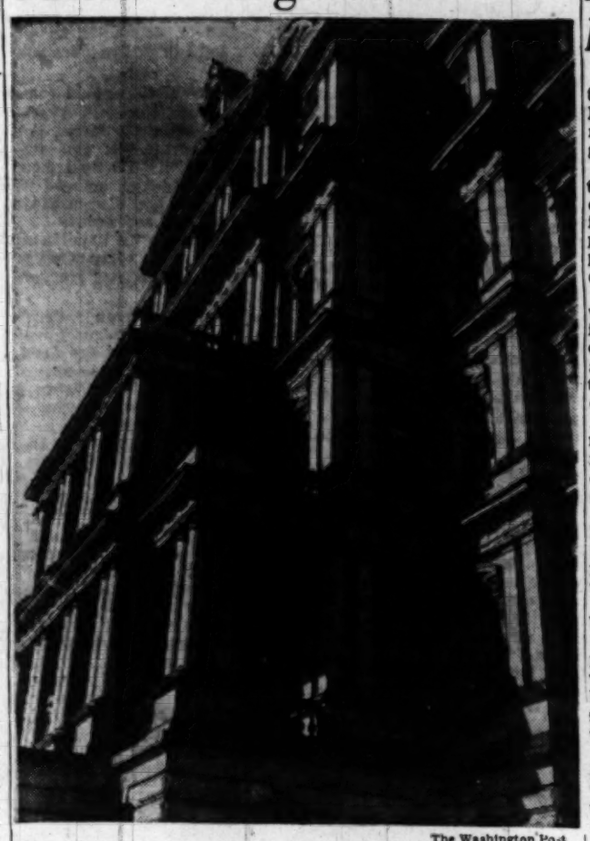
As a practical matter, the Zellerbach statement has really explosive implications. American influence is now strongly felt in every sphere of Italian politics. Premier de Gasperi is committed to land reform, and he and the majority of his cabinet wish to begin the job immediately. They are being powerfully obstructed, however, by the Rightist parties in the government. And now Zellerbach has played directly into the Rightists' hands. For great changes always bring some confusion. And any effective land reform is virtually impossible on Zellerbach's terms.

WHAT makes the whole business still more shocking is the demonstrable fact that the Zellerbach attitude is fantastically unbusinesslike. We are already spending nearly 600 million dollars a year merely to stop the Communists in Italy. An additional outlay of a few tens of millions, to cover the initial cost of land reform, will deal the Communists a crippling, perhaps even a deadly blow. By any business standard, it would be hard to find a more attractive investment.

No blame here attaches to Ambassador James Clement Dunn, who has done a singularly brilliant job, or to the State Department, whose instructions to press for land reform Zellerbach has ignored. But distributing the blame is not important. What is important is to grasp the central issue.

After all, Centrist governments like de Gasperi's cannot last forever. It is vital to create in Europe a healthy, non-Communist Left, which can take power when the time comes. The conditions for the emergence of such a healthy Left are just beginning to be created by the weakening of the Communist grip on most sectors of the broad working masses. A whole new political scene can take form in Europe if America will only stand forth as the champion, not of the rich few, but of the suffering many. That is the only way the job can be done. That is the secret of the future. And for Americans, including Zellerbach, that should be the chief lesson in Italy.

General's 'Target'



The Washington Post

CRITICIZED—Gen. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, asked in a report to the Joint Committee on the National Capital that the old State, War and Navy Building "be preserved as an object lesson of how wrong architects can be when they are most confident that they are right"

Plan Proposed to Put Teeth In Advice Given by NCPPC

A plan to put some "teeth" into the advice of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission may soon be on its way to Congress.

This was learned yesterday as the commission concluded its two-day monthly session and reported it had approved a reorganization plan which the Budget Bureau has prepared to redefine the powers of the planning body.

Legislation to accomplish this was asked early last year by President Truman, who called together officials responsible for the National Capital's development and told them that he intended to strengthen the NCPPC's powers.

At the present time he commission may advise on all matters relating to the development of the city, but has no legal authority to enforce its advice.

The legislation which the Budget Bureau is preparing at Truman's bidding, for congressional hoppers, also would add two members to the commission.

The additional appointees would be suggetsed by the Governors of Maryland and Virginia and appointed by the President. They would work with the present members of the NCPPC on a development of a comprehensive plan for the Greater Washington region.

In his budget message to Congress earlier this month, President Truman reaffirmed his stand on the position of the Planning Commission. He declared:

"The role of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission should be redefined and a stronger statutory basis established for the proper development of the District of Columbia and nearby areas in Maryland and Virginia."

In other actions yesterday, the commission gave its approval to a site for a fountain, commemorating the late Andrew Mellon. The foundation is to be placed on a small triangle east of 6th st. nw., at the intersection of Pennsylvania and Constitution aves., and will face the National Gallery of Art.

The commission also considered three proposals for widening Independence ave. up Capitol Hill to a point opposite the Library of Congress.

Two of the proposals, General Grant said, would involve relocation of streetcar tracks on the present avenue location. One of the plans would involve the purchase of private property below the new House Office Building. All three proposals were submitted for further consideration, and for more realistic estimates of their probable cost.

House Group Opens Hearings On Pension Plan for Veterans

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The House Veterans Committee opened hearings yesterday on a veterans pension proposal which would cost the taxpayers an estimated three billions a year.

The bill was introduced by Chairman John Rankin (D., Miss.) and already presents a thorny problem to the Administration's House leadership. Rankin, who was ousted by the leadership from the Un-American Activities Committee, has predicted favorable action on his proposal. If the measure reaches the floor, House leaders acknowledge it will be hard to defeat.

The measure would pay a pension of $60 a month to all veterans of World War I and II on their reaching the age of 60 and $90 a month on reaching 65.

Eighteen Million Affected

Some 18 million war veterans would eventually be eligible—more than 3,500,000 of them within the next 10 years according to Veterans' Administration figures.

Cost of the measure is estimated at a billion dollars the first year and three billion after five years and thereafter.

The bill also provides additional disability pensions for nonservice connected disabilities ranging from $20 to $120 a month.

Representatives of both the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars testified yesterday.

VFW proposed bonus legislation calls for payment of $3 a day for service within the United States up to $3500 and $4 a day for overseas service up to $4500.

Legion Omits Bonus

The Legion omitted any bonus proposal in its 1949 legislation program but asked an increase in payments to disabled veterans, widows, orphans and dependents; housing aid, pensions and an amendment to the social security law allowing credit for time spent in service.

Omar B. Ketchum, VFW legislative director, asked the committee to adopt a pension program which he said was designed to place the veterans of the last two wars on the same footing now enjoyed by the Spanish American War veterans.

His proopsals asks a monthly pension of $90 at the age of 65.

Ketchum said a service pension "is a tradition of this country," although the last pension law was enacted in 1921 for veterans of the Spanish-American War.

2 Million Population Expected In Greater Washington by 1980

the National Society of Mural Painters.

Here are highlights of the report on the comprehensive plan, both as to conditions which need correcting and plans for their correction, as outlined by General Grant:

Backlog of need: Washington's development as a city sometimes "responds to selfish at the expense of public interests." The city has more than 40,000 substandard houses. More than 18,000 families cannot find safe and sanitary low-rent shelter. Last year 15,000 veterans could not find "fit housing which they could afford."

Federal employment—A supercharge: "Has created a congestion in the central business area that is rapidly bringing diminishing returns and threatening the stability of the central business area itself . . . The time seems to have come to stop the continued piling up of Federal employment into the congested central area west of the Capitol . . ."

Decentralization of Federal buildings: "Permanent buildings" (should be placed "on sites . . . east of the Capitol for those now working in temporary buildings and rented offices to provide for the inevitable future growth of agencies that must be kept together . . . Such a policy . . . would stimulate growth and new construction in the residential areas north and south of East Capitol st., among the oldest and least active in recent years."

"From the strictly city planning standpoint it would seem preferable to locate (agencies not immediately concerned with the central Federal administration) in the vicinity of the Fort Drive, where property is not too expensive and they would have express road access to one another . . ."

Unneeded agencies: "The part of wisdom seems to be to study each institution (with considerable acreage which has settled in the District) to determine whether it properly belongs . . . whether it is putting any of its holdings to unjustified uses . . . whether it is in the public interest for it to remain here or for it to move elsewhere." (Examples cited by General Grant: Soldiers' Home and National Arboretum.)

"To this end our commission will repeat its previous recommendations for legislation setting up a special board to make this investigation, with authority to summon witnesses, question authorities having information and responsibilities with respect to the institutions, and fully investigate the benefits as well as the possible disadvantages of each."

Fort Drive: "To provide a rapid connection between outlying residential sections and between the various main arterial highways, the commission proposed the Fort Drive, a circumferential express parkway. The right of way was relatively inexpensive to acquire, and 94 per cent of it is owned by the Government now. It can be developed step by step, and the Military rd. section crossing Rock Creek Park is on the program for early construction."

Traffic: "A further expansion in circumferential expressway to gather and distribute traffic before it enters the congested central area . . . is becoming imperative. Such an expressway will be expensive to locate and build, and there will consequently be an urge to defer it, but delay will only increase the cost."

Streetcars and buses: "Streetcars are essentially local transportation and any extensive placing of them underground will not merely be money wasted but would largely by-pass the passengers that now support them . . . The case of buses is different from that of streetcars, as buses can pass one another, so that express bus service is possible and convenient, and buses can be rerouted to meet changing traffic demands without expensive track and trolley construction . . . Indeed it is plain . . . that new lines of public transportation will be buses, running on both express and local schedules; and . . . that gradual replacement of streetcar service by buses can adequately care for the public transport needs of the community if the load on the central area is stabilized and diffused as proposed."

Atomic Bomb: "The National Capital Park and Planning Commission is not the proper agency to define just what measures should be taken to provide against material injury to the National Capital and to the functioning of the Federal Government in case of an effective surprise attack from the air . . . It is evident that some essential activities will merit being housed in special structures for adequate protection, but that the cost of such protection for the whole Government establishment would be prohibitive . . . Looking forward to 1980 . . . international control of atomic energy and of war may have been established by then. The normal development of the community may again have been possible for several years . . ." after digressions . . . which were expedients to meet what we may hope will prove but a temporary danger."

ZONING: "Many shortcomings in the present zoning have become apparent . . . A glaring instance is the small part of the area zoned for multifamily dwellings that is so developed, in spite of the special demand here for such dwellings. There is . . . an evident excess of property zoned for commercial use over what is needed and mislocation of much of it . . . Noncomforming uses generally have a monopoly and so a differential in their favor. There is little hope of their dying off naturally.

"Too often the interest seeking an unearned increment by a change of zoning is ably represented or even not understood.

"We foresee the definite recommendation that the zoning regulations and map be restudied and revised in detail as soon as the personnel and funds can be made available; also that a definite term be set for the termination of nonconforming uses."

Slum Clearance: "On the whole the (District of Columbia Redevelopment Act of 1945) is believed to be adequate, except for some crippling amendments that were inserted by interests hostile to public housing to impede its execution, which certainly need to be rescinded . . .

"Some of the most unreasonable opposition to the appropriation of funds has come from some groups of colored citizens, whose friends and neighbors would be the chief beneficiaries of the projects. This is particularly surprising when the stalwart support of the colored educators and social workers was so helpful in getting the legislation adopted in the first place. It is evident that they misunderstand what is proposed or have been misled by propaganda to thwart the effort that would help their poor brethren most."

Recreation centers: "What is mainly urgent is appropriations adequate to carry the acquisition of the land actually needed to a conclusion as soon as possible . . . before improvements and rebuilding make the cost prohibitive."

Public buildings: "There are those who deride as old fashioned and obsolete everything that lacks 'the new look' . . . For my part I shall continue to ask that some of the best things of the past at least be preserved as milestones to mark the development of our taste and culture, and that even the old State, War and Navy Building . . . be preserved as an object lesson of how wrong architects can be when they are most confident that they are right."

Population: "It may be said that in the long run every employe added to the Federal establishment means six to seven people added to the total population . . . Under existing zoning . . . there is room in the District of Columbia itself for 1,050,000 to 1,100,000 inhabitants. Urban redevelopment and new buildings should increase this capacity . . . The rate of increase in the middle, or most productive age group, is two or three times as fast as the rate of increase in the oldest group . . .

"In Washington the selective migration produces a faster increase in the middle age group than is experienced in the country at large. This will produce a progressively more prosperous population in Washington . . . Within the next 30 years there should be no increasing financial burden because of the necessity of supporting indigent old persons."

Execution of the plan: "In order to secure execution of features of the regional plan . . . not the responsibility of any one political entity . . . I suggest a tri-State administrative and construction agency like the New Jersey-New Jersey Port Authority."

"Certainly, Democracy . . . if it is to justify its existence in the opinion of the World Community . . . must produce here at least one city that sets an example for the emulation of others and shows how these urban problems can be solved."

Development of Responsibility

Robert Woods Bliss, chairman of the Joint Committee on the National Capitol, presided. He traced the development of the "recognition of responsibility" for adequate development of the Capital City within the member organizations sponsoring the affair.

These groups are banded together, he said, seeking opportunities to cooperate on worth-while undertakings when the occasion offers. Both the occasion and the opportunity are "just around the corner," he said. "The occasion is the coming sesquicentennial and the opportunity is to do now the things we have left undone."

Earle Draper, vice president of the American Planning and Civic Association, told of the organization and efforts of the Committee of 100 on the Federal City, and C. Melvin Charpe, chairman of that committee, explained its sole ideal to be the "maintenance and advancement of Washington as one of the outstanding capitals of the world."

U. S. Educational Asks Foreign Student Probe

The United States Advisory Commission on Educational Exchange asked the State Department yesterday to investigate reports that foreign students in this country are suffering acute financial distress.

It asked the department to report back by February 28.

The commission made the request after conferring with leading educators who claimed foreign students might have to abandon their American schooling because of rising education costs and other factors. The educators said the entire student exchange program is threatened.

Must Cut Aid, Taft Declares

American aid to Europe must be diminished this year and subsequently, Senator Robert A. Taft told the Ohio Society of Washington last night, to convince Europeans we will not subsidize their recovery without their own aid.

Speaking on the anniversary of the death of Ohio's President William McKinley, Senator Taft told an audience of 300 at the Wardman Park Hotel, "this country must not try to maintain a standard of living in Europe higher than Europe itself can eventually maintain."

Taft was introduced as "the real leader of the Senate" by Senator John Bricker (R., Ohio).

He said the country needed a man with President McKinley's simple concept of foreign policy, "based on principles of justice and freedom."

Such a man would convince Europe that recovery is possible only when a nation is willing to spend its own money and energy to rebuild itself, Taft said.

Senator Taft said he had learned McKinley's foreign policy as a child, when the Ohio President sent his father to become Governor General of the Philippine Islands. In that job, his father was required to sell American justice and freedom to people who were unfamiliar with the words, Taft said.

The senior Senator from Ohio complimented the personnel of the ECA. "They're not a give-away crowd," he said. "But we must realize as absolute hogwash that there is such a thing as a perfect ERP, to which 18 billion dollars is absolutely necessary and to which an appropriation of 15 billion dollars would mean failure."

"Any aid we can give is valuable if it is spent wisely," he concluded. "But all aid is only helpful, not conclusive."

Most Voters Voice Admiration And Regard for Herbert Hoover

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 27—Herbert Hoover's many years of public service have earned him warm admiration from the great majority of his fellow citizens.

The Republican elder statesman, now completing a mammoth study for reorganizing and streamlining the functions of the Federal Government, left the White House 16 years ago one of the most criticized and unpopular outgoing Presidents in modern history. Today, the popular attitude toward him has changed completely.

In a recent coast-to-coast survey by the institute, more than five out of every ten voters questioned expressed admiration and approval for Mr. Hoover. A total of 24 per cent gave unfavorable opinions but this included 8 per cent who said they disapproved of him only as former President

The survey found that Mr. Hoover is one of the best-known men in America.

Attitudes toward him were brought out in answer to the "open" question:

"What is your opinion of Herbert Hoover?"

The answers fell into the following general categories:

APPROVAL
Favorable general opinions, approval	32%
Intense approval, excellent man	11
Approval of more recent activities	4	53%
Defense of him as former president	6
DISAPPROVAL
Unfavorable general opinions	16%
Disapproval as former president	8	24%
NO OPINION	23

GOP Names New Executive Board

Omaha, Nebr., Jan. 27 (AP).—A new executive committee of the Republican National Committee to supplant the group previously named by National Chairman Hugh D. Scott was announced here tonight.

Scott's selection of an executive committee without consulting many of the party leaders was one of the grounds on which efforts were made to oust him from his party post at the National Committee's meeting here yesterday and today.

The new executive group inby Scott, plus 4 new committee cludes 11 of those named last week members, all of whom had voted against Scott in today's balloting.

Newly-named members on the committee were Guy George Gabrielson of New Jersey, Mrs. Margaret Rockwell of Arizona, Mrs. Charles Hickman of Iowa and Carroll Reece of Tennessee, former national chairman.

They replaced four Scott supporters: Mrs. Worthington Scranton of Pennsylvania, Mrs. Cecil M. Harden of Indiana, Jouett Ross Todd of Kentucky and Mrs. Daniel J. Schneider of Colorado.

Walter S. Hallanan of West Virginia, a leader in the fight against Scott, told a reporter the composition of the new executive board was "quite satisfactory."

The committee approved unanimously a resolution by Arthur Summerfield of Michigan to set up a policy committee of 12 members.

Under the Summerfield proposal the national committee would furnish four members, and two members each would come from the Senate, House, State Republican committees and State finance chairmen.

Senators Brewster of Maine and Wherry of Nebraska said this answered a demand by members of Congress for close cooperation in the handling of policy matters connected with the 1950 campaign.

Scott told reporters that this policy committee, which he would serve as chairman, will be authorized to decide whether to hold a national Republican policy drafting conference this year.

Scott already has urged the calling of such a meeting.

James Kemper, national treasurer, announced that when the party pays $60,000 in outstanding campaign bills it still will have more than $500,000 in its war chest.

Scott announced the appointment of Barak T. Mattingly of Missouri as committee counsel.

New Committee

House GOP To Publicize Its Record

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter,

House Republicans yesterday voted to set up their own special information committee to take the GOP legislative record to the country.

The action was a clear slap at Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's soft pedal on the Eightieth Congress in the last campaign but no hint of criticism crept into the wording of the resolution.

The Capitol fairly buzzed with GOP plans for a ding-dong 1949-50 campaign as Senate Republicans, in another conference:

1. Authorized the Senate GOP Policy Committee to arrange for a "town meeting" of the 42 Republican Senators to thresh out wide differences between them and try to find a solid area of agreement.

2. Named Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) and former Senator John Townsend (R., Del.) to serve as "cochairmen" of the 1950 Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee. The joint chairmanship was approved after several Senators balked at giving the job exclusively to Brewster.

Creation by the House GOP of a "Committee on Public Information for Republicans" followed widespread complaints by House Republicans that the record of the Eightieth Congress wasn't adequately presented or defended in the last campaign.

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.) told newsmen:

"We will put our case before the country this time."

Martin denied, however, that the action implied criticism of the conduct of the last campaign.

"We are looking forward, not backward," he said.

Martin to Name Members

The resolution, adopted by a full conference of Republican members of the House, empowered Martin to appoint the new members of the GOP information unit. He would serve as an ex-officio member, as would Representative Leonard W. Hall (R., N. Y.), chairman of the House Republican campaign committee.

"The Republican Party has traditionally endeavored to keep the people fully informed regarding its aims and activities in Congress and regards such efforts as a part of its responsibility to the people," the resolution said.

"It is now evident in the light of recent events and the situation being what it is that the Republican members of the House . . . should take more positive steps toward adequately meeting this responsibility by setting up and carrying out a plan for the better coordination and distribution of information pertaining to Republican policies and actions."

Policy Group Ratified

The House Republican conference quickly ratified a new 22-member House GOP policy committee, "liberalized" to permit party representation on a geographic basis and without regard to seniority rights.

The new leadership setup, like the publicity move aimed at a more effective persentation of party policies, was recommended Wednesday by the GOP Committee on Committees, on Martin's motion.

The Senate Republican decision on a series of hair-down "town meeting" conferences, to seek a "common denominator" on party policies, was proposed by Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.), a leader of the party's liberal wing.

Conference Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.) said it will give every Republican in the Senate a chance to say their piece and should result in "some good Republican doctrine."

Tobey Plugs For Townsend

Only tiff in the conference of Republican Senators developed over initial slating of Brewster for the Senate campaign committee post and Townsend for chairman of a separate finance committee. Townsend, not now a member of the Senate, has long directed the Senate GOP campaigns, and was chairman when Republicans captured the Senate in 1946.

Tobey protested the sidetracking of Townsend and he was backed up by Senators from both wings of the party. Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) settled the row by moving to make Brewster and Townsend cochairmen.

These other Republican Senators were named to the campaign group: Butler (Nebr.), Ecton (Mont.), Ferguson (Mich.), Lodge (Mass.), Smith (N. J.), Thye (Minn.), and Williams (Del.).

Before adjourning, the Senate GOP conference decided to "push for action" on a change in Senate rules to curb filibusters, Millikin said.

Scott Holds GOP Chairmanship by Margin of 4 Votes

people," he said. "We're the subject of ridicule on every street corner. They are laughing at us because we didn't put up a fight."

He said that Scott, since he was picked by Governor Dewey at Philadelphia was associated with the unnecessary defeat. Contemplating a possible victory by Scott in the voting, the Iowan went on to say:

"Scott starts out with three strikes against him, and I predict he'll be a failure."

Harry Sommers, national committeeman for Georgia, said he found himself in an atmosphere of recrimination and revenge that made him feel that there was not much hope for the GOP. He criticized Scott's foes for praising him while "sticking a knife in his back." He wondered what he was gong to say to the Republicans of Georgia when he got back.

"Am I going to say that Mr. Spangler prevails, that Mr. Reece (former National Chairman Carroll Reece) runs the show?" he asked.

"My experience with Spangler in Philadelphia convinced me that he utterly lacks principle."

Chairman Scott, who was presiding, jumped to his feet and asked Sommers if he didn't care to withdraw the remark.

"No," yelled Sommers.

Scott, however, instructed the official stenographer to strike the remark from the record.

Sommers went on to excoriate Scott's foes, mentioning among other things that they had slipped unsigned notes under the doors of committeemen—notes accusing Scott of making a wire recording of their rosy views before November 2.

He said that if Scott were fired by the committee, the act would leave scars that would never heal.

The motion to table the resolution declaring the chairmanship vacant was made by McIntyre Faries, committeeman for California. After it was carried, Illinois committeeman, Werner W. Schroder, a Taft man, moved that Scott be given a rising vote of confidence.

Spangler and Reece were slow to react. But they finally got to their feet. The motion was adopted by a unanimous vote.

Chairman Scott, who had been under a terrific strain while presiding over what his friends called the attempted throat-cutting, was so overcome with emotion at the end tha he had rouble talking.

"You may wonder why a man would go through this thing," he said of his battle to hold a post that carries no salary.

"I've done it because I think the Republican Party and the country needed a demonstration of courage, and I think I've given you one."

Roy E. Dunn, 62-year-old committeeman for Minnesota, candidate of the anti-Scott forces, got the floor after the vote and congratulated Scott. He told how younger men were encouraged to move up in his and Harold Stassen's home State, and added:

"I'd like to have the Republican Party known as the party of progress and not the party of reaction any more."

Jacob France, veteran national committeeman for Maryland, introduced the resolution to fire Scott and opened the oratorical bombardment. He said that Governor Dewey "railroaded" the election of Scott to be national chairman.

He listed the "mistakes" of the campaign, telling how the Republican National Committee had failed to give full support to Reece in his race for the Senate in Tennessee and how it had "deserted" Chapman Revercomb in the senatorial battle in West Virginia.

Getting down to more recent times, France accused Chairman Scott of appointing an executive committee top-heavy with Dewey men.

"We can't carry on that way," the Marylander said. "There are others in the party, and they, too, must be consulted."

Walter S. Hallanan, committeeman for West Virginia, recalled the bright hopes at Philadelphia and said that the party leaders gathered in Omaha in an atmosphere of "humiliation." He said the election was lost because of "stupidity, arrogance and cockiness."

Clarence Buddington Kelland, author-politician, who represents Arizona in the committee said Scott had "abdicated" his authority to the Albany gang in the campaign.

"As I watched Hugh, the few times I saw him," Kelland said, amidst laughter, "he seemed to me a ghost wandering around looking for a campaign to haunt."

Ezra Whitla of Idaho defended Scott and read the records of Philadelphia to show that the members of the committee themselves were as much to blame as he was. He recalled that the committee, following custom, had asked Nominee Dewey to recommend a national chairman, and that the committee also had authorized Scott to appoint a Dewey campaign manager, who turned out to be Herbert Brownell.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Klutz

Civil Service to Seek Jobs for 1000 DCEs Laid Off 3 Years Ago

DCEs: The Civil Service Commission will again try to find jobs here for the 1000 DCEs, the jobless career employes who were laid off as long as three years ago. It decided on this step yesterday afternoon.

But how it will proceed is the troublesome problem. Agency quotas and plans of that sort have already been tried. The best guess is this program will be one of trying to persuade the agencies to hire the DCEs as vacancies occur.

PER DIEM: The Budget Bureau has formally approved the McClellan-Dawson bill to raise the traveling allowance of Federal employes from $6 to $10 per day. Both the Senate and House Expenditurees Committee received the Budget's go-ahead sign yesterday.

A survey made by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in cooperation with the Budget Bureau found that actual traveling costs were near the $10 daily figure proposed INCOME TAXES: And the travel allowances brings up a timely matter now that Federal workers are making out their income tax returns. Employes may subtract the actual amounts they pay out while traveling on official business in excess of the $6 allowance.

A revenue official suggests that the matter be handled in this way: To add the $6 daily allowance to your pay and then deduct your actual expenses—but be prepared to support your claim by holding onto your receipts and other supporting data. Most of the revenue offices will allow between $9 and $10-a-day for travel—but again, be prepared to prove it.

CASH AWARDS: Another tax angle—the cash given Federal workers for economy suggestions is subject to income tax and it should be listed along with other income.

FSA: DONALD J. PRYOR has been appointed assistant to Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing. His main job will be to keep Congress informed on FSA programs. He's a former Columbia Broadcasting news analyst . . . DR. HARRY EAGLE is the new chief of medical research of FSA's National Institute of Health . . . GEORGE W. MITCHELL, an Internal Revenue consultant, has been appointed director of finance for the State of Illinois.

STORY: Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming is an official who practices what he preaches. He has a campaign on to get his employes to make work and money saving suggestions.

The other day Fleming dropped two worthwhile suggestions that dealt with the operations of his Public Buildings Administration. Commissioner W. E. Reynolds sent his superior a note of thanks and in it was this sentence:

"A copy of this letter will be placed in your personnel folder so as to be available when promotions are under consideration."

NOTES: MATHEW HALE has been appointed acting solicitor of the Commerce Department . . . CHANNING DOOLEY has been appointed a manpower consultant for the International Labor Office which has headquarters in Geneva. He started many of the training programs in Government and he was an official with the wartime manpower commission . . . MARY CUSHING NILES of the Federal Personnel Council, has out a new book, Middle Management. Harper's is the publisher.

JOBS: Exams for dental assistant, $2284 to $2498, and color photographic technician, $4479 to $5232, have been announced by the Military District of Washington. Get details in Room 2-E-1030 of the Pentagon . . . The Army's Chemical Corps has vacancies for chemical safety engineer, $7432, and military intelligence research analyst, $6235. Submit applications to the civilian personnel branch, Room 2215, Tempo K.

FEDERAL PERSONNEL COUNCIL is working an several projects that are of automatic in-grade promotions on the dates they are due. Despite the law, some agencies delay making these promotions for a month or so. (2) To revise Form 57, the standard job application form, in order to get more of the applicant's background into it, and (3) a plan to help displaced career employes find jobs.

RETIREMENT: The Civil Service retirement division also is trying to speed up service to Federal Workers—provided it can get the cooperation of some Government agencies.

Division officials admit that many employes who retire must wait entirely too long to get their first pension checks. Their goal is a maximum of 30 days. But the division can't act unless it receives the retirement records from the agencies.

Among the agencies that act promptly on their records are the Army, Navy, Air Force and Veterans' Administration. The real laggards that hold up things for two and three months are Public Health, Internal Revenue, Commerce and Treasury.

AMC: Brig. Gen. Paul H. Streit, the new commanding officer of the Army Medical Center here, has reassured his many civilian employes with this statement: "I want you to know that I am sympathetic to your problems and that it will be one of my primary interests to see that you work under satisfactory and fair conditions." He went on to say that the civilians were the "bulwark of the AMC."

Garfield in Red $116,201 for '48, Report Reveals

Deficit Due To Present Rate Payments on Charity Patients

Owing chiefly to present rate payments on charity patients, Garfield Hospital wound up the year 1948 $116,201 in the red, its president, William R. Castle, reported yesterday in his annual report.

But the 364-bed hospital was able to hold to this deficit only because many badly needed major repairs were postponed and inventories were reduced, he explained.

Of the total operating loss last year, Castle said $107,608 "was the direct result of inadequate payments for Community Chest and totally indigent patients."

Pointing to the failure of the Community Chest to meet its last goal, Hospital Administrator A. B. Cook recalled that the agreed upon payment of $7.50 a day to the hospital for each charity patient early last year was reduced to $4.89 by last November.

Curtail Admissions

Because of inadequate payments for Community Chest patients, Cook said it "became necessary to curtail the admission of these patients to the number whose care could be subsidized from the financial resources at our disposal."

Only by sharply curtailing services to Community Chest patients, Cook added, was it possible to balance the hospital budget by last July.

A daily average of 26 indigent or semi-indigent patients was admitted to Garfield during the last six months of 1948, as compared with 43 per day in 1947 and 67 in 1946.

Cook explained that this year's increased daily payment rate of $11 for charity patients will still present a "serious financial problem," pointing out that Garfield today figures it cost over $16 a day to properly care for a patient.

Summarizing the financial plight of Garfield and other private hospitals as it involves care of charity patients, Castle said:

"Too many people are coming to feel that the state owes them a living and special care of all kinds. . . . These are the facts, however, and many of us are beginning to believe that perhaps the only solution is state subvention of hospitals.

"Perhaps this is the line along which we must work. I do not like it, and if in return for aid the state should insist upon running the institutions, the result would be wild extravagance and disaster for those who need help.

"Many of us feel, however, that if some kind of Government support of hospitals is the only answer," Castle continued, "we can perhaps bring about that support along saner lines if we ourselves initiate the movement rather than have something forced upon us."

Other Items Cited

1. The hospital cared for 48,191 patients last year, representing an increase of 2484 over 1947.

2. The number of babies delivered at Garfield settled last year to the near normal total of 3010 after the postwar boom years.

3. In order to maintain a staff of 72 nurses, the hospital had to fill 94 resignations.

Castle was reelected president of the board of directors which also retained David B. Karrick as first vice president; G. Thomas Dunlop as second vice president; Y. E. Booker as treasurer and A. B. Cook as secretary.

New members elected to the Board of Incorporators were: James A. Councilor, jr., Robert C. Baker, Mark Winkler, B. M. McKelway and J. Harry Covington 3d.

'Unfit' House Renter Given Fine or Jail

James F. Gilbert, 40, of 53 F st., nw., who made more than 100 per cent profits renting slum dwellings at Dingman pl., nw., was convicted on two counts of violating the District Rent Control Law yesterday.

Already serving 150 days in the District Workhouse for ABC violations, Gilbert pleaded guilty and was sentenced to pay a $300 fine or serve 120 days by Municipal Court Judge John P. McMahon.

The charges were brought against Gilbert 6 weeks after The Washington Post disclosed conditions in the alley dwellings, which, though occupied, had been outlawed by Congress in 1934 and condemned three times since as "unfit for human habitation."

Although Gilbert himself paid only $12.35 a month for each building, he rented them to their present tenants for $28 a month. The District Rent Control Board ruled that the rent ceiling was $12.35.

Number 28 Dingman pl. is occupied today by Mrs. Mattie G. Colemon, who has been bedridden for more than a year in an unlit, rat-infested room.

She shares her bed with her adopted 13-year-old daughter. The building is without running water, electricity, toilet facilities or central heating of any kind.

Number 26 Dingman pl., closed down 9 months ago by the Health Department as a disease menace, has been occupied by Mrs. Emma Cobb for 6 months. She was evicted from her last residence and could find nothing better than Dingman pl.

As a result of Gilbert's conviction, both tenants will have to pay only $12.35 a month, less than half of the rent they have been paying.

Charges against Gilbert applied to his renting 28 Dingman pl. from June, 1948, to early January, 1949, and 26 Dingman pl. from July, 1948, when Mrs. Colemon moved in, to early January, 1949.

Falls Church Suit Seeks School Control

A long-postponed court suit to give Falls Church control of its own school system was filed yesterday in Fairfax County Circuit Court.

The suit named the Oak Street and Madison Elementary Schools and Falls Church High School.

The suit asked Fairfax Circuit Court Judge Paul Brown to find that a 1942 Act of the Virginia General Assembly, which gave the schools to Fairfax, is unconstitutional, since it allows the county to tax Falls Church for school purposes without giving the city any representation on the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors.

It also asked that present authority of the Fairfax School Board over the city's three schools be transferred to the Falls Church School Board and that the school properities be deeded to Falls Church.

The Falls Church petition, filed by City Attorney LaRue Van Meter, asked the judge to allow the city to assume the roughly $575,000 bonded indebtedness currently outstanding on the three schools.

It requested a financial settlement with the country, with the city getting its share of any school funds from local or State sources received since August 16, 1948—when Falls Church became a second class Virginia city.

Tied up in the school ownership issue is a proposed $7,500,000 Fairfax County school bond issue. Bond backers say they cannot petition for a bond election until it is determined whether or not Falls Church schools are to be included.

Falls Church Council To Meet Twice a Month

To handle an increasing load of business, the Falls Church Council will meet twice a month beginning in February. Meetings now are held once a month.

This move was decided by the council Tuesday night. Regular meetings will be held on the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

Dr. Eagle Heads Cancer Institute Research Unit

By The Associated Press

Appointment of Dr. Harry Eagle, scientific director of the National Cancer Institute, as chief of a new medical research section in the National Institute of Health was announced yesterday.

Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele of the Public Health Service said the new unit will be the experimental therapeutics section and will deal with development, mode of action and use of a variety of drugs, including antibiotics.

He added that the section's staff will include many researchers who worked with Dr. Eagle when he was director of the Laboratory of Experimental Therapeutics, a joint project of the Public Health Service and the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene, Baltimore, Md.

Dr. Eagle recently was awarded the presidential certificate of merit for research activities contributing to the war effort.

Fire Razes 2 Houses In Maryland

Two house fires in nearby Maryland yesterday caused damage estimated at $16,000.

A fire caused by a salamander-type stove in a house under construction at 10200 Greenock rd., Silver Spring, caused damage of approximately $10,000.

Both Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department companies, the aerial ladder from Company 1 and the rescue squad responded to the alarm about 6:49 a. m.

The house was owned by J. H. Prentice, Silver Spring builder. Firemen said the entire structure will have to be rebuilt.

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a two-story frame house in the 6400 block of Buchanan st., Maryland Park, and caused damage of approximately $6000. The fire was discovered about 7:20 a. m. by a passerby.

Seat Pleasant, Capitol Heights, Hillside and Boulevard Heights Volunteer Fire Departments responded. Neighbors said the house was occupied by the Webster Pope family but none was home at the time of the fire.

Talk on U. S. Budget

J. Weldon Jones, assistant director of the United States Bureau of the Budget, will speak at a luncheon of the Montgomery County League of Women Voters at noon today in All Saints Episcopal Church Hall, 3 Chevy Chase Circle. He will speak on "Uncle Sam's Budget and Your Pocketbook."

Policeman Harvey Fined $125 For Fight at Maryland Home

Metropolitan Police Pvt. Charles V. Harvey, 35, yesterday was fined $125 in Hyattsville Police Court on charges which grew out of a fracas January 16 in a Cedar Heights, Md., residence.

Harvey, who pleaded not guilty, was convicted of assault and battery and malicious destruction of private property by Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie.

William E. Scott, a roomer at 6600 K st., Cedar Heights, testified he swore out warrants against Harvey after the officer assaulted him and broke furniture about 2 a. m. January 16.

Scott said Harvey arrived, walked over to his wife, who was visiting, and began to beat and kick her. Fearing a lamp would be overturned, he intervened. Then, he said, the officer turned on him, striking him in the face.

In the process, he testified, furniture was destroyed and an 18-inch hole knocked in the beaverboard wall by Harvey. He ran outside and "heard a pistol report" as he did so. Scott saw no gun, however, he related.

Mrs. Lila K. Meyers, owner of the house, testified furniture was overturned, a couple of tables broken, and the hole knocked in the wall.

In passing judgment, Judge Bowie pointed out "It is against the law to walk into anybody's house and start a fight." Scott, he said, was justified in trying to protect the property and in attempting to restrain the officer.

"I would say," the Judge declared, "that everything that happened was because of Harvey's unlawful conduct."

He suspended $50 of the $125 fine because the officer, who presently is under suspension from the District police force, has made restitution for the damaged property.

Harvey, who lives at 1004 65th pl., Cedar Heights, is slated to appear before a Police Trial Board at 10 a. m. today on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and making an untruthful statement to a superior officer.

Two Sentenced For Unlicensed Sales of Whisky

Theodore Hawkins, 36, of 1620 7th st. nw., yesterday was sentenced by Municipal Court Judge John P. McMahon to serve 90 days in jail on three charges of selling whisky without a license.

Hawkins was arrested Wednesday night in his apartment by a vice squad undercover policeman, who said he purchased whisky on that occasion as well as on January 6 and January 14 from Hawkins.

Hawkin's roommate, John Eugene Evans, 36, who was also arrested in the apartment Wednesday night, was sentenced to 30 days on one charge of selling whisky without a license although he denied any knowledge of the sale.

Judge McMahon suspended sentence on three charges of keeping whisky without a license against Hawkins and one charge of the same against Evans.

Bill Is Presented To Give District Sales Tax by May

Smith Plans Joint Hearing Wednesday In Move for Early Action on Measure

Launching of a 2 per cent general retail sales tax in the District by May 1 was proposed to Congress yesterday in a House bill introduced by Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.).

In a move for early action on the sales tax bill, Smith then held an hour-long conference with members of the House District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee and with District government officials on the city revenue problem. Smith is chairman of the subcommittee, the group assigned to handle preliminary work on District tax legislation.

Smith said the next move will be a joint meeting, tentatively set for Wednesday, with the Senate District Subcommittee in charge of local tax bills. That group is headed by Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.).

The bill introduced by Smith was the same as one the House passed and the Senate failed to pass last year, all except for the effective date of May 1, 1949.

The sales tax feature exempts food, medicine and some other items.

Another major purpose of the bill is to remove the income tax now in effect here from lower income groups. This would be done by granting a basic $3000 exemption to District income taxpayers. The basic exemption is now $1000 for an individual, another $1000 for a spouse, and $500 for each dependent. The dependents' exemption would continue under the new bill.

Smith said he hopes for joint hearings with the Senate group to speed final action on the revenue question.

Meanwhile, the House District Appropriations Subcommittee, headed by Representative Joe B. Bates (D., Ky.) heard District school officials testify in closed session about their proposed $23,323,450 budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Officials indicated there is now no likelihood that the recommendation of the Strayer report for a 38-million-dollar school building improvement program will be considered by the House group in connection with the budget for next year. Impetus for the Strayer survey of District schools came last year from the Senate District Appropriations Subcommittee.

Bates' group also heard officials outline details of next year's library and recreation budgets. Police and fire officials are to testify today.

Legally Wed Now

Ex-Policeman Is Freed in Bigamy Case

A former Washington policeman was not in jail yesterday because a Maryland judge refused to impose a bigamy sentence two weeks before he retires from the bench.

Miller

George William Solomon Miller, 39, pleaded guilty Wednesday to having married a Gallinger Hospital nurse, in La Plata, Md., almost a year before he was legally divorced last December from his first wife.

Chief Judge William M. Loker of the Maryland Seventh Judicial Circuit said he could have imposed sentences totaling 39 years for bigamy and perjury, but would not "feel right" in doing so "in the night of my career."

The judge will retire February 11, at the age of 70.

Miller's double marital status was revealed, it was testified, when the Rev. Royal A. Rice, of LaPlata, Md., who performed the second marriage, brought pictures of the wedding to the Eleventh Precinct. Miller's fellow officers expressed surprise, saying they thought he was already married.

A former featherweight fighter from Pennsylvania, Miller testified he had founded boys' clubs in Washington with his own money, especially near Kimball School in Southeast.

He said he started courting Miss Irene Marie Roles, 19, after being legally separated, but not divorced, from his first wife. Both said they decided to be married when Miss Roles became pregnant.

Judge Loker chastised the former policeman for "taking advantage" of his second wife. But, he added, "the fine work you have done for boys will probably be revealed half a century from now in the lives of these boys who have grown into men."

Miller said he and his wife were remarried in Washington three weeks ago, after his divorce had become final.

Mrs. Miller appeared in court holding a baby boy, born August 14.

Reactions Vary On Tax Plans In Arlington

Reaction to three amendments the Arlington County Board wants to add to its proposed tax on businesses and professions varied from strong opposition to outright approval at a public hearing last night.

The board held its hearing to consider adding (1) a tax on landlords, (2) on nonresident dry cleaners, and (3) on nonresident merchants vending by vehicle in Arlington.

Opposition came from the Arlington-Alexandria-Fairfax Real Estate Board through its spokesman, W. S. Hoge 3d, who challenged the suggested tax of 15 cents for every dollar of gross receipts against landlords.

Urges Flat Assessment

Hoge declared rental properties already are "burdened by the real estate tax," and caught between fixed rentals and rising costs. He recommended a flat fee assessment.

The annual tax of $250 for the first delivery vehicle, $100 for each additional vehicle "will discourage nonresident companies from coming into Arlington to do business," John C. Bittenbender of the American Storage Co. protested.

But Attorney James S. Simmonds, representing the Arlington Dry Cleaners Association, declared that the $250 annual tax for each outlet of nonresident dry cleaners, plus $100 for each additional outlet, was "legal and fair."

Entire Plan Opposed

Several other speakers criticized the entire proposed ordinance, which, with an auto license tax, is expected to bring in about $400,000 additional revenue annually.

Attorney Caldwell Kendrick, representing the Northern Virginia Automotive Dealers Association, suggested a flat license fee on businessmen doing less than $25,000 gross business, with a gross receipts levy on higher income.

The county board has until February 9 to take final action on the suggested new taxes.

Loss of $20,000 Pearl Necklace Reported

A $20,000 pearl necklace is on the loose in Washington, probably somewhere between the Dupont Theater and the home of Mrs. Alice G. Murdock of 4741 Reservoir rd. nw., owner of the necklace.

Mrs. Murdock told police she drove to the Dupont at 8:30 p. m. and upon her return home, three hours later, discovered the necklace missing. She said the necklace was a family heirloom.

Clerics Discover Thieves Even Rifle Church Property

A missionary and a minister had good reason to believe yesterday that there is still some work to do.

First, there was Reed L. Lindquist, a Mormon missionary from Salt Lake City who is returning after a two-year visit to Finland. A visitor in Washington since Tuesday, he visited the Mormon Church, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw., Wednesday night.

He left his topcoat hanging in a room at the church and returned a short time later to learn his billfold had been stolen. It contained his train ticket and passport but no money.

Second, there was the Rev. W. A. Randolph, pastor of Nazareth Baptist Church, 1816 5th st. nw., who found yesterday that someone had broken into the church and stolen 35 choir robes. A coal cooking range and three bedsteads were taken from the garage in the rear of the church.

Call for Police Costs $100 or 90 Days

A 35-year-old drugstore employe, arrested by police in a telephone booth while talking to police headquarters, was sentenced in Municipal Court yesterday to $100 fine or 90 days in jail on charges of falsely calling for an ambulance and police.

He is Howard E. Rose, 916 H st. nw. Police charged that at 10 p. m. Wednesday he called for an ambulance and two hours later for police, asking that they go to the 3500 block of Holmead pl. nw., where, he said, there were three disorderly drunks.

Neither the ambulance drivers nor police found any trouble there.

At 2 a. m. yesterday, Rose put through a third call to police headquarters and got Mrs. Olivia Pyles, of the Central Communications Room, on the telephone to take his complaint, police said. When she heard the Holmead address, she kept him on the line, while police traced the call to a telephone booth in a grill in the 900 block of 9th st. nw.

Rose was still in the booth, talking to Mrs. Pyles, when a First Precinct scout car arrived.

Rose denied making the first two calls.

Miss Lillian I. Tolson

Miss Lillian I. Tolson, 72, who taught in Washington and Maryland grade schools for more than half a century, died Tuesday in Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, Md.

A native of Forestville, Md., Miss Tolson had lived for the last 40 years in Washington, most recently at 9 Evarts st. ne.

She started her teaching career in grade schools at Westwood and Oxon Hill, Md., joining the Washington public school system in 1905.

For 43 years she taught different classes and different subjects at Wallach-Towers, Murray and Kenilworth grade schools.

The retired teacher is survived by two brothers, John W. Tolson of 3646 Park pl. nw., and Carl E. Tolson of Hyattsville, Md., and one sister, Mrs. A. W. Bean of Upper Marlboro, Md.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. today at the Epiphany Episcopal Church, Forestville. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

3 Area Men Among 18 to Be Reburied

Three Greater Washington men are included among 18 servicemen for whom reburial services will be held today at 2 p. m. in Arlington Cemetery.

Pfc. Thomas J. Peterson, 38, died August 2, 1944, of wounds received while serving with an Infantry division in France. A native of the District and a plumber, he had served overseas for about a year. His brother, James L. Peterson, lives at 1020 18th st. nw., according to Army records.

T/5 Clarence Shelhorse, 34, was killed in action June 11, 1944, shortly after the invasion of France. He had been in the Army two years, overseas for nine months. Before entering the service he had been employed by the Evening Star as a paper handler. His wife, Mrs. Martha Ann Shelhorse, lives at 1606 South 13th st., Arlington.

Pvt. Percy J. Lowe, the third man, is the son of Mrs. Gertrude Lowe, whose address is given as 203 Gordons ave. ne.

Junior Board Awards Made to Developer Of Atomic Clock and Income Tax Expert

The developer of the atomic clock and the man who introduced many of the simplifications in the current income tax return yesterday received the Junior Board of Commerce's first Arthur S. Flemming Award for outstanding Government service in 1948.

Dr. Harold Lyons, 35, chief of the microwave standards laboratory, National Bureau of Standards, and James R. Turner, 33, head of the statistical division, Bureau of Internal Revenue, were awarded the plaques at a Junior Board of Commerce luncheon in the Burlington Hotel.

Fleming, former president of the Civil Service Commission and now president of Ohio Wesleyan University, after whom the awards are named, congratulated the Junior Board for thus "accentuating the positive side of the Federal career service," and giving inspiration to present and future Government employes.

Four other Government career men who received certificates of merit under the award, which is for men between 21 and 36 years of age, were:

Lyle A. Dunstan, 32, Federal Power Commission electrical engineer, for devising a method of computing electrical load factors; John M. Leddy, 34, chief of the State Department's Division of United Nations Economic and Social Welfare, for his part in developing the International Trade Charter and the European Recovery Program; Roy B. Eastin, jr., 31, assistant superintendent of documents for the Government Printing Office, and Delbert M. Steiner, 31, Interstate Commerce Commission transportation cost analyst who developed new technical accounting practices.

Dr. Lyons, whose atomic clock has a constancy of one part in 10 million and represents an innovation in that it is independent of astronomical measurements, was presented with his plaque by Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury John Graham presented the similar plaque to Turner.

The certificates of merit were presented by Chairman Nelson Lee Smith of the Federal Power Commission, Puyblic Printer John J. Deviny, Arch K. Jean, State Department personnel director, and Secretary William P. Bartel of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Dr. Marshall's Own Prayer Read in Senate

A prayer that Dr. Peter Marshall, Senate chaplain and pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, wrote during his last illness was read shortly after his funeral at the opening of the Senate yesterday.

The prayer was read by Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church and an intimate friend of Dr. Marshall, who had asked him to give the prayer shortly before his unexpected death Tuesday.

Earlier in the morning, Dr. Cranford had read a prayer of his own at the funeral services for Dr. Marshall, held in the New York Avenue Church and attended by an estimated 1600 mourners.

Dr. Marshall's prayer follows:

"Deliver us, our Father, from futile hopes and from clinging to lost causes, that we may move into ever-growing calm and ever-widening horizons. Where we cannot convince, let us be willing to persuade, for small deeds done are better than great deeds planned.

"We know that we cannot do everything. But help us to do something.

"For Jesus' sake. Amen."

Both Republican and Democratic members of the Senate joined in paying tribute to Dr. Marshall, who was named chaplain when the Republicans were in the majority and retained when the Democrats won a majority.

Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) read into the Congressional Record editorials on Dr. Marshall's death from The Washington Post and The Washington Star, and a resolution adopted by the Republican conference paid tribute to the clergyman's "spiritual service of great and lasting value."

When the Senate quit for the day it adjourned in memory of Dr. Marshall.

Vice President Barkley, Navy Chief of Chaplains William N. Thomas, Army Chief of Chaplains Luther D. Miller, the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, and many members of Congress were among the crowds of mourners who attended the funeral services in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Following the service, Dr. Marshall's remains were placed in a receiving vault at Fort Lincoln Cemetery pending determination of the place of burial.

Lenroot Rites Set for Today At D. C. Church

Funeral services will be held today for Irvine L. Lenroot, former Senator from Wisconsin and former judge of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, who died Wednesday night.

Services will be at noon at the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, 1410 Columbia rd. nw. Burial will be in Superior, Wis., his birthplace.

Judge Lenroot, who prepared for the bar by reading law at night while a court reporter in Superior, received honorary degrees from George Washington, Temple and Ohio Northern Universities.

The entire Wisconsin delegation expects to attend the funeral services, and pallbearers will include:

Presiding Judge Finis J. Garrett and Judges Charles S. Hatfield and Joseph R. Jackson of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, and Oscar E. Bland, recently retired judge of that court; Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.); Representative Merlin Hull (R., Wis.); former Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr.; Elisha Hanson, former law partner of Judge Lenroot; Frederick W. Smith, former secretary to the judge; Vice Admiral William T. Tarrant, and Monte Appel, Washington attorney.

Funeral Rites Set Today for C. W. Turner

Funeral services for Claudius W. Turner, 62, retired superintendent of Washington branch of the Railway Express Co., will be held today at 1 p. m. at the S. H. Hines Co. Funeral Home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Turner died Tuesday at his home, 3426 16th st. nw.

During World War II he was made manager of the Government Express Transportation here and was awarded a civilian citation for this work by the Secretary of the Navy. Following his warwork, Mr. Turner retired.

A Washington native, he was educated in local schools and married the former Anna Bilsborough of Philadelphia in 1908.

He began work for the Railway Express Co. at an early age and rose to become superintendent. He was a member of the American Association of Railroad Superintendents, the Transportation Association of America and a charter member of the Army Transportation Association.

He also was a member of the Kiwanis Club, Hiram Lodge No. 10, FAAM, and second vice president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. He was formerly a member of the Traffic Advisory Council.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Turner is survived by a daughter Mrs. William E. Listcoe of Margate, N. J.; his mother, Mrs. Mary V. Turner of 1401 Columbia rd. nw.; two sisters, Mrs. O. V. Carpenter and Mrs. Joseph N. Strobel, both of Washington, and a brother, Lloyd R. Turner, also of Washington.

Mrs. Kane, Mother of 3 Lawyers, Dies

Mrs. Mary A. Kane, 74, mother of three members of the District Bar Association and widow of Henry J. Kane, onetime superintendent of torpedo construction for the Navy Department, died yesterday at her home, 3720 Upton st. nw.

Born in Vale Summit, Md., Mrs. Kane has lived here the past 48 years. She had been an invalid since suffering a cerebral hemorrhage in 1931.

Her husband began work in the Navy torpedo division in 1889 and during World War I was credited with perfecting a fuse device which saved the Government thousands of dollars. He retired after 40 years' service and died in 1944.

Mrs. Kane leaves two daughters, Mrs. Sara K. Young of Sarasota, Fla., and Mrs. Mary K. McCabe, a member of the District Bar of Denver, Colo., and two sons, Harry J. Kane, jr., local attorney and vice president of the Columbia and Real Estate Title Insurance Cos., and Al Philip Kane, professor of law at Georgetown University and a partner of the Kane & Koons law firm.

Requiem mass will be said at St. Ann's Church, Wisconsin ave. and Yuma st. nw., Saturday at 10 a. m. Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Rachel S. Davis

Funeral services for Mrs. Rachael Stemen Davis, 80, daughter of a noted circuit rider in Ohio and wife of the Rev. Elmer Ellsworth Davis of 2348 Massachusetts ave. nw., were held yesterday at the National Presbyterian Church. Burial was at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mrs. Davis, a native of Allen County, Ohio, died Wednesday at the Iliff Nursing Home, Dun Loring, Va.

She attended the Oberlin O. College Conservatory of Music and was active in choral work in churches for nearly half a century. Her husband is a retired Presbyterian minister who served churches in Cleveland and other cities in Ohio and Indiana.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two sons, Forrest Davis of the Massachusetts ave. address and Kenneth Davis of 2716 S. Veitch st., Arlington, Va.; a brother, Lawrence Stemen, of Winston-Salem, N. C., two grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Adm. Sellers, Retired Chief Of Fleet, Dies

Admiral David Foote Sellers, ret., 74, former Commander in Chief of the United States Fleet, died yesterday at Bethesda Naval Hospital after an illness of several months. Death was due to cerebral hemorrhage.

Once a Naval aide to President Theodore Roosevelt, Admiral Sellers saw action in the Spanish-American War, Admiral Sellers the 1899 Samoan Campaign and the 1903 Philippine Insurrection. He commanded the battleship Wisconsin during the first World War. He was retired in 1938.

A native of Austin, Tex., he was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1890.

After the First World War, Admiral Sellers served at the Naval War College, the Bureau of Navigation, and as an aide to the Secretary of the Navy. He was again given a battleship command in 1922, and had several other posts of duty until 1927, when he became commander of a Special Service Squadron, being awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for this duty two years later.

From 1929 to 1931, Admiral Sellers was Judge Advocate General of the Navy, later taking command of the battleship divisions of the fleet. He was named commander in chief in 1933 and the following year became superintendent of the Naval Academy, where he remained until his retirement.

He had been at the Naval Hospital since last September. In December, as president of the Retired Officers' Association, he publicly protested a Treasury proposal to reduce disability retirement pay.

After his retirement, he lived at 2216 Wyoming ave. nw.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anita Sellers of the Wyoming address.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. on Monday at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, 18th and Church st. nw. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Senate Confirms Nomination of James Webb; Bradley Given Permanent Rank of General

The Senate yesterday confirmed James E. Webb as Undersecretary of State by a unanimous voice vote.

The Foreign Relations Committee had given him an 11-to-0 recommendation, and added:

"Mr. Webb will bring to the State Department a wealth of broad administrative experience which should make a real contribution to the effective conduct of our foreign relations."

Webb, a North Carolinian, will assist Dean Acheson, who was sworn in as Secretary of State last week to succeed Gen. George C. Marshall. Webb formerly headed the Federal Budget Bureau.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, headed a list of more than 13,000 Army, Navy and Air Force officers who received promotions today.

The Senate confirmed their nominations to higher rank without opposition.

Bradley was given the permanent rank of general in the United States Army. His permanent rank previously was major general.

The Senate confirmed the appointment of Gen. Carl Spaatz to the full rank of general. Spaatz retired last June as Air Force Chief of Staff.

The Senate also confirmed Albert J. Loveland as Undersecretary of Agriculture.

Martin Named Treasury Aide In Series of Appointments

William McChesney Martin, jr., 41-year-old chairman of the Export-Import Bank, was appointed by President Truman yesterday as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Martin is the former "boy wonder" who astonished Wall Street by being appointed $48,000-a-year president of the New York Stock Exchange a decade ago. During the war he enlisted as a private and emerged a major. On August 4, 1945, he was promoted to full colonel.

In his new post Martin is expected to direct the Treasury's work in international economic and monetary fields. The post has been vacant since the resignation of the late Harry D. White three years ago.

Martin's shift to the Treasury causes a vacancy on the board of the Export-Import Bank, a United States Government lending agency which now operates chiefly in Latin America. The present vice chairman is Herbert E. Gaston, former newspaper editor who was Assistant Secretary of the Treasury during the entire war period.

At the same time Mr. Truman formally nominated Mark F. Ethridge, Louisville publisher, to be the United States representative on the conciliation commission for Palestine.

He named Dr. Karl T. Compton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology as chairman of the research and development board. Compton has been holding that office under a recess appointment.

Donald F. Carpenter of Connecticut was nominated as chairman of the munitions board, an office to which he was appointed during the recess of the Senate.

Gruen'ng Nominated

President Truman also nominated Ernest Gruening for reappointment as Governor of Alaska, and Llewellyn M. Williams for reappointment as Secretary of the Territory of Alaska.

Also nominated for reappointment were:

Joseph W. Kehoe, United States district judge for Alaskan Division 2, now serving under an appointment which expired December 7.

Anthony J. Dimond, United States district judge for Division 3. He is serving under an appointment which expired February 10, 1948.

'Gold-Digging' Rights Upheld for Young Wife

Chicago, Jan. 27 (AP).—Judge Julius Miner opined today that when a wealthy 77-year-old man weds a girl 23 "he has opened the gold mine to her and she has a right to dig into it."

This was after Mrs. Elizabeth Degner, 23, was accused by her husband's lawyer of being a "gold-digger." Mrs. Degner, who claims her husband, Charles, 77, an inventor, is worth three million dollars, has sued for separate maintenance.

Judge Miner continued Mrs. Degner's separate maintenance case until February 2. Her husband has pending a divorce suit, alleging cruelty.

Witness in Slaying Sentenced to Two-Year Term

One of the principal witnesses in the slaying of Prince Georges County Police Pvt. Charles F. Caldwell last June was sentenced yesterday to two years in the Maryland House of Correction for slashing a woman.

Willie Preston, also known as Willie Preston Digges, 24, of 1204 54th ave., Deanwood Park, Md., was sentenced by Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie in Hyattsville Police Court after pleading guilty to an assault charge and waiving jury trial.

The woman, Louise Hines, of the same address, testified he slashed her in an altercation at their residence about 4 p. m. Wednesday. The cut, she said, required 12 stitches. Preston admitted in court he had been drinking.

Last June 12, Pvt. Caldwell and Wallace Baker, answered a call in Deanwood Park that Preston had been knifed by Janie Leeta Hall, 20, of Maple Road. Private Caldwell was shot to death by the Hall girl's father, Thomas Hall, 54, and Private Baker were wounded in an affray that resulted when the officers attempted to take the pair into custody.

Thomas Hall is now serving an 18-year sentence for second-degree murder and a 10-year concurrent term for assault with intent to kill. His daughter is serving 11½ years on two counts of assault with intent to kill.

SIGHTSEEING Inc.

SIGHTSEEING INC., one of the largest sightseeing companies in America, now in its 28th year, is pleased to announce the appointment of Thomas A. Carroll, of Washington, as vice president and assistant general manager.

Hannegan Sells Interest in Cards

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

WHEN WM. SHAKESPEARE or Clark Griffith, or somebody, made the original observation that anything can happen in baseball, the case of Lou Bevil was not topical, but it serves now as a fresh reminder of the correctness of the crack.

POVICH

Lou Bevil's name has popped up again on the roster of the Washington Ball Club for 1949. He managed the Nats' Orlando farm club of the Florida State League last season, won the pennant with it, was the team's best pitcher with 19 wins against 7 losses. He pitched 12 winning games in a row. In 24 of his 26 starts, he went all the way.

There he was, a successful manager, and the top pitcher in the league. His present status with the Nats is a whopping non sequitur. They're bringing him into the home office as a rookie outfielder.

There's a reason, of course. What the Nats like more about him than his pitching success and his managerial talents is his batting average. He led the club in hitting, too, with a .365 figure, and with the Nats crying for hitting outfielders, Bevil has been tapped for that duty.

HE'S NO STRANGER to the outfield, incidentally. Pitching was only one of his chores last season. He played second base, third base and the outfield as well for his Orlando Club. The .365 figure he amassed was not a pitcher's batting average. He played in 85 games during the Florida State League season.

John Ganzel, who operates the Orlando club for Griffith, glommed Bevil's consistent socking and easy grace in the outfield and insisted he be relieved as manager there to better serve the organization as a Washington outfielder. "I'm making the sacrifice," declared Ganzel. "I don't know where we'll get as smart a manager or such an all-around performer as Bevil."

Griffith could well believe that Bevil can play the outfield. When the fellow was a rookie pitcher with the Nats, he outran everybody on the club except George Case and Johnny Sullivan in the informal sprints in pregame practice. The Nats' boss is duly skeptical of Bevil's pitching prowess, however, pointing out that ancient Myrl Hoag, the former Yankee outfielder, won more games in the same Florida State League.

WHEN HE WAS with Washington as a rookie pitcher in '42, the roster carried Bevil as Lou Bevilacqua. Somewhere along the line his name was abbreviated by two-syllable sports writers, and it proved so acceptable to Bevil he adopted it legally. Seven years after his first tryout with the Nats, he's still only 27.

He's a husky 188-pounder with a definite batting advantage inasmuch as he's a switch-hitter. But he doesn't switch his batting stance by rote. Against fast-balling left-handers he still likes to hit left handed, but if they have a curve ball, he'll hit right, unlike Early Wynn, the Nats' last switch-hitter who always took his stand on the opposite side of the plate.

There was a three-year hiatus in Bevil's baseball career after he was greeted in 1942 by the late FDR with an invitation to present himself for Army service. The greetings didn't specify major battles with the Tank Corps in France, Germany and Austria with the Thirteenth Armored Division, but that's where they led to. Bevil made staff sergeant as a tank commander.

BEVIL IS BUILT on the lines of a blocking back, and no less than Notre Dame envisioned such possibilities when they wangled a football scholarship for him back in 1940. He played a bit of freshman football at South Bend and turned pro the next spring when his baseball pitching offered him the ready money with which to finance a wife and family.

Washington grabbed him off the Chattanooga club, where he was gaining stature as a bright young pitcher and then Uncle Sam grabbed him off the Nats. He escaped without wounds from his war service, but his pitching arm went dead somewhere along the line and he drifted into Class D company.

He did acquire a nice batting average and three children in the intervening seasons, though. And he's a busybody in the off season. Last year he was a section hand on the railroad. This winter he's operating a crane in his native Nelson, Ill. He says it keeps him in sharp condition. Bevil-edge, no doubt.

Bo Rowland Talks Job With Vandy

Bo Rowland, football coach at George Washington, stopped at Nashville for an "informal talk" about the head coaching job at Vanderbilt yesterday.

Rowland, on his way home from the West Coast, said, "no contract or terms were discussed. Vandy was merely putting out a feeler and I dropped in for an informal chat."

The former Vanderbilt man said he was told 'several other coaching prospects will be interviewed." He added that he was "not a candidate for the job."

Fred J. Lewis, chairman of the committee seeking a successor to Coach Henry R. (Red) Sanders who was named head coach at UCLA last week, said Jess Neely, football mentor at Rice University, will be interviewed today.

Neely, who flew here from Houston yesterday afternoon said on arrival:

"I tried to talk these people (Vanderbilt) out of coming up here, but they insisted that I come anyway. He said he didn't "know what they want to talk to me about." And then he added: "I'm happy where I am. I'm not interested in a change."

Morrison Considered

Another coach said to be under consideration is Ray Morrison, who quit as head man at Temple University yesterday. Morrison is a former Vandy star and head coach.

Dr. Lewis said the school expects to announce its choice no sooner than late next week. For the next four days he and Drs. Hugh Morgan and Brownlee Tierney of the screening committee will continue interviewing candidates who have applied or were recommended by alumni groups.

Support for Rowland is being whipped up by the influential Nashville-Vanderbilt Club. Neil Cargile, 1926 Vandy captain, and past president of the club, is Rowland's host during his visit to Nashville.

G. W. Director of Athletics Max Farrington said last night that he had heard nothing from Rowland for four days. "He told me that he hadn't applied for the Vanderbilt job, and that he wouldn't. He said, however, that if he were approached, and were offered the job, he would give us appropriate notification. Meanwhile, were sitting tight.'"

Fred Saigh Buys Stock, Becomes President

St. Louis, Jan. 27 (AP).—Fred M. Saigh, jr., became president and majority stockholder of the St. Louis Cardinals today by buying out his partner, former Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan.

Hannegan told a news conference he was selling his interest in the far-flung Cardinal organization and stepping down as its president for reasons of health.

Saigh disclosed that he now owns about 90 per cent of the Cardinal stock. This probably gives the Cardinals the most limited ownership of any club in the major leagues with the excepti of the Boston Red Sox, of which Tom Yawkey is the sole owner.

Neither Hannegan nor Saigh would say how much money changed hands in the deal. Unofficial estimates of the amount Hannegan received ranged from one million dollars to two million dollars.

Fourteen months ago they bought the club from Sam Breadon for a reported sum of $4,060,000, with Saigh becoming vice president and treasurer.

Hannegan said the possibility of a change in ownership was first discussed about a month ago and that while he was in Washington for the inauguration of President Truman his physician, Gen. Wallace Graham, advised him to give up the arduous work of directing the Cardinals. Hannegan underwent an operation for hypertension about two years ago.

Saigh, an attorney who attended Bradley Tech and Northwestern University, has acquired large property holdings in downtown St. Louis during the past few years.

He identified as members of the Cardinal board of directors Sidney Salomon, jr., William C. Connett, George Simpkins and William Walsingham. There are two vacancies.

Saigh said that when he and Hannegan bought the Cardinals from Sam Breadon in November, 1947, he considered it only from the standpoint of a good investment.

In answer to a question, Saigh said he will keep Eddie Dyer as Cardinal manager. "I'm a Dyer man," he said. "I mean by that I consider Dyer a good manager.

Snead's 68 Paces Field In Phoenix

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 27 (AP).—Sammy Snead's putter behaved on wet greens today as the Virginia slammer took a one-stroke lead in the $10,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament with a three under par 68.

A 25-foot birdie putt that dropped into the cup on the sixteenth hole was largely responsible for the White Sulphur Springs veteran's lead.

In a second-place deadlock at 69 were Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif.; Jack Harden, El Paso, Tex.; Tex Consolver, Wichita, Kans., Dick Metz, Virginia Beach, Va., and Jack Burke, jr., White Plains, N. Y.

Tied at 70 were Bill Nary, Phoenix; Leland Gibson, Kansas City, Mo., and Bob Hamilton, Prince Georges Country Club.

Those were the only players among the 140 starters who covered the still-wet 6578-yard Phoenix Country Club course in subpar figures.

Frank Stranahan, the Toledo, Ohio, amateur rated to top the field of Simon pures, ran into troubles and finished with a 76.

Morrison Quits, 'Going South'

Philadelphia, Jan. 27 (AP).—Ray Morrison, Temple football coach for the last nine years, resigned today in a move that caught university athletic officials by surprise.

The veteran gridiron pilot came here after successful hitches at Vanderbilt and Southern Methodist where he developed the aerial circus brand of football popular in the Southwest.

He never was a great success at Temple.

Morrison had little to say about his resignation. He said he intends to remain in football but would say nothing further than "I'm going south."

Collins, Luckman To Talk Soon

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—Owner Ted Collins of the transplanted Boston Yanks of the National Football League said today he wants to talk to Sid Luckman of the Chicago Bears about coaching the Yanks.

Collins said, "I received a telegram from George Halas, of the Bears, who said if Luckman can better himself, I will not stand in his way."

Luckman said "if Halas is willing, I'll be pitching passes for the Bears again next season."

Margarita Says Hoyas Will Get Better Gradually

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—Young Bob Margarita, new head coach of Georgetown University, promised New York alumni tonight he would give them a football team that "will show steady improvement with every game."

The 28-year-old tactician, who leaves an assistant coaching post at Yale to take the reins at the Washington, D. C., institution, was guest at a dinner meeting of Georgetown grads.

He told the group he planned to install a modified T formation patterned largely after that of the professional Chicago Bears.

"Generally I'll use a flanker without a man in motion," he declared.

He said he would go to Georgetown this weekend to set up machinery for six weeks of spring practice.

State Dept. Loses

The Silver Spring Motor Co. last night defeated State Department, 46-32, in a Roosevelt Recreation League game at Roosevelt High School.

Gilmur and Pelkington

Bones Keeps Two Men in BAA And They Keep Him Shackled

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

WHEN YOU'RE around Bones McKinney, don't mention Chuck Gilmur or Jim Pelkington. If you do, duck . . . They're old Bones' nemeses and if it weren't for him they probably wouldn't be in the Basketball Association of America today . . . Gilmur earns his keep with the Chicago Stags by making life miserable for Bones Pelkington is on the payroll of the Baltimore Bullets principally for the same reason . . . Gilmur began to hound the clowning Cap star two years ago in the championship playoffs, shackling Bones so effectively that the Caps were blotted out of the big money series . . . And Gilmur is still shadowing Bones . . . Pelkington, a pro court nomad, has been the fly in Bones' ointment for the last month. He's held McKinney, 14-point scorer, to 23 points in the last three Bullet-Cap games and the result has been that the Bullets have won all three games . . .

And what does Ole Bones say about all this: "Just tell 'em Bones ain't through yet" . . .

COACH JOE LAPCHICK'S decision to trade Tommy Byrnes, of the Knicks, to Fort Wayne for Ray Lumpp isn't surprising. Lapchick and his tempermental star weren't on the best of terms. Next to go will probably be Sid Tannenbaum, also in Lapchick's doghouse . . . Redskin Quarterback Jimmy Youell, a much traveled young man last season, may open a travel agency. "I'd certainly be able to tell people how to get from Boston to Philadelphia to Detroit to Los Angeles to Washington," said Youell, who was property, if only briefly, of all five teams last year . . . With the signing of George McAfee, Wake Forest is now three deep in backfield coaches, a distinction that not even Notre Dame can claim. McAfee, Nick Sacrinty, another former Chicago Bear back, and Bob Kellog of Tulane, will help "Teahead" Walker with the T-formation Deacons.

TWO MORE NATS "capitulated" yesterday. Harold Keller, brother of Charlie, and Jay Difani signed their 1949 contracts. Both are outfielders. Keller hit .269 at Hagerstown in 1948 while Difani batted .270 for Newark . . . If he beats Ken Stribling at Turner's Monday, Smuggy Hursey will find himsel fout of work locally unless he agrees to fight Joe Blackwood, which so far he has refused to do. Hursey saw Blackwood flatten Al Wright in two rounds and immediately said "No" to a suggestion that he box Blackwood . . . Maryland Trainer Duke Wyre is an a virtual nonstop taping mission this weekend. He left yesterday for Miami, Fla., with the Terp basketball team. He leaves there Saturday morning for Charleston, S. C., where the Terps box The Citadel Saturday. From there he continues to Atlantic City where Monday morning he's the guest lecturer at a clinic.

Rollers Rally, Beat Bullets Again, 95-89

Baltimore, Jan. 27 (AP).—The Providence Steamrollers continued their jinx over the Baltimore Bullets tonight by downing them for the third straight time, 95-89, in a Besketball Association of America meeting.

It was Providence's seventh win against 32 losses. The Bullets continue in third place behind Washington, whom they defeated last night, and the New York Knickerbockers. Baltimore has beaten the steamrollers twice—their first two meetings.

The Bullets had a 10 point lead at the end of the third quarter, but the Steamrollers double-scored them in the fourth, 24-12, and walked away with the ball game.

Through the first half, Providence players missed only one free throw.

AAC Meeting Discusses Rockets, Dodger Players

Special to The Washington Post

Baltimore, Jan. 27.—President Robert (Jake) Embry of the Baltimore Colts tonight said two spokesmen for the team were in Chicago attending a meeting of the All-America Football Conference.

The meeting, called suddenly and giving rise to further rumors that the AAC and National Football League were making a new bid for peace in pro football, was for the purpose of ironing out details of the Chicago Rocket franchise and splitting up players of the defunct Brooklyn Dodgers, according to Embry.

Embry denied any important business was to be discussed, "otherwise I would have made the trip myself." He said Baltimore's interests were being handled by Coach Cecil Isbell and General Manager Walter Driskill.

Army-Navy Shift Hinted

Philadelphia, Jan. 27 (AP).—A city hall official disclosed today that there's a strong possibility the Army-Navy football game will be played somewhere other than Philadelphia at least once during the next three years.

The service football classic has been played at Philadelphia since 1931 except for a three-year lapse during the war. The contract to play at huge Municipal Stadium ran out after last year's game which ended in a 21-21 tie.

Thomas Buckley, director of public works, said he has been in touch with West Point and Annapolis "in a preliminary way" paving the way for future talks about renewal of a contract.

"Both academies seemed satisfied with playing here," Buckley said, adding that "there has been talk about arranging a three-year contract with one of the games being played somewhere else."

Buckley refused to be pinned down when asked by a reporter whether he thinks Philadelphia will land the game again.

State, Villanova Invade, But . . .

G. W. and Hoyas Aren't Scared By Records of Saturday Foes

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Reports on their opponents have been so glowing it seemed a good idea yesterday to check and see if Georgetown and GW intended to fulfill their engagements with unbeaten Villanova and highly touted North Carolina State at the Armory tomorrow night.

Both local coaches gave assurance that their squads will be on hand for the most attractive collegiate double-header here in years.

Georgetown's Elmer Ripley voluntarily went a bit farther. His Hoyas meet a Villanova club, ranked eighth nationally, that's after its twelfth straight triumph in the opener of the twin bill.

But Rip refuses to be intimidated. "I think we're going to beat 'em," he said cockily.

Beat 'Em Once

There's a strong suspicion that Ripley isn't talking merely to bolster the morale of his squad. Last season at the Armory, Georgetown walloped the same Villanova team, 64-46. True, Villanova avenged the defeat in a return match at home, 71-56, but the Wildcats are nonetheless concerned about tomorrow night's scrap.

Georgetown has a winning streak of its own to protect. The Hoyas have won all four of their home games. They have a 6-5 record and all losses have been suffered on the road.

One of Ripley's prime concerns is stopping Villanova's Paul Arizin, ninth-ranking scorer in the country with an 18.8 average. "He's a great shot even when he's off balance," said Ripley, "he reminds me of the Warriors' Joe Fulks. Arizin has a lot of spring, too, and he's tough to stop around the basket."

Two quiet, workmanlike players of the Hoyas have shown lots of improvement—Johnny Brown and Vince Leddy. Brown gets more than his share of rebounds and it was Leddy who led the Hoyas to their uphill victory over GW when they appeared hopelessly out of it.

Veterans Ray Corley and Tommy O'Keefe figure to play prominent roles if there's to be any upset over Villanova.

GW's George Garber, who took over the team when Otts Zahn was stricken ill before the season opened, won't predict victory for his Colonials but he's not about to concede defeat to N. C. State, No. 15 in national ranking.

"We feel that we have a score to settle and we're hoping to surprise state," Garber said at practice yesterday. "Unquestionably, State has a great ball club. However, we've been beaten and I think our club will give 'em a real ball game if we're on."

Where Tickets Can Be Bought

Tickets for Saturday night's attractive collegiate double-header at the Armory in which Georgetown meets unbeaten Villanova and George Washington plays classy North Carolina State may be purchased at either of the local schools or at Fairway Sports Store, 1328 G. st. nw.

If any seats are left by Saturday, they will go on sale at the Armory.

Though It Ain't Exactly News

Consensus Is Mel Ott's a Nice Guy

By Red Smith
Copyright, 1949, N. Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Baseball writers spend approximately half their lives traveling on expense accounts. As a result, the habit of eating is deeply ingrained in them. When the captains and the kings of, say, the garment industry assemble to feed in massed formation, they warm up by nuzzling a martini and snapping at a couple of canapes. Baseball writers prepare to dine by packing away a preliminary dinner.

The first half of the New York literateurs' annual winter double-header was played the other evening in the home park, i. e., the midtown atelier of Totts Shor, the artist. Subsequent chomping will take place in the Waldorf a week from Sunday. Mel Ott was the guest of honor at the dress rehearsal and there was ample evidence of the affection which the mob has for him in the fact that this preliminary drew the biggest gate to date. Until speakers got up and started calling Ott a nice fellow to his face, it was a pleasant kaffee klatch indeed.

Frank Frisch and Branch Rickey, who used to be the Dutchman's boss back in St. Louis, met over a cocktail—Frisch's cocktail—for a bit of preseason practice in tampering.

"You get together another club like that 1934 Cardinal mob," Frisch suggested, "and hire me to manage. Look at me." He squared his shoulders and sucked in his waist line, purpling somewhat with the effort. "Do I look good? There's life in the Old Flash yet."

"You look great," Rickey agreed without turning a hair, "remember what I told you years ago? I said we might not make a millionaire out of you, but there'd always be a job for you in my organization, if you wanted it."

"You did," Frisch said. "You told me that."

"Well," Rickey said, "shake that outfit you're with and come along with me. Hey, what am I saying? That's tampering."

"That's easy to square," a bystander suggested. "You buy a team, Frank, and hire Branch. There's no rule against tampering with a club president."

The coach of the Giants shook his head. "I couldn't afford to pay Branch the kind of money he's used to," he said. "No, he's got to get the players together and then let me manage them. He's the greatest judge of young ball players that ever lived."

"Just the young ones?" Rickey protested.

"Young ones," Frisch insisted, "kids that are just so high."

"That's the kind we've got now," Rickey said. "Lot's of 'em. I wonder . . ."

GUYS MEANDERED around, making much conversation and little noise. Joe DiMaggio dined with Dan Topping, Del Webb and George Weiss. The four had devoted the afternoon to a contract discussion wherein Joe put the bite on his proprietors for something like $100,000, the papers said. Now, every time he took a bite of roast beef, the Messrs. Topping, Weiss and Webb watched with morbid fascination.

Little Pat Harrington was there, singing and slinging jocund insults. Al Kelly, the world's greatest double-talk artist spun such a tangled web of syntax that Rickey turned pea green with envy. Eddie Condon's band shook the chandeliers with Dixieland jazz.

"Do you mean to tell me," Rickey demanded, aghast, "that those boys do that for a living?"

It was all good fun, not necessarily clean, and the most fun of all was having Ott there, at home among his friends. The passing of Little Mel as Giant manager was pretty much overlooked in the confusion last summer. There was so much to be said about the bizarre switch that sent Leo Durocher from Ebbett's Field to the Polo Grounds that little space was left to pay respects to Ott.

Maybe he wasn't a great manager. Maybe he wasn't even a good one. It is impossible to rate him, because he never had the sort of material that enables a manager to show what he can do. It is recalled, however, that when the 1947 Giants were wearing out opposing pitchers right and left, the Phillies came to town and their manager, Ben Chapman, remarked:

"Look at Mel over there on the bench, taking it easy. Last year his club was losing and everybody was saying he was a lousy manager. Now the Giants are winning and you don't hear a word against him. It's the same old story. All it takes to make a great manager is some big guys who can break up the furniture."

ALTHOUGH THEY made a race of it, the 1947 Giants weren't good enough. Actually the Giants were rebuilding Mel's six full seasons as manager. They finished third in his first year, 1942, dropped to eighth the following season, then ran fifth, fifth, eighth and fourth.

They are a better team now than at any time during Ott's regime. If they should win the pennant this year, and they could, Durocher would get the credit for a job that was largely done before Leo crossed the river. That would be Durocher's good luck, and Ott wouldn't complain. He never has complained, which is one reason why he is so sincerely liked.

Fact is, the guy has won something more lasting than any Pennant. That is the wholehearted esteem of the men he has worked with. The chubby little catcher of 16, who reported to John McGraw, 23 years ago, was an honest, decent kid.

Army Boxing War to Start Here Tuesday

A MONTH of Army battles, confined to the Fort Myer gym and slimaxed in the weeklong all-Army tourney late in the month, begins Tuesday night with the opening of the Military District of Washington Boxing Tournament.

Three current MDW champs are among the local tourney entries. Most promising of the lot, both for a successful defense and for a spot on the local team in the big show is Eliot Powers, 19-year-old Fort Belvoir light-heavyweight.

Eliot hammered out a Golden Gloves title for himself Wednesday night and is in top condition. Other defending champs are Andy Nathan, a Fort Myer welterweight cavalryman, and Featherweight Ed Brazerol, also of Fort Myer. Belvoir is the defending team champion.

The Army's European command sent word yesterday that it had reconsidered its earlier decision and would definitely send a team for the All-Army Tourney. EUCOM sentry makes the eighth major command with representation scheduled.

Boat Problems Aired

The Coast Guard Auxiliary wants to give local boat owners a helping hand in cruising around the area. To that end, the Coast Guard has proposed a series of evening forums during which all facets of boating in the area will be reviewed. Both marked and unmarked navigable waters will be charted for interested yachtsmen. Reservations at no cost can be had from the Training Officer, Flotilla No. 22, Coast Guard Auxiliary, located at the Capital Yacht Club.

Sacrament Unbeaten

Blessed Sacrament continues to click all over the Catholic Youth Organization's boys' basketball leagues. In the Junior, Intermediate and Unlimited Leagues, three Blessed Sacrament teams lead their sections with a composite record of 11 victories and no defeats.

Cadets Take First Place With Victory

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Gonzaga High's 11-game winning streak came to end last night when St. John's Cadets put on a last-period rally that enabled them to triumph, 33-27, before 2600 at College Park.

The loss not only broke Gonzaga's unbeaten record, but also boosted St. John's into first place in the Catholic High League. St. John's has a 4-0 record in league play, and an 11-2 record against all comers. Gonzaga has won three out of four in league competition.

Five-foot 8-inch Bobby McLindon, a Georgetown Branch Boys Club product, and 6-foot 3-inch Bob McDonald, swimming star on last year's Ambassador team, were the key figures in the late rush which led the Cadets to victory.

McDonald throttled Mike Nolan, 6-foot 4-inch center, who had been Gonzaga's top scorer this season. Mike could make only one point last night. McLindon scrambled all over the floor, covering Gonzaga's set-shot specialist Johnny Hogan, and holding him to one point. McLindon scored seven points, four in the crucial last quarter.

St. John's was held scoreless from the floor in the third period, but fell behind by only 20-19. St. John's shot ahead to stay as the fourth quarter opened on quick field goals by Bill Mattingly and Joe Cardaci and foul shots by McDonald and Don Kokes.

Hardheads Not Biting on Chesapeake Bay But You Can Catch Your Wife a Fur Coat

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

FISHING AND HUNTING husbands, Chesapeake Bay bound, promise their wives they'll bring home many things, but I have yet to hear one say, "Honey, I'm going to catch you a fur coat."

Haight

Don't laugh. It can be done although hubby probably wouldn't be home for a couple of months.

Man and boy, I've spent some of the best years of my life around Mary's bountiful inland sea without knowing muskrat trapping is quite a winter industry thereabouts.

Less than 35 miles from Washington, at the entrance of Deep Creek on Herring Bay, a 16-year-old boy is busy now with his traps and by the end of the season will have enough pelts for several coats.

He is Basil Dawson, jr., the third generation of the Dawsons to make a neat sum each year off the same colony of muskrats. His father, Basil, sr., earned his first real money out of the reed-studded swamp, as did Kemp Dawson, grandfather of the present operative.

Young Dawson, a student at Southern High, near Deale, Md., attends his traps each morning starting at 5:30 a. m.

Thus far this season, Basil has taken 70 pelts. The usual area production is upward of 150 a year. He made his first sale this week, 30 skins bringing $1.90 each. In 1948, the top price went to $2.25.

BASIL'S FATHER received the all-time high price for the area during World War I, getting $4 a pelt. However, Grandfather Dawson said, "Muskrats were plentiful around here during my youth. We thought nothing of getting 20 to 30 a morning. They brought 10 cents a skin and they had to be good. The ordinary ones were thrown away."

In the old days the swamp was a free hunting ground and many Herring Bay families earned a good portion of their living trapping. With the influx of summer colonists, bay property, even swamps, has become valuable and young Dawson leases the muskrat area on a sort of share-cropper basis.

BASIL DAWSON, JR., AT HIS TRAPS

Considerable planning and nursing have been necessary to keep the muskrat colony active. If overtrapped, the rodents of course, would be exterminated. Then again, if allowed to multiply unmolested, the muskrat, in time, would eat himself out of house and home and into starvation—quite a trick, even for a muskrat.

The "rat," as referred to by trappers, is a semiaquatic rodent about the size of a cat and weighing up to 2 pounds. He spends the greater part of his life in the water, but is often seen swimming or sunning himself on his house or along the bank.

He's not a dam-builder like the beaver, nor has he the gentleness of that species and will attack man or beast ferociously if challenged. Brother Rat solves his own housing shortages with a dome-shaped pile about 3 feet high, circled by a moat created by his digging of vegetation for both food and house-building. Grasses, sticks and mud also are used for construction.

The home, or inside chamber, is about 20 inches square, reached by tunnels, the floor being above water level and may have several entrances. If neighbors are close, tunnels connect the abodes.

Muskrats, with a gestation period of 19 to 20 days, sometimes raise three families from April to September—from a total of 15 to 17 young.

For the most part they eat marsh plants—bark, buds, roots, etc.—and are said to wash their food thoroughly before eating. Their diet is balanced, at times, with small frogs, fish and crabs.

Perhaps the fact that a muskrat washes his food is the reason only unbaited traps are used. Basil places these steel gadgets in the paths made near the home and at places where Brother Rat slides into or emerges from the water.

Only the aforementional trap is legal now. It catches the muskrat by a foot, thus insuring against pelt damage.

THE ELDER DAWSONS were talking of early trapping days when snares, equipped with thin wire, were used. More legs than muskrats were caught, they said. Guns and spears also were employed and, in each case, the home of the rats was attacked.

"Destroy their homes," said young Basil, "and they would leave the swamp."

There's a by-product to muskrat trapping — the meat. Although, he could ship the carcasses and get a better price, young Dawson sells them at 25 cents each to natives in his section who often order in advance.

Just as muskrat fur becomes Hudson Seal, Plucked Beaver, River Sable, Water Mink, Russian Otter, French Mole, etc., when coated up, muskrat meat sometimes becomes Marsh Rabbit, Water Bunny, Reed Squirrel, etc., when it gets on the table—if you insist on a fancy name.

Maybe there's a moral to this story. The muskrat is trapped nocturnally outside his abode. Perhaps a lot of us would be better off if we stayed home nights and didn't put our foot in it.

One on the Aisle—

Script-Manglers Ruin 'True Love'

By Richard L. Coe

"IF YOU FOUND THE WOMAN you loved in the arms of your son, what would you do?" ask the come-ons for "My Own True Love," at the Capitol.

Would you ask for an explanation? Would you tower into a rage?

This question isn't likely to arise with most of you, I grant, but even if the situation should arise and the woman you love is as frank a gal as Phyllis Calvert and the son is as broodingly handsome as Philip Friend, Melvyn Douglas' behavior won't give you a clew as to decisive action.

Poor Melvyn, who's slipping into fatherly roles, rather lightly slaps Philip on the chin and then proceeds to sulk.

This inconclusive behavior isn't Melvyn's fault, to be sure. Who among four is responsible for the unlikely goings-on I don't know. Arthur Kober adapted a novel by Yolanda Foldes and Theodore Strauss, and Josef Mischel turned the adaptation into a screen play. That's the way all too many movies are "written," and the wonder of it is that any of them ever make sense.

I imagine that in writing the screen play of "My Own True Love," everyone proceeded under the let-George-do-it trick. Nobody gets round to saying what obviously would be said. The whole business of discovering what ails poor Philip, after several years in Burma hiding from the Japs, is never faced the way real people would face it. And poor Philip has troubles aplenty.

Given up for lost, he arrives in London to find his widowed father preparing to marry an ATS chum of his sister. He and the girl have in common their recollections of prison camps, cruelty and wasteful killings. He and dad have evidently nothing in common except their distress over Philip's lost leg, for the lad was a good school athlete. Naturally, Philip falls for Phyllis.

"MY OWN TRUE LOVE," a Paramount picture produced by Val Lewton, directed by Compton Bennett, screen play by Theodore Strauss and Josef Mischel. At the Capitol.

THE CAST

Joan Clews	Phyllis Calvert
Clive Heath	Melvyn Douglas
Sheila Heath	Wanda Hendrix
Michael Heath	Philip Friend
Geraldine	Binnie Barnes
Kittredge	Alan Napier
Iverson	Arthur Shields
Mrs. Peach	Phyllis Morris
A Corporal	Richard Webb

Scallions to the Writers

Finally, in a long-delayed scene Philip remarks how much he misses his wife and baby. These were both killed by the Japs. Dad won't listen when anyone tries to explain Philip's tragedy, and little sister is no help, either, behaving like a smirking brat despite a promising beginning.

All this could easily have made a good picture, which I hasten to inform you "My Own True Love" is not. It's all the fault of the script, which assumes people are dopes.

The cast can't be blamed. Douglas is wan in his foolish role. Phyllis Calvert, a popular English star, brings a freshness and sincerity to her first Hollywood part, and Philip Friend, a young fellow of increasing prominence, seems to have what it takes for a reliable career. Wanda Hendrix, as the sister, has a part twisted presumably to fit her appealing quality.

But a movie critic turned script writer—Mr. Strauss—should have known better.

THE CAPITOL'S stage bill boasts the Arnaut Brothers, whose act varies little with the years and doesn't have to. These are the chaps, John and Rene, who manage to think they're birds out courting, and they're good fun. The Ming Sing Stars, Oriental gals, bring their circus turn to the stage with effective results. Harry Rose, billed as "The Broadway Jester," camps himself all over the place, and Blair and Dean are the week's dancing team from musical comedy.

Cheerful Kay De Witt chants enthusiastically of what a little bird told her, and Organist Milt Slosser gives you the songs that lead the year-in-year-out favorites. Jerome Kern, for the record, is responsible for two, "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" and "Old Man River." Cole Porter is on the list with "Night and Day" and Hoagy Carmichael with "Stardust."

TO THE BENEFACTORS of the "Pleasure Fund," add the Belle Haven Women's Club, whose Mrs. Frederick Ballard called to arrange for 10 tickets to each of the Clare Tree Major plays for Fairfax County children . . . Mrs. Major's group will be playing "Poor Little Rich Girl" Saturday morning and afternoon at the Virginia Theater, Alexandria.

Adventure Yarn, 'Red Witch,' A Roughhouse South Sea Tale

By Orval Hopkins

"WAKE OF THE RED WITCH," as those of you who have read Garland Roark's novel will recall, is a rich, full-bodied story of people trying to cheat each other in the South Seas. As brought to life on the screen at the Warner, its principal attributes are a nice performance by Luther Adler and some astonishing underwater effects achieved by Howard and Theodore Lydecker.

The story moves along well for maybe a third of its course (though you keep getting the impression that John Wayne is portraying the same tough cookie he played in "Red River" and has simply changed his cowboy suit for the haberdashery of a ship's captain). Then you get a series of flashbacks which take you to a Pacific island, and there you bog down good. The tale rouses itself for a pretty stirring finish and thus gets you out of the theater without snapping at your wife all the way up the aisle.

"Red Witch" Sunk

Wayne plays a sea captain who commits an act of barratry (I thought this meant something awful, but it doesn't) by sinking the ship Red Witch, which is loaded with five million bucks in gold bullion. Luther Adler, owner of the ship and a cruel-hearted knave, decides not to prosecute but to quietly haunt Wayne until he's ready to go back and retrieve the gold. It is then that the flashbacks are brought into play and you have earnest recitations by Adler, Gig Young and a pretty lass named Adele Mara.

These give an opportunity to introduce Gail Russell, an uncommonly pretty girl, and Henry Daniell, otherwise known as old dependable, and to trot out the underwater cameras. The latter are carefully and satisfactorily trained on Wayne as he rescues, in somewhat extracurricular fashion, a young native boy, hooks a big cask of pearls out of a cave in the sea, and slays a horrible monster in the same cave. Wayne stays under water an incredible period. I nearly burst holding my breath for him.

Circumstances eventually unite Wayne and Adler and they go after the gold together. It is at this point that the rousing finale is put on, with the aid again of the underwater camera.

Strictly Harmless

Altogether this is what you might call harmless moviegoing. The picture could have been trimmed about 25 per cent, it seemed to me, particularly some scenes in which Wayne is declaiming in his stolid way about how a ship is a wild, free thing, yet a mother, a lover and a home. Adler, as I say, virtually seemed to carry the thing on his back, although Young, Daniell and an actor named Jeff Corey gave the film a well-knit look with sound, professional performances. Harry Brown and Kenneth Gamet did the screen play and Edward Ludwig directed.

There are some run of the mine newsreel shots and a Bugs Bunny cartoon.

Also at the Warner is one of those editorial features done with still pictures and overlaid captions. In a space which seemed to me as short as two minutes, it tells how many pedestrians were killed in traffic here last year, breaks them down into age groups, and tells who was doing what at the time of the fatality—who was jaywalking, who crossing against a light, etc. Sponsored by the Commissioner's Committee on Traffic Safety, it is called "Don't Walk Yourself to Death" and appears to me to be constructive editorializing.

"THE WAKE OF THE RED WITCH." Republic release produced by Edmund Grainger. Screen play by Harry Brown and Kenneth Gamet from the novel by Garland Roark. Photographed by Reggie Lanning. Music by Nathan Scott. Directed by Edward Ludwig. At the Warner.

Classes for Aliens Set in Alexandria

Courses to prepare aliens for naturalization examinations, and one in etiquette, will be added to the curriculum of Alexandria's adult night school program next semester.

Registration for the next term, which starts February 7, will be held February 3 and 4 at George Washington High School from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. and at Parker-Gray High School from 7:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

The "Americanization" class will give instruction in the working of city, State and Federal governments to all persons in the northern Virginia area preparing to become citizens.

All classes meet two hours twice a week for 15 weeks and those corresponding to high school courses may be counted toward a high school diploma. Only charge is a $2 filing fee.

Classes on Children

To Be Held at Wilson

Extension classes in nursery school and kindergarten education will be given at Wilson Teachers College by the University of Maryland beginning February 7.

Mrs. Laura MacCartney of the Maryland University faculty will teach a course in creative expression through music on Mondays from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. Herbert L. Rooney, chief psychiatric social worker for the Prince Georges Mental Health Clinic, will conduct a course on the child in home and school on Thursdays at the same hours.

Night Classes to Reopen

At Washington-Lee

Night classes at Washington-Lee High School, Arlington, will reopen for the second semester Wednesday at 7 p. m.

Courses are offered in English, American History, world history, problems of democracy, civics, advanced algebra, plane geometry, physics, typewriting, shorthand, bookkeeping, commercial law, economics, economic geography, mechanical drawing, woodwork, cabinetmaking, psychology and public speaking.

Classes are held Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 10 p. m.

Atomic Group Picked

Speaker Rayburn (D., Tex.) yesterday named the following to the joint congressional Committee on Atomic Energy:

Representatives Durham (D., N. C.), Holifield (D., Calif.), Price (D., Ill.) Kilday (D., Tex.) Jackson (D., Wash.), Cole (R., N. Y.), Elston (R., Ohio), Hinshaw (R., Calif.) and Vanzandt (R., Pa.).

Woman Hit by Bus . . .

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

DRIVER WATCHES—Concern shows on the face of Bus Driver James Dowell (standing, rear), 27, 410 S. Cherry st., Falls Church, Va., as a spectator (left) comforts a woman struck by a WV&M bus yesterday at 11th and K sts. nw. A passenger (right) holds an umbrella over the victim as she awaits an ambulance. Police identified the woman as Maud S. Dahonau of 1101 Massachusetts ave. nw. She was taken to Emergency Hospital to determine her injuries.

Truck Driver Fatally Hurt In Collision

William M. Rogers, 37, of 805 Ramsey st., Alexandria, was fatally injured last night in a truck-auto collision at Mount Vernon and Luray aves., Alexandria. His was the second Greater Washington traffic death of the day.

Alexandria police said Rogers, a foreman, was driving a truck on Mount Vernon ave. and collided at Luray ave. with an auto being operated by Oliver C. Wilburn, 32, of 612 Four Mile rd., Alexandria.

The impact, police said, threw Rogers from the cab of his truck and under his own wheels. He was taken to Alexandria Hospital and died there at 8:50 p. m.

Wilburne, a bus driver who was driving his own car, was treated for minor injuries.

Earlier, George Greenwell, 50, of 2934 Pomeroy rd. se., died at Freedmen's Hospital of injuries sustained last Saturday when his auto overturned on Route 5 at TB, Md.

Greenwell died about 10 a. m. hospital officials said. His body was removed to the morgue.

Teresa Williamson, 50, of 19 U st. ne., was injured about 6:10 p. m. when struck by a taxi while crossing Florida ave. at North Capitol st. She was admitted to Garfield Hospital in undetermined condition. Police identified the cab driver as Edgar Phoenix, 39, of 1307 Corcoran st. nw.

Illinois Man Forfeits $178 on Auto Charges

Byron E. Jarett, 29-year-old Deer Creek, Ill., mechanic, yesterday forfeited $178.70 collateral in Hyattsville Police Court on six charges stemming from a police chase December 21 at speeds up to 90 miles an hour.

Jarett forfeited collateral on charges of reckless driving ($51.45), speeding ($76.45), failure to obey a police order ($16.45), passing a traffic light ($11.45), passing a car on the right side ($11.45), and failure to keep in the proper lane ($11.45).

13 From Area

Scientists To Attend Pacific Parley

Seventy-one American scientists, including 13 from the Washington area, are planning to attend the seventh Pacific Science Congress, the National Research Council announced yesterday.

The meetings will be held next month in Auckland and Christchurch, New Zealand. Last previous Congress was held in Berkeley, Stanford and San Francisco, Calif., in 1939.

Some 30 countries are expected to send representatives to the congress to discuss Pacific problems. Problems under consideration range the sciences, including geology, geophysics, meteorology, oceanography, marine biology, zoology, botany, soil resources, forestry, agriculture, anthropology, public health, nutrition and the social sciences.

Washington area scientists who plan to attend, the council disclosed, include:

Dana Coman, Army Research and Development Group, nutrition and psychiatry; F. Raymond Fosberg, Holmes Run rd., Falls Church, Va., botany; Jerome B. Green, Research Department, Naval Ordnance Laboratory, White Oak, Md., physics.

Ernest G. Holt, Department of Agriculture, soil conservation and ecology; J. L. Kask, Food and Agriculture Organization, United Nations, fisheries; C. E. Kellogg, Department of Agriculture, soil science; C. E. Leighty, American Genetic Association, genetics. B. Perkins, Office of Naval Research, geophysics.

Clarence S. Ross, U. S. Geological Survey, geology; E. H. Walker, Smithsonian Institution, botany; Dr. J. D. Wharton, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., public health and medicine; Donald E. White, U. S. Geological Survey, geology, and Dr. Willard H. Wright, National Institute of Health, Bethesda, public health and medicine.

40 Boys Held In Bethesda Theft Cases

Approximately 45 cases of housebreaking, larceny and shoplifting dating back to 1947 have been cleared up by Montgomery County detectives at Bethesda with the apprehension of 40 teen-agers.

After questioning, the youths, all between 14 and 16, were released in custody of their parents, many of whom are prosperous and well-known Bethesda and Chevy Chase residents.

Police had not determined last night how many would be turned over to juvenile authorities for action.

Wheelbarrow tires, power tools and electric motors valued at more than $1000 have been recovered, detectives said. Return of more loot valued at another $1000 is expected to follow the questioning of 20 additional boys, they said.

Detective Sergt. John P. Leahy and Detective Corpl. Edward Barber have been working on the roundup for several weeks.

Leahy said the first break came when they determined almost all the larcenies had been perpetrated by motor scooter owners.

Police, he said, began checking licenses on motor scooters which had been seen parked around business houses and construction projects. After they began questioning the owners, one implicated another in a long chain.

Motor scooters were prime cause of the depredations, Leahy believes. The wheelbarrow tires fit the scooters.

"When they found out they could apparently get away with the theft of a few tires, the boys went on to larger thefts," Leahy said.

Postlude

String Trio In Doldrums Of Beethoven

By Paul Hume

Three Pasquier brothers moved into Coolidge Auditorium of the Library of Congress last night.

Under the Whittall Foundation, the celebrated string trio presented music by Beethoven, Milhaud and Dohnanyi. Most fragile of all forms of chamber music, the institution of the string trio has always seemed rather invertebrate, at least to one auditor.

Last night's interminable trio by Beethoven, written in the early days when the sleeping giant was still soundly slumbering, brought no unhappy memories of an earlier Mozart, nor any voice of a still living Haydn. For real genius in string trios around 1795, try Haydn, if you will, but not Beethoven.

Nor did the Pasquiers match their usual standard in playing their first offering. Music of this period must be faultless in pitch, rhythm, and balance, and there were moments last night when pitch suffered. Such slight indiscretions would never be noted in the larger forms. But those who work in miniature must touch unusual heights.

Darius Milhaud, contemporary master of chamber music, has written a pungent, wonderfully balanced score in his trio dating from two years ago. The Pasquiers were no doubt far happier in their traversal of this score than in the long dormant Beethoven.

Ernst von Dohnanyi's pleasant C Major Serenade drew the quiet evening to a close.

Superfortress Missing With 15 Men Aboard

Bushey Park, England, Jan. 27 (U.P.)—An American B-29 Superfortress with 15 men aboard was reported missing today somewhere along the 3000-mile stretch from Dakar, West Africa, to England.

United States Air Force headquarters here assumed the plane had gone down. Officials said it carried only enough fuel to keep it aloft until 3:20 p. m. (10:20 a. m. EST) today.

Rescue facilities were alerted, and planes roared in search from bases in Britain, Africa and Germany.

The plane, due at Marham at 9:30 a. m. (4:30 a. m. EST) today, had flown from Accra on the African Gold Coast to Dakar on the first leg of a routine training flight.

7 Licenses For Liquor Approved

Seven liquor license applications yesterday were approved, three denied, and one continued for hearing next month by the Prince Georges County Board of License Commissioners.

The board also handed the management of the Old Brick Inn in Upper Marlboro a warning that another violation of alcoholic beverage laws will result in suspension or revocation of its license.

An employe of the tavern was fined last month for selling beer to a minor in November. The board automatically reviews such convictions.

A license was denied Calvin M. Taylor, who sought an off-sale beer, wine and liquor permit at Friendly Market, 7900 Old Fort rd., after more than 50 persons appeared to protest that school children use nearby transportation facilities.

On the Town

Take a man from Boston say, here in a Government career. There are times when he longs for the company of people from his home State—and when a barrel of Boston baked beans wouldn't be enough to satisfy him.

Or a girl from North Carolina who, now a Washingtonian, misses the drawling talk of Tar-Heelers and to whom a couple of pieces of spoon bread would be taken in preference to a gift of a dozen orchids.

The woods hereabouts are full of such people, says Leonard Mitchell, co-owner of Olmsted's. They come from every place in the Union, he says, that has a food specialty. Beginning with the first week in February and for 47 additional weeks—one for each State—Olmstead's going to do something about it, Mitchell reports.

The restaurant plans 48 State Weeks, starting with Alabama and going down the list through Wyoming. On a given night of each week, tentatively Monday, Senators and Representatives of each State, together with officers of the State society, will be guests of Olmsted's. High spot of the evening will be—you guessed it—plenty of the food specialty of the State.

The same favorite food will be offered throughout the week, according to Mitchell. Thus, Alabamans with a fondness for rice fritters fried in deep fat can have them every night for a week beginning February 1, if they like.

Mitchell says his office help presently is contacting secretaries of each State society to determine favorite dishes and acquire their recipes.

Ethel Gomez, director of the Arthur Murray dance studios, is casting about for a spot to hold the popular Sweepstake dances. Seems the crowds which have been attending the dances, given on alternate Sunday evenings, have grown larger than the available space.

Cuban-American Vocalist Freddy Castro, currently holding forth in the Raleigh Hotel's Pall Mall Room, has played engagements at Chicago's Colony Club and the Havana Madrid, Leon and Eddy's, Waldorf-Astoria and the Commodore Hotel in New York. Washingtonians who dote on Latin music probably caught Freddy at the Mayflower Lounge (Mayflower Hotel) during his long stay there some months back.

New shows are on tap for the Continental Balalaika Monday night, and the Casino Royal Tuesday. Details of the Balalaika review are not yet available. The Casino Royal will headline "Hermine's Little People," a troupe of midget entertainers.

Toni, dimpled accordionist at Michell's, not only collects rare coins but displays them every night for the public in the form of necklaces and bracelets. She wears coins from practically every country in the world.

America's Largest Concentration of Aged and Ageing Whiskies Now in Kinsey Warehouses

LINFIELD, PA.—Nestled in the rolling hills of this quiet country community is a collection of attractive buildings which house not only the famous Kinsey distillery, but 16 warehouses which contain the largest concentration in America of aged and ageing whiskies.

To realize the full importance of these reserves, it is necessary to go back to the war years, during which the alcohol output of distillers was used in the national all-out war effort. There were, however, two brief "holidays" during the months of 1944 and January 1945, when distillers were permitted to use alcohol for making whiskey. Distillers had adequate stocks for making plenty of whiskey were forced to limit production because of lack of capacity; other plenty of storage space did not produce sufficient whiskey for future needs.

Kinsey was one of two major distilleries which had both huge production facilities and enough storage space to accommodate all the whiskey distilled during the "holidays." That is why today, when many distillers are short of mature whiskies, Kinsey has vast reserves of excellent aged whiskey to draw upon, and why every drop in every bottle of Kinsey has true...since 1892

20 Million Gas Line to Rockville To Be Built

By The Associated Press

The Federal Power Commission authorized Atlantic Seaboard Corp. and Virginia Gas Transmission Co. today to build a 20-million-dollar pipe line from Clendenin, W. Va., to Rockville, Md.

The companies, subsidiaries of Columbia Gas System, Inc., plan to meet increased needs of their utility customers in West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

In addition to the 266-mile 26-inch pipe line, the system will include a multiple crossing of the Potomac River near Rockville and additional measuring and regulating equipment.

Virginia Gas plans to build the 75-mile portion of the line in Virginia, with Atlantic Seaboard building the rest.

The commission, in authorizing the facilities, took note of natural gas demands by Consolidated Gas, Electric Light & Power Co., Baltimore, and other utilities not now customers of the Columbia system.

The new line will connect with Atlantic Seaboard's existing main line at Rockville, and must be completed by March 1, 1950.

Better Pay Asked For Instructors in Virginia Colleges

Richmond, Va., Jan. 27 (AP).—A group of Virginia college presidents today addressed pleas for better pay for professors and instructors in State-supported institutions of higher learning to State Budget Director J. H. Bradford and Personnel Director Harris Hart.

Their case rested mainly on contentions that Virginia's pay scale for such teachers was generally below similar scales in other States.

Bradford and Hart said the requests would be given thorough study and some decision reached —possibly in 10 days or two weeks.

Among those who conferred with Bradford and Hart were: Maj. Gen. R. J. Marshall, superintendent of Virginia Military Institute; Dr. Walter S. Newman, president of Virginia Polytechnic Institute; Dr. John E. Pomfret, president of the College of William and Mary; Dr. Morgan L. Combs, president of Mary Washington College; E. E. Woodward, treasurer of Mary Washington College, and Dr. David W. Peters, president of Radford College.

7500 Miners Still Idle in Dispute Over Safety Rules

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 27 (AP). An estimated 7500 West Virginia coal miners continued idle today in a dispute over safety regulations which are up for court decision.

The miners started walking out January 11 in protest of the use of mine foremen and other supervisory personnel as fire bosses. The bosses inspect the pits between shift changes.

State Mines Chief Arch J. Alexander subsequently ruled that inspection by onyone except designated fire bosses is illegal. But the operators obtained from the State Supreme Court an order restraining enforcement of Alexander's ruling until the Circuit Court makes a decision.

HELENA D. REED and GEORGE MORRIS FAY, U. S. District Courthouse.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the District of Columbia. Filed Dec. 13, 1948. Harry M. Hull, Clerk. United States of America, plaintiff, vs. 1. Unknown heirs at law of Catherine McDonald (also known as Catherine D. McDonald, deceased) and 2. Unknown heirs at law of Neil J. McDonald, deceased, respondents. No. CA 23-47. The object of this suit is to declare escheat of real estate to the United States of America, application having been made herein by the United States of America by George Morris Fay, United States Attorney for District of Columbia, for a finding that Catherine McDonald (also known as Catherine D. McDonald), the above-named decedent, died intestate without heirs at law capable of inheriting said real estate, and for a decree that said real estate escheat to the United States of America under D. C. Code (1940), Title 18, Sec. 111 (Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 497, par. 38; Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat., 1344, Ch. 854, par. 962; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 537, Ch. 1329). On motion of the plaintiff, it is this 13th day of December, 1948, ordered that the unknown heirs at law, if any, of Catherine McDonald (also known as Catherine D. McDonald, deceased), and unknown heirs at law, if any, of Neil J. McDonald, deceased, and all others concerned, and each of them, cause their appearance to be entered herein on or before the first rule day occurring after the expiration of three months from the date of the first publication of this order, otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in case of default, provided a copy of this order be published twice a month for three months in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post, newspaper before said day. JAS. W. MORRIS, Judge. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) HARRY M. HULL, Clerk. By ELIZABETH M. KOWALSKI, Deputy Clerk. Dec17,28;Jan17,28;Feb17,28

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: We, William D. Pardridge, President of International Society of Air Affairs, and Stuart S. Ogilvie, Acting Assistant Secretary of International Society of Air Affairs, do hereby certify that the following Resolution was unanimously adopted by the Board of Trustees of said society at a duly constituted meeting of said Trustees, December 27, 1948:

"RESOLVED: That this corporation, organized as Air Affairs, Inc. under Title 29 of Chapter 6 of the 1940 Code of the District of Columbia, the original certificate of the corporation being filed in the Office of the Recorder of Deeds for the District of Columbia, No. 28445, and on the 2nd day of June 1947 changed in name from Air Affairs, Inc. to International Society of Air Affairs, can better serve the purposes for which it was organized, and to which it is dedicated, by functioning in the name and style of an American society, open for membership to people of all sections and nations who are interested in the impact of aviation on the social fabric of the community, and that for the purpose of enlisting such people as members and fellows in said organization, it is desirable that the name of the organization be changed from International Society of Air Affairs to American Society of Air Affairs.

"NOW THEREFORE be it this the twenty-seventh day of December 1948 resolved in accordance with the law of the 1940 District of Columbia Code, that the name of this corporation be and it hereby is changed from International Society of Air Affairs to American Society of Air Affairs; and that a certified copy of this Resolution be filed in the Office of the Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia, and be published once each week for four consecutive weeks in two daily newspapers published in the District of Columbia.

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Officers of the Society be and that they hereby are authorized and instructed to take such steps as may be necessary and proper fully to effectuate this change of name."

WILLIAM D. PARDRIDGE
STUART S. OGILVIE.

District of Columbia, I, Naomi DeLozier, a Notary Public in and for the District of Columbia, Do Hereby Certify that, William D. Pardridge and Stuart S. Ogilvie, parties to a certain Resolution bearing date on the 27th day of December, 1948, and hereto annexed personally appeared before me, in said District of Columbia the said William D. Pardridge and Stuart S. Ogilvie, being personally well known to me as the persons who executed the said Resolution, and acknowledged the same to be their act and deed.

Given under my hand and seal this 28th day of December, 1948.

Many Parties Precede Ice Capades Premiere

By Elizabeth Maguire

Society took to the ice last evening, to view skilled skaters at Uline Arena. Dinner parties preceded the opening night of the Ice-Capades, and boxes at the performance were piled high with ermine and mink.

Among many dinners was one given by the Assistant Secretary of Navy for Air and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown. Their guests were Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder, the Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth Royall, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. John L. Sullivan and Gen. and Mrs. Jacob Devers.

Also, Gen. and Mrs. Alexander Archer Vandegrift, Admiral and Mrs. Arthur Radford, Gen. and Mrs. Albert C. Wedemeyer, Gen. and Mrs. "Pete" Quesada, Mr. and Mrs. John J. McCloy, Col. and Mrs. Harold Hinton and Capt. and Mrs. David MacDonald.

Whitneys Are Hosts

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Whitney also entertained before the performance.

In Planning Spring Menus

Both Hens and Eggs Come First

By Lucia Brown

THE egg really begins to come into its own around this time of year.

Here in Washington, egg prices have already dropped about 12 cents on the dozen since you beat up your Christmas eggnog. Low point in egg production was in gray November, when the hens took a winter holiday. High point is usually in April. However, some dealers predict that egg prices won't go very much lower this spring than they are right now.

Frying and broiling chickens are becoming more abundant, too. Prices will be down a few cents this weekend, it's predicted, and lower than in some weeks. Fresh pork and beef continue to be the best buys as far as red meat goes, especially the cuts advertised as "specials" by the grocery stores.

The effect of Old Man Winter's western fling of a few weeks ago is still being felt on the vegetable market. Beans, cauliflower, broccoli, and other produce from out California-Texas-Arizona way continue high. Some shows signs of damage from the icy weather. Cabbage, kale, turnips, collards and other greens from the Virginia-Carolina area are still the best vegetable buys, though higher than normal.

Orange prices have about recovered from the rise that followed the California freeze. Florida had many boxes of the golden fruit in its warehouses when the nippy weather came. Their release has brought prices down to the prefreeze level. Both oranges and grapefruit are excellent buys, now, grapefruit prices having been little affected by the freeze. Lemons are quite high, though, and since the supply of cold-storage apples and pears is waning, they're not cheap.

WITH henfruit plentiful enough for grocers to feature it as a price "leader" this weekend, it's a good time to serve luscious desserts made with eggs. Rated as a "protective food," the egg is especially valuable for winter eating. Sweet treats can be used as a means of bringing extra protein, iron, vitamins A and D, riboflavin, and thiamin to the family diet if they're made with eggs. Here are a few suggestions:

EGGNOG PIE

Pastry Shell:
- 1 cup sifted flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 6 tablespoons margarine
- 3 tablespoons cold water

Filling:
- ½ envelope unflavored gelatin
- 2 tablespoons cold water
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup hot milk
- 3 eggs, separated
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- ½ teaspoon almond extract
- ½ cup heavy cream, whipped
- ½ cup toasted almonds, chopped
- 4 maraschino cherries, chopped
- Semisweet chocolate

Sift flour and salt. Cut in margarine with pastry blender or two knives until coarse crumbs are formed. Add water; stir with fork until dry ingredients are moistened. Mixture will be crumbly. Turn out on floured cloth, press into mound with hands. Roll lightly until ¼-inch thick. Turn crumbs from edges on to center. Roll out in a circle to fit a deep 9-inch pie plate. Trim to ½-inch bigger than pie plate. Fold under and crimp edges.

Bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) for 5 minutes. If any bubbles have formed, prick top and press down. Continue baking for 10 minutes more. Soften gelatin in cold water. Mix 6 tablespoons of sugar, cornstarch, and salt. Add to hot milk and cook until thick, then cook 15 minutes longer, stirring constantly. Stir a small amount of mixture into beaten egg yolks, return to double boiler and cook a few minutes longer. Stir in gelatin. Add extracts and cool. Beat egg whites until stiff, then beat in remaining sugar. Fold egg whites and heavy cream into gelatin mixture. Stir in almonds and cherries. Pour into baked pie shell and sprinkle with grated semisweet chocolate and garnish with cherries. Chill until firm.

CHOCOLATE SOUFFLE

- 1 teaspoon plain gelatin
- ¼ cup light cream
- 2 ounces semisweet chocolate
- 2 tablespoons hot water
- 2 eggs
- 1 egg yolk
- 2 tablespoons sugar

Soften gelatin in light cream. Dissolve chocolate in water over low heat, stirring frequently. Beat eggs, extra egg yolk, and sugar in top of double boiler over hot water until thick and lemon-colored. Stir in gelatin mixture. Fold in chocolate. Pour into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with mint whipped cream, made by adding a few drops of oil of peppermint

Your Baby and Mine

Mothers' Cuddling Care Amuses, Helps Infants

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

If you have a new baby in the family take advantage of the precious privilege to enjoy it. There will never be a time in the baby's whole life when your cuddling and handling will be so meaningful to him and so wholesomely satisfying to you the parent.

This is an age when the baby has few personal satisfactions except the boon of being fed, put to bed and getting acquainted with the family. If he is breast-fed the mother has the most ideal opportunity to get to know her baby and he to know her.

At first he will sense her only as a warm, soft pillow against which he can lie and from whom he can find appeasement from the hunger pangs which assail him. Later, he will be conscious of a gentle voice, of firm hands lifting him safely, of loving strokes on his bare skin.

The mother-image created becomes blended with this satisfaction he gets from hunger appeased, and the feeling he develops encompasses both the person and the services she gives.

There was a time when it was fashionable to feed the baby, put him in his crib and leave him alone, on the premise that if he had maternal attentions he would

Ask Anne — About Matching Silver, Decor

I have just received a set of sterling (the pattern is Spring Glory), and as we have no other household goods at this time, we plan to build our home around this pattern. I will appreciate any information as to appropriate kinds of china, crystal, furniture and household furnishings in general that will harmonize with it. I would also like to know if modern furniture (light oak or mahogany) is more expensive than early American maple furniture of comparable quality. R. B.

Your pattern suggests modern design. In planning the rest of your furnishings, I would suggest you use the lily of the valley motif (featured by this silver). For instance, you might use china which has a lily of the valley motif. It could also be repeated in drapes or upholstery. For a color scheme you could use canary yellow, chocolate brown, deep jade green and white. Blond modern furniture would further carry out the general idea.

Because the price of furniture is determined by the quality of material used and the workmanship, it is very difficult to give a definite answer to your second question. However, generally speaking, maple furniture is usually less expensive than furniture of other woods.

For what length of time is it safe to keep sliced bologna, hotdogs and such? Also, leftover vegetables and cooked meat? What about refreezing sliced liver and other cuts of meat? B. C. A.

If the bologna, etc., is wrapped and kept in the coldest part of the refrigerator (directly under the freezing unit), it should keep very well for a week to 10 days. To be at their best, you should plan to use leftover vegetables and cooked meat within 48 hours after the first cooking.

Freezing any meat or vegetable after it has thawed out once is not advised because freezing tends to break down the cell structures in the food. A second freezing would leave the food soft and lacking in flavor when thawed. So plan to cook frozen food as soon as it is thawed, and thaw only as much as will be used immediately.

While my wife was out of town, I thought I would do a good deed and wash the blankets for her. I placed each

Of Hungers, There Are Four; Each One Urging: 'Eat More'

THERE ARE FOUR different kinds of hunger—hollow, hidden, humdrum and habit. The trick in reducing is to separate the true from the false, so get the inside information on hunger.

HOLLOW hunger is on the level and makes itself felt, more or less vigorously, four or five hours after the last square meal. It's the sign the stomach is empty and ready for nourishment. But it doesn't mean you're in any danger of starving, or that a high calorie meal is in order. A judiciously planned meal can fill the empty spaces and still be reducing.

HIDDEN hunger is evidence of malnutrition . . . even though well hidden under pounds of excess fat! It results when the diet lacks any of the essential nutrients. It can make itself felt in a number of ways—craving for food, flabby muscles and lack of energy. The craving is for the missing nutrients, but the appetite cannot discriminate, and all you sense is hunger. Without changing food habits, you cannot correct hidden hunger or curb the craving.

HUMDRUM hunger is strictly in your mind. It stems from a lack of interesting things to do. Ho hum, it's a rainy day, which upsets all plans . . . guess you'll see if there is any cake left over from last night's dinner. Or when you're convalescing from an illness and can't be about as usual . . . there is nothing to look forward to but mealtime, and in-between snacks to break the monotony.

* * * *

It's this humdrum hunger that leads to habit hunger . . . the habit of eating at certain times. Training the stomach to tell time is easy. Take a pick-up at the same hour every day and first thing you know your appetite sharpens at that precise hour. That's false appetite, but it gets stronger with practice. The habit can be broken just by proving who's boss, you or appetite . . . in three days the hunger signals fade away.

* * * *

There's a second kind of habit hunger—selective appetite. The craving for sweets, for example, may be so strong it's natural to imagine your system is demanding them. That's habit, not requirement. Instead of pampering your appetite with a sweet snack, have a glass of buttermilk or skim milk or orange juice. That will help correct hidden hunger and break the habit hunger too

Home Decorating Hints . . .

Porcelain enamel "wallpaper" which is furnished in rolls and can be cut to desired lengths with tin snips is now available. The new wall covering is made by coating 32-gauge steel with thin, firmly bonded porcelain enamel. It is applied to the wall with a special cement and is waterproof, acidproof, and can be cleaned with a damp cloth.

For plenty of light above the kitchen sink, drainboards, and cabinets, a new light trough, made of durable sheet steel comes ready to install in the ceiling. Built with porcelain enamel reflectors, the light troughs throw light down where desired without shining in the eyes.

Fleeting Fame Note:

'The Face Is Familiar,' Said the Stranger; It Was —Who but Herbert Hoover?

By Mary Von Renssalaer Thayer

HERBERT HOOVER'S scarcely noted for his humor, but occasionally a small spark flares. The other day, as he was leaving his hotel with a friend, a stranger stared, came forward, asked "Haven't I met you before?" "No, you haven't," snapped Hoover, then softening, with a twinkle added, "But you might have seen my picture. They run it very occasionally in the newspapers. I used to be President of the United States." And, has it been noted that the first congratulatory call after the former President made his magnificent speech at the Philadelphia Convention came direct from the White House?

Acheson Sets New Press Pace

DEAN ACHESON'S first conference changed pace of give and take between press and Secretary of State. The press regarded General Marshall with veneration tinged with considerable awe. But as the General parted reluctantly with the smallest crumb of news, as Secretary of State he was scarcely high favorite. Mr. Acheson is regarded also with considerable awe—because of his quickly sharp tongue. He has an effective trick of looking down his long, handsome nose with a slightly contemptuous expression, as if he were saying to himself "How could anyone ask such a foolish question?" At the conference he made a definite hit because of his superb sense of humor and because he seldom talked "off the record." This appeals, since a reporter is honor bound not to publish off-record statements, but if a "No comment" is given as answer to a direct question, then the newsman is at liberty to continue any personal investigations. It was a pleasure to watch Mr. Acheson's brain at work. There's a neat example of his skill in extemporaneous speaking: the State Department, endeavoring to assemble a pamphlet explaining the Bretton Woods International Monetary Fund in terms comprehensible to the general public, approached a top Government economist. He flunked the task miserably. Soon afterward Mr. Acheson, then Assistant Secretary of State, gave an off-record talk to a group of economists. A running transcript proved so brilliant that it was made basis for the needed State Department publication. Mr. Acheson wore a tie sprinkled with jumbo polka dots. Sartorially, he can't hold a candle to Robert Lovett.

Villa Lobos Is No Idler

HECTOR VILLA LOBOS, one of the most prolific composers of modern time, is being honored at the Brazilian Embassy Sunday afternoon. Sixty-two-year Villa Lobos has run off somewhat more than a thousand musical compositions. And this is scarcely fair tally since his 30 suites of folk songs contain 8 or 9 selections in each. Just to enumerate the Brazilian's virtuosity is staggering—he's turned out 4 operas, 8 sonatas, 9 bachianas, 10 quartets, 5 trios, 3 quintets, 1 sextet, 1 nonette—in other words for nine voices—to say nothing of oratorios, 14 choruses and a miscellaneous assortment of pieces! In spare moments he's written a two-volume guide of orphoenic song and holds down a job at the Brazilian National Conservatory. Young Villa Lobos started his musical career as a violin-cellist. His father died when he was 11 and not many years later he ran away from home to live a determinedly Bohemian life. At 17 he started composing but his works were too reminiscent of Wagner and Puccini to be distinguished. He then traveled throughout Brazil for five years, listening to music, earning his living precariously. Back in Rio de Janeiro in 1915 Arthur Rubinstein, on his first Brazilian concert tour, heard Villa Lobos' compositions, became his biggest booster. Rubinstein played Villa Lobos' pieces, made it possible for him to study in Paris. Since then, Villa Lobos has become one of the most distinguished persons in today's musical world. He'll be in Washington briefly, then go to New York.

BANANA CHIFFON TARTS

2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
3 tablespoons cold water
1 cup mashed bananas
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon grated orange rind
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
5 tablespoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
Six baked tart shells
Whipped cream

Soften gelatin in water 5 minutes. Combine banana, lemon juice and rind, orange rind, 2 tablespoons sugar, slightly beaten egg yolks and salt; cook slowly until consistency of soft custard, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, add gelatin, and stir until dissolved. Cool until slightly thickened. Beat egg whites until stiff, beat in remaining sugar, and fold in banana mixture. Pour into tart shells and chill until firm. Top with whipped cream before serving.

SURE-FIRE INDIAN PUDDING

½ cup yellow corn meal
¼ cup flour
¼ cup cold milk
2 eggs beaten
½ cup sugar
¼ cup molasses
½ teaspon salt
Pinch of nutmeg

Scald milk. Combine cornmeal and flour and moisten with milk. Stir into scalded milk. Let cool. Add remaining ingredients. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake 2 hours in moderate (350 to 375 degree) oven. Serve with scoop of ice cream on each individual serving. This recipe makes six portions.

Cool Handle Takes Top Place Among Utensil Features

A heat-resistant handle that can be grasped without the bother of using a potholder is the most attractive asset a cooking utensil can have, according to votes of nearly 10,000 homemakers.

The votes were cast in discussion meetings held during 1947-48 by women's clubs, parent-teacher associations, home demonstration groups and similar organizations, stimulated by a project of the American Home Economics Association entitled "The Consumer Speaks."

Other cooking pan features considered desirable include a flat bottom, straight sides, rounded edges, bottom without grooves, material that retains heat and heats evenly, heavy weight, good balance to prevent tipping, lips on each side for pouring and durability for long wear.

Besides wanting handles that don't get hot, the women voted for such features as the removable handles that won't turn in the hand, handles that allow for hanging the pan, handles that are easy to clean without crevices or grooves, and handles securely attached and easy and comfortable to grip.

They expressed preference, too, for cooking utensils with tight-fitting covers and heat-resistant knobs on the lids.

Having Recently Divorced Alcoholic Sadistic Husband, Young Woman, 25, Joins Cafe Society And Decides to Have Affair; Mother's Aghast

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Our only child, Myra, 25, divorced her alcoholic sadistic husband six months ago, after five years' marriage, and returned to live with us. She had loved her husband madly, endured his brutality as long as she could, and consulted with doctors, psychiatrists, a priest, and a specialist in marital relations before finally leaving him.

She is very attractive, has made a great deal of money as a fashion model for several years, and now is a popular member of Manhattan's so-called cafe society. Loyal friends who knew the inside story of her tragic marriage soon drew her back into social circulation.

We have always been very close and prior to marriage we often frankly discussed her views on sexual morality. She often said she remained chaste mostly because of respect for my views, as she knew how much an affair would hurt me. However, a few days ago I learned that she is starting an affair with one of her new admirers.

She Wants Lover for Reassurance

WHEN I confronted her with this, she was brazen at first, then later denied it and now insists that she isn't having an affair, but plans to start one,—to reassure herself that she isn't "undesirable," she says. A year ago, on her husband's return from the Army, he discontinued conjugal relations, and doctors said alcoholism was the cause, but she developed a complex about being "undesirable."

Several times since divorce she has consulted a psychiatrist about the great tension and depression she suffers much of the time, and he attributes it to her inactivity, as the fashion business has been in a slump all year. She lounges about the house all day, rising only in time to dress for her evening dates.

Due to my shocked disapproval of her contemplated affair, she plans to leave home; and in distress I appealed to a priest for advice. He merely suggested that I have Myra talk with him, which is no help at all, as she would laugh at the suggestion, having drifted away from her church. Now as a last resort I am turning to you, asking advice for Myra or myself, as you see fit. Please answer soon. C. D.

She's Never Felt Loved for Herself

DEAR C. D.: Myra's essential difficulty has to do with psychological dependency. She has long since outgrown the years when closeness to mother spells emotional security in terms of adequate love-acceptance. And having failed to achieve a normal happy union with her husband, who in fact became impotent and totally rejected her, she is beset by panic, unconsciously and increasingly since the divorce.

Why is this? It is because she passed from authoritarian mother to despotic husband and back again, without ever having experienced a love relationship which positively emphasized her right to be loved just for her own sake, without making a burnt offering of herself, as it were, in order to please the person whose love or approbation she craved. Currently, then, she feels exiled to limbo, frantically desolate, out of touch with reality, yearning for "attachment" on any terms.

You say she was very close to you in formative years, and you recall frank discussions that are highly significant. They testify to her having no mind of her own for practical purposes; no gradually evolving moral sense and moral backbone, vigorously rooted in realistically trained thinking, with which to govern her experiences.

She Manifests Masochist Bias

THEY REVEAL, also, that she felt on sufferance in love relationship to you, the key-person in her life prior to marriage; and therefore conformed to your views, decisions and demands only in order to secure your approbation or avert your displeasure, which is to say, for fundamentally anxious demoralized reasons.

Roughly speaking, Myra is the victim of masochist-type conditioning, which unconsciously shaped her decision to marry the wrong sort of man and caused her to cling to him with irrational allegiance; and now is dominating her divorcee history from the start. And why her various psychiatric consultants haven't dug to these "compulsive" roots of her tribulations in relation to men, I can't imagine.

In any event, an affair is no help for what ails her. Indeed, it would merely intensify her subjective panic and spoil any marriage she might make later. All things considered, since she spurns religious counsel and psychiatry has failed her, I recommend deep analytic therapy of the finest caliber—available in Manhattan if you've got the money. M. H.

Mrs. Murdock Named To Head Red Cross Unit

Mrs. J. Edgar Murdock, jr., who is one of the five women heading Special Gifts Committees in the Red Cross Fund Drive, has recruited a volunteer team composed entirely of Junior League members.

Yesterday Mrs. Murdock entertained her aides at tea in her Kennedy Warren apartment to discuss their assignments. Her guests included Mrs. Hamilton Robinson, Mrs. John Hull, Miss Ann Distler, Miss Joan Gardner, Mrs. Wilkins Cooley, Miss Elizabeth Good, and Miss Mary McLaughlin.

Although the $924,000 area-wide Red Cross campaign does not open until March 1, the Special Gifts Division begins solicitation among givers about a month in advance, with the objective of completing a certain phase of the drive before the regular campaign begins. John A Reilly, president of Second National Bank, is chairman of the Special Gifts Division.

Rings On Their Fingers

Mr. and Mrs. J. Earl Helsel of Silver Spring, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, LaGretta G., to Lieut (j. g.) Theodore Glowacki, jr., USN, son of Mrs. Theodore Glowacki and the late Mr. Glowacki of Nanticoke, Pa.

Miss Helsel was graduated from the Academy of Holy Names and also attended the University of Maryland and Benjamin Franklin University. Her fiance studied at Wilkes College, Bucknell University, where he received his degree in chemical engineering, and Columbia University. A May wedding is being planned.

Doyle—Regan

The engagement of Miss Lucinenne Doyle to Dr. Robert W. Regan is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Doyle. Dr. Regan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Regan of Scituate, Mass.

The bride-elect attended the Convent of the Sacred Heart and was graduated from Trinity College. Her fiance attended Harvard College and was graduated from Tufts College Medical School. He is now serving his interneship at Walter Reed General Hospital as an Army first lieutenant.

Chappelear—Houser

Mrs. Irving Chappelear of Benedict, Md., announces the engagement of her daughter, Ellen Rose, to Capt. Richard H. Houser, U. S. A. F., son of Col. and Mrs. March Houser of Washington. The wedding will take place in February.

Miss Chappelear, a graduate of the Catholic University Branch of the Providence Hospital School of Nursing, served with the Army Air Force for two years at Coral Gables, Fla. Her fiance was graduated from the United States Military Academy.

Eshbaugh—Helgren

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. George M. Eshbaugh of Greenbelt, Md., of the engagement of their daughter, Marilyn Jean, to Richard M. Helgren of Riverdale, Md.

Mr. Helgren, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Helgren of San Leandro, Calif., is a veteran of service in the Navy. He is now employed at the Naval Ordnance Laboratory at White Oak, Md. The couple wil be married in the fall.

Parents Are Teachers, Too

Long before children ever go to school they have learned a tremendous amount about things around them. Whether or not mothers and fathers attempt to teach anything, learning is constantly taking place.

But there are ways in which parents can play a very active and conscious part in helping with a child's education. Too often, unfortunately, a good many parents attempt to teach their preschool children to read, spell and write, hoping that they will have a head start when they enter the first grade. While this is definitely undesirable since few children before 6 years of age have matured to the point where they can profit from reading, there are a lot of prereading experiences that fit into the natural swing of everyday life.

Even 2-year-olds will enjoy having pictures of fruit, vegetables and other homey things pointed out in the magazines. When they accompany mother to the store, there are opportunities to name some of the goods they see.

While not too much emphasis should be put on directing a child's learning, a bit of guidance like that mentioned above brings fun for the child and contributes soundly to later organized school learning.

Safety Pin Jewelry

Safety pins, introduced in Greece by the Dorians in 1100 B.C., were not such a lowly piece of household equipment then as now. They were made of precious metals, usually decorated with porcelain enamel, and were worn as jewelry.

Parties for Teen-Agers

When entertaining girls and boys of high school age make the party as informal as possible and they will enjoy it far more. Avoid the long, formal dinner party and in its stead have an informal buffet supper where the young people mingle and have a good time. This is a shy age with some and a formal party is more terrifying than enjoyable.

That time is no more. The emphasis is just the opposite. Now it is recognized that the new baby develops nothing but anxiety and fears when he is separated from the parent and lacks her gentle fondling.

All of this will come about naturally if the mother will nurse her baby. If she will look upon him as an individual and enjoy every minute of him.

Babies need more than food and drink and the opportunity to sleep. They need to be shown that they have been born into a loving family. They cannot know this unless people talk to and sing to them. They cannot know it unless they are picked up and fondled and can look into the bright, smiling faces of parents who enjoy them.

Under such influences the baby grows, stretches, puts up arms to the ones ready to receive him, finds the world pleasant and is content with his place in it. Then he is a "good" baby and the parents can feel a supreme job in possessing him.

blanket separately into the automatic washing machine and washed for four minutes and they got the usual three rinsings. I hung them out to dry, draping them evenly over the clothesline. It was a cold day, but the sun was shining. I now find that the blankets have shrunk about 12 inches. Is there anything I can do to bring them back to their original measurement? I might add that I washed them in warm water, setting the dial at warm. They are woolen blankets. P. B.

Sometimes woolens that have shrunk can be lengthened somewhat if they are gently pulled and stretched while wet. You might try wetting the blankets, hanging them over a line so they hang lengthwise and gently pulling the blanket downward. Repeated pulling during the drying might add more inches to their length.

Blankets should not be washed more than three minutes in a machine, for longer washing will mat and shrink them.

My mother is on a strict diet and misses salads. Someone told her about a salad dressing made especially for a fat-free diet. I thought you or some of your readers might know about it and where it could be purchased. R. V.

I have not been able to find a health or diet store which sells a fat-free dressing especially for this diet. Perhaps you should make a type of a French dressing which she would enjoy by mixing lemon juice, vinegar or tomato juice with a little water, sugar, salt and other seasonings as desired.

The floor in one corner of my baby's room has become badly spotted by milk (formula, actually) spilled when testing the temperature, etc., during feedings. I cleaned the floor with a combination floor polish and wax, buffing it well, and find that the whitish milk spots stand out much more sharply than ever. What, if anything, can be used to remove these spots without completely refinishing the floor? What do you recommend as a floor covering to prevent further spotting? Linoleum seems so heavy and even washable rugs are not practical with milk so frequently spilling. J. R. S.

Wiping the stained portion of the floor with camphorated oil or a scratch-concealing polish might remove the spots. If it doesn't, the stain has probably penetrated the finish and will be removed only with complete removal of the finish.

From the standpoint of care, linoleum is the ideal floor covering for a child's room. If you do not care for a room-sized linoleum covering, perhaps a small linoleum rug to cover the part of the floor most exposed to staining would be the answer. Or, applying several well-rubbed coats of wax to the floor will protect it if the spilled liquids are immediately wiped up.

Is it possible to preserve a model of a small dog made of modeling clay? The clay is very pliable, the type manufactured for children's use. C. L. V.

To preserve the model, cover with shellac by either dipping it in the shellac or brushing it on.

I noticed that someone asked about camphorwood chests through your column. There is a trading company on I st. that now has these chests, hand-carved ones imported from China, for sale. The firm can be reached by telephoning Metropolitan 0653.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Top District Officials May Be Replaced

On the night of the Board of Trade dinner in honor of freshman Congressmen, District Commissioner John Russell Young voiced the possibility that he might not be in the District government much longer.

Since that time, insiders have engaged in an increasing amount of speculation about what's going to happen when Young's term expires on April 17.

Current betting is that Commissioner Young, his special assistant, Charles Stofberg, and Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett may all be "out" by that time.

I'm told that the White House is considering several other candidates for Young's job, and is being advised on the matter by such party stalwarts as Melvin D. Hildreth, who headed the Inaugural Committee.

It is pointed out that the President has taken a firm stand in favor of suffrage for the District, including both home rule and national representation. Commissioner Young, however, has shown no great enthusiasm for home rule.

During the Inaugural parade, there appeared to be a certain coolness between the Commissioner and the President. The other two District Commissioners were assigned to seats in the presidential reviewing stand. But Russ Young's ticket called for a seat across the street.

Inquiries regarding this arrangement brought an expression of surprise from the Inaugural Committee, which said that it was "all a misunderstanding."

Stofberg's tenure as special assistant probably would not hold over into a new Commissioner's term, since top executives usually like to name their own assistants.

And observers predict that any new Commissioner would also want to name his own police chief.

Meantime there's a hot rumor to the effect that Maj. Barrett may soon ask for retirement from the Police Department, for reasons of disability. He is currently in Florida on sick leave—the first time he has taken "a sick card" since he became chief.

Backing up these rumors of an impending vacancy at the top, come stories from Capitol Hill to the effect that at least four police inspectors have been mending their congressional fences lately.

The four are: Inspectors Oscar Letterman, Arthur E. Miller, Clarence H. Lutz and George R. Wallrodt, any one of whom would be eligible to succeed Maj. Barrett (as would Inspector Floyd A. Truscott, who is serving as Acting Superintendent in Barrett's absence).

Inspector John R. Jefferies has a stout champion in Senator Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina, and is also considered a possible contender. However, since Johnston abstained from voting last November, following the Dixiecrat rebellion, he may have lost some of his influence with the Administration.

Latest impetus to the rumors of a big shakeup in the top echelons of the District government came from the news that Stofberg and John Russell Young, jr. (the Commissioner's son) were going into the auto laundry business.

The wiseacres nodded knowingly, and said: "That proves there are some big changes on the way."

PERSONAL NOTES

Ray Holben, 5312 Augusta st., Glen Mar Park, Md.: Peggy Cassel, 1235 N. Quinn st., Arlington, Va.; Bruce R. Morris, Amherst, Mass., and Betty Topley, Maine st., Berryville, Va.: Good catch. The engravers reversed the picture of the Inaugural Ball dancers, and made it appear that the women were leading the men. It was the same sort of oversight that made it appear that Mr. Truman was taking the oath of office with his left hand raised.

He grabbed Ed Wynn's arm and said: "Are you an actor?" . . . "No, I'm not an actor," Wynn meekly replied. "I'm a roach."

Capt. Harry Butcher, who was General Eisenhower's naval aide at the time Ed Kennedy, the Associated Press correspondent, was ousted for breaking the armistice story prematurely, now owns a radio station in Santa Barbara, Calif. His rivalry with Kennedy still exists, for Kennedy is managing editor of a newspaper in Santa Barbara—a paper which owns the competing radio station . . . Butcher, staring out of his office window, suddenly saw a cloud of smoke curling from the roof of the rival's building. He stifled the temptation to let it burn, telephoned Ed Kennedy about the fire, and then broadcast a description of the blaze, over his own radio station.

During a road tour, Artie Shaw and Ronnie Lanthier were dining in a roadside restaurant. "I've always wanted to know how it feels to throw a pie into a man's face," said Shaw. . . . "If you have such a compulsion," said Lanthier, "for $5 I'll let you do it" . . . Shaw ordered a huckleberry pie, paid for it, threw it into Lanthier's face, paid him the $5, and said: "Well, that's one frustration I've satisfied" . . . "And how does it feel?" asked the victim. Shaw thought a while, and then confessed: "It feels terrible."

Chief Justice Fred Vinson saw the baseball game in which his son, Fred Vinson, jr., won for Washington and Lee University by hitting a homer in the ninth inning. The ball, hit after two strikes, went into the stands and missed being caught by only a few inches . . . Then he saw the boy win a basketball game for his college by scoring the second of two free throws, after he had missed the first. The ball went around the basket twice, hung on the rim, and then dropped in. Vinson later embraced his hero-son, who held up two fingers, a half-inch apart, and sighed: "The difference between being a hero or a bum is only this much."

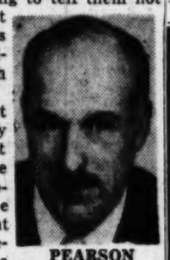
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Democrats Riled by State Dept.

By Drew Pearson

Certain Democratic Senators are boiling mad at the State Department and even irked at the White House for trying to tell them not to support United Nations policy regarding the Dutch in Indonesia.



PEARSON

The incident is extremely significant. It may indicate what some diplomats have suspected, that the State Department was talking loud about forcing the Dutch to pipe down in Indonesia, while playing footsie with the Dutch under the table.

Here is the inside story of what happened. Last week, 12 Senators drafted a resolution vigorously supporting United States' and United Nations' positions regarding Dutch highhandedness in Indonesia. Most of the resolution simply repeated the United States-U. N. demands that the Dutch release political prisoners and retreat to their original lines.

Then the Senators added one more clause. They proposed that if Holland did not comply with United States-U. N. demands, all Marshall Plan aid be cut off to both the Dutch East Indies and Holland. The United States has already cut off ECA aid to the Dutch East Indies but not to Holland.

When the State Department heard about this, however, Acting Secretary of State Lovett slipped over to the White House and sounded the alarms. The White House then phoned Senate Secretary Les Biffle, who in turn called Senate Majority Leader Scott Lucas of Illinois, plus Senators Pepper of Florida and Johnson of Colorado.

The resolution, the Senators were told, would be most embarrassing. They were asked to kill it.

Are Senators Puppets?

No explanation was given as to why the State Department was opposed, since the resolution was almost identical with the position already taken by it at Lake Success. Nevertheless, the Senators were asked to desist. Senator Pepper, who has just become a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and who is on intimate terms with the President, asked that his name be withdrawn. Most others stuck by their guns.

Remarked Senator Chavez of New Mexico: "What do they expect us to do—just appropriate the money for 'em?"

"I can't recall," observed Ed Johnson of Colorado, "that the Senate has abdicated its right to ratify treaties and play its constitutional part in foreign policy."

Note—Other Senators who signed the resolution included Hill and Sparkman of Alabama, Magnuson of Washington, Gillette of Iowa, Kilgore and Neely of West Virginia, Murray of Montana, Malone of Nevada (Rep.).

Dutch War Finances

A significant conversation has been taking place in Europe. The Dutch have told Field Marshal Montgomery that they can't afford to assume their proportionate responsibility under the defense pact because of the heavy cost of military operations in Indonesia.

Indonesian operations for one year cost the Dutch 436 million dollars. During that same year the Dutch received 476 million dollars of Marshall Plan money from us. In other words, the United States really is paying for the war in Indonesia, yet the Dutch claim they can't afford to pay their share of the Western Europe Defense Pact.

Note—Inside reason why some State Department officials are jittery about pushing the Dutch too far in Indonesia is for fear they'll pull out of the defense pact. If so, point out realistic diplomats, where else can the Dutch go—into the arms of Russia, with 90 per cent of their population vigorously anti-Russian?

Electricity Famine

President Truman was talking to Senator Magnuson and Representative Hugh Mitchell of Washington about a proposed deal with Canada for water storage in British Columbia, from which the Pacific Northwest could draw hydroelectric power. The Northwest power shortage, they told the President, was due chiefly to the big aluminum plants built there during the war.

"Well, that's your fault," said Truman, eyeing Magnuson.

"How do you mean?" inquired the dashing young bachelor Senator.

"I mean that you wouldn't rest until you got those aluminum plants established in your State," chuckled Truman, obviously remembering his Senate days when Magnuson had been lobbying to locate war industries in the Northwest. "What do you want us to do—take them away from you?"

"Oh, no," replied the amused Magnuson. "The situation isn't that critical."
